Red River Valley History

By Wm V. Werking

Railroad Journey in 1890

On a pleasant afternoon in early September back in 1890 the combination train between Crookston and St. Hilaire was rocking along toward the latter point with its passengers grouped in a coach attached to the rear of a train of boxcars. One of the passengers was Miss M. Helen Davies, enroute to become a teacher in the first regular village school of Thief River Falls. This trip stands out vividly in Miss Davies' memory, not because of any tragical happenings but rather for a series of comedy incidents that reveal eloquently conditions and viewpoints of 46 years ago. Her story follows.

"I boarded the train at Crookston some time in the morning", the veteran teacher recounted. "There were a number of hunters on the train with dogs and hunting paraphernalia. Every once in a while the conductor would stop the train and let the hunters off with their dogs and they would have a great time hunting prairie chickens while the rest of us waited in the coach with what patience we could muster. Finally we became so accustomed to the stops that we kept watch for coveys of chickens which were plentiful and reported loudly when we saw one.

It was well along in the afternoon when the train stopped and the hunters got off a few miles from St. Hilaire. I was looking out through a window and saw that the railroad ditch beside the train was literally a solid sheet of blue—the beautiful blue of the fringed gentian. I decided that while the hunters were seeking their quarry I would spend my time profitably picking a bouquet of fringed gentians.

I became so engrossed in my task that I did not notice the train leaving. I had planned to pick flowers until the hunters returned and I had not seen any sign of them and so was greatly surprised to note that the train had gone. In fact it was gone a considerable distance when I realized that I had been left behind. As I debated possible steps to be taken I saw that the train was backing up. When it came close enough for me to get on and stopped (I had walked a short distance toward it) the conductor met me at the top of the steps, his face a thunder cloud.

"What's the idea of getting off the train?" he demanded. He eyed my bouquet with an expression of supreme disgust.

"Picking flowers!" he snorted with the disdain of a movie tragedian.

I was only a girl, but I had a fair share of spunk. I stepped right up to the conductor.

"Look here", I said. "You have been letting those hunters off and on all afternoon and I have just as much right to get off and have the train wait as they." I had noted that the hunters had not returned and learned later that it had been arranged to pick them up on the return trip.

"How was I to know the hunters weren't coming back to the train this last time?" I shouted. "Why didn't you announce your plans as the conductor of this special hunting train.

"But the conductor managed to get in a few words. I remember he told me I should be made to walk the rest of the way in to St. Hilaire. But we finally got calmed down and I resumed my seat in the coach. The other passengers found the passage highly entertaining and they all seemed to support my side, as several secretly confided to me when the conductor left the coach."

From St. Hilaire to Thief River Falls, as we have mentioned, Miss Davies rode in a stage which was simply an old-fashioned "democrat" wagon, equipped with two seats and drawn by two horses. It was rougher to ride in than the most primitive automobile and, of course, it was much slower. Moreover, much of the terrian was covered with water or swampy and it was necessary to follow the ridges. It was a tiresome journey, but to an eager young girl it was little more than a lark. In truth, it is altogether likely that Miss Davies could make the same trip without the slightest discomfort.

The writer did not learn the name of the conductor of the "hunter's special". Miss Davies thinks he may have been the same one who was honored at the banquet in Thief River Falls when the first train steamed into town. It is probable that some of the hunters now are staid business men of Crookston. Of course, they were no way responsible, except indirectly and unintentionally for the contretemps. But it is evident that travel, in this part of the country at least was leisurely back in 1890. But then life was slower then the people apparently had more time for pleasures, including hunting.

It is probable that most oldtimers in Thief River Falls will assert that life was happier in 1890 than now and there is reason to believe that there is at least some basis for their claims.

PROWLERS DEFEAT WARREN TO PLACE THIRD IN TOURNEY

East Grand Forks Wins District Finals From Crookston 19-17

Friday evening's play in the District Tournament was characterized by two close, thrilling games with Thief River Falls winning the consolation game over Warren 25 to 21 and East Grand Forks winning the championship by its 19 to 17 victory over Crookston.

In the first game the Prowlers got off to an early lead and rode all the way on that. Stadum and Helquist played exceptionally good ball for the Prowlers with Stadum playing both good defensive and offensive ball. He was high scorer of the evening with 12 points. Mickelson, captain and high scorer for the year, played only one quarter. In the battle for the championship East Grand Forks took an early lead and held Crookston even after being out-played the entire second half. At the end of the first quarter, the Wave led 6 to 3 and at the half, 12 to 6. In the second half, the Pirates came out with a close man-to-man defense, after playing a rather loose zone defense in the first half.

Throughout the last period they were taking the ball right out of the Wave's hands. With better shooting, especially on set-ups under the basket, the game would have been Crookston's.

A very dramatic finish was given to the game when Vordale tied up the score at 17-17 with 25 seconds to play. Then, before anyone in the crowd knew what happened, Peterson had scored on a sleeper play. He scored this basket even though the floor was overrun by fans and some seemed to be hanging right on to him. After the referees had cleared the floor and the game started again, time for only one shot remained. The gun sounded as Lundeberg's shot was in mid-air with the Little Green Wave winning 19 to 17.

ETIQUETTE

Letter-writing is a gift to some people, but to others it is an art which must be cultivated and developed. One's personality is openly revealed in any letters he may write. For that reason, one interested in writing letters should choose his words carefully and write no more than he would say verbally.

Before the actual writing, one must consider his stationery. For the best of taste, plain, unruled sheets of paper which fold once into their envelopes should be used; exaggerated colors and conspicuous designs should be avoided. Business and office stationery is not considered proper for social purposes. A girl always selects her individual paper in a smaller size than does the man.

The keynote of a friendly letter is its simplicity. Of course, the average student delights writing all the news of the town and the school to a chum. In that case, he should avoid flowery language and let his wisdom guide him as to whether he should expand or condense his letter. Write as you talk, and your correspondence will be appreciated by the recipient.

The complimentary close of a letter is usually left to the discretion of the sender. However, formal phrases such as "Very truly yours" and "Yours truly" never close a friendly letter. Then, too, "Yours in haste" and similar phrases are discourteous. The closing phrases of a letter are as important as the opening ones.

Letters are very seldom written in pencil. The only exception to the rule is an emergency, as during an illness when one is unable to write otherwise. Underscorings in a letter are poor taste and of necessity should be avoided. Postscripts are not part of a well-written letter.

A person who takes pride in his correspondence usually opens the door to new friendships and greater understanding.

PEP FEST IS HELD PRIOR TO DISTRICT TOURNEY

Mr. Claffy Officiates at Send-Off Given the Local Team

The pep fest prior to the basketball game with Crookston at the district tournament was held on Thursday afternoon, March 5th. Mr. Claffy served as master of ceremonies throughout the program.

Representing the male members of the faculty, Mr. Orwoll directed the school song. Robert Bouville accompanied him at the piano.

Always to be relied upon for an interesting speech, Coach George E. Lee again presented a short pep talk. According to Coach Lee, all students should sing our school song with spirit and understand its real purpose. He also cited that the Prowlers had an even chance at the tournament and would represent Lincoln High School to the best of their ability.

Miss Tandberg, English III instructor, gave the real pep talk of the afternoon. During the course of her pep talk, Miss Tandberg related some of the past history of Lincoln High School in regard to basketball. In 1932 a team won both the district and regional tournament, finally ending up as state champions. Asking the student body to support the team, Miss Tandberg wished both the coach and the team the best of luck in the tournament.

The members of the pep squad then appeared in their blue and gold outfits. They gave several yells, including fifteen rahs for Coach Lee. Assisted by pep squad, Robert Wessling, rooter king, Edna Lee and Lois Engen led the student body in several yells.

Mr. Claffy dismissed the pep fest by allowing the basketball team to leave the assembly as he called the individuals' names. Led by Captain Gilbert Mickelson, the team received a big hand from the students as they were dismissed.

THE AMATEUR PEN

Mrs. Korstad's ingenuity at writing poetry has produced the following results. In it is contained advice which all students should heed.

What kind of a girl or boy are you?
Are you one that's good and one
that's true?
Do you help your friends or drag them down?
Do you cheat or loaf or work for renown?
Do you want to be honest because it's right
Or try most anything out of sight?
Do you think things wrong only when you're caught,
That it's smart to deceive and cute
to be bought?
Do you stop to think before you act
Will this hurt others, shall I show tact?
Is there anything gained by being mean,
Should I do what's right though all
unseen?
A clear, clean mind and a conscience clear
Are really the things to you most
dear.
If only you youth would think this through
What a wonderful world 'twould

SPRING

With a taste of balmy breezes, the little white and black placards, signifying growing grass, will soon be issuing their ominous warnings of an irate corner lot owner. In other more familiar words, "Keep Off the Grass."

Along with Spring, and marbles, and sloppy streets, and mud, comes the last important sport of Lincoln High School, track. Track and field events are excellent body builders and are primarily the result of individual effort. A good track man represents nothing more or less than a hard working athlete, who, by his own endeavors after being instructed in the fundamentals, has earned a place on the track team. If you can do anything in track or field events and you like to practice, come out for track!

A little early, perhaps, comes this Senior Class Play boost, but here is another chance for ambitious seniors to test their stage ability! When the call for actors and actresses is sent out, respond if you want to try luck behind the footlights! Let's top the Junior class performance of last fall!

LINCOLN HIGH TIMES

Heard at the B. B. Tournament or How Co-eds See a B. B. Game:

Isn't it too thrilling? Just look at all the people! Wonder how soon we have to go home? Look at that handsome boy! How do I look? Isn't it funny you never appreciate home talent 'till you see that from other towns? Oh look, they're starting now! Those referees' uniforms always remind me of a prison. Our boys certainly look fine. Oh, there's that woman walking past again. Funny she can't sit still a little while anyhow. Oh, she's not so good looking. Just 'cause she has clothes. I bet her clothe's bill for a month equals mine for a year. Well, now we can enjoy the game. Break it up, boys! Break it up! Maizie, that man is staring holes through me! He doesn't need to. He yells enough himself. Some people are so rude! Look and see if you can find Bob. Well, he said he'd be here. Oh, there he is; You-hoo! Oh, Maizie, maybe I shouldn't have yelled! Everyone's looking. Oh, now it's the half. Buy me a cold snap, will you? I gotta powder my nose. Oh, here come our boys! They look better than any here if you ask me. Isn't that an adorable hat? I'm going to get one just like it. I probably won't meet her again anyhow. Some band, isn't it? Here comes the pep squad. Nifty, aren't they? Well, the game's starting again. I just love these basketball tournaments, don't you? Give me some of that chocolate, will you? Sure is good. That girl must be mocking me. Oh, I do not chew gum like that. What's that? The game's over? Gee, it sure was exciting! What was the score?

The all-district basketball team picked by tournament officials at Crookston last week includes the following: Peterson, East Grand Forks, forward; E. Panzer, Crookston, forward; Stadum, Thief River Falls, center; Kimblin, East Grand Forks, guard; and Bossman, Warren, guard.

The Prowlers were defeated in the semi-finals of the district tournament by Crookston, the final score being 34 to 22. The scoring was started when Crookston made three free throws, one by Wheelhouse and two by R. Panzer. But Nelson put in a free shot and Jung sank two field goals, ending the first quarter in an 8 to 8 tie.

In the second quarter Vordale accounted for a three throw and a field goal, E. Panzer a field goal, and Barnes another one. But Neland Jung each made a free throw for the Prowlers. The first half ended with Crookston on the top side of the score of 15 to 10.

IN MEMORIAM

In behalf of the teachers and pupils of Central School, I wish to pay tribute to the memory of Cary Johnson who was associated with us for the past ten year.

Her efficiency, promptness, and loyalty made her a valued member of our faculty. She had that strength of character and firmness in doing the right as she saw it that made her outstanding. The ideals that she constantly held before her pupils were exemplified in her daily living.

Her term of service with us is over, but her influence will always be felt by every teacher and pupil with whom she came in contact.

The "dummy" Prowler has been drawn up. As soon as the rest of the pictures have been taken, the 48 page copy will be sent to the Times for publication. This must be drawn up by the last of April.

DALLY-WHO

Hi, Dave, How's "Spring"?

As popular as Mr. Claffy's office last Monday morning.

Quite an interesting week-end with those basketball games and an accident or three to enliven the proceedings.

Mr. Claffy, why don't you practice what you preach pertaining to chair stability?

Doug Hess seems to have even outdone Mick in sending delightful missives of romantic sentiment.

That bell ringing at the game wasn't meant for the belles either.

These sophomore "dames" who don't keep their dates!

A new height of imagination is those weekly Sunday supposedly hunting parties whose participants carry guns but no shells and hunt in unfrequented railroad tracks. However, tall stories are brought back by all the bunnies. (dumb).

That dogget-like complacent eye-to-eye stare Red got in Biology.

Stories told in Biology: Milt's tale of rabbits so large they are classed as big game; Helen A's account of Co-freshening rotten eggs.

At least it goes to show that at least our pedagogues of the gentler sex keep good hours when they were so tired after one night at Crookston that they refused invitations to go the second night.

And so we close with a mind's eye picture of those two smiling teachers standing at the corner, trying in vain endeavor to hail the bus at its Crookston journey last Friday.

Pillars of Hercules

The Pillars of Hercules was the name given in ancient times to the mountains of Calpe and Abyla, standing opposite to each other, the one on the European, the other on the African shore of the straits which connect the Mediterranean with the Atlantic. The present names of these mountains are the Rock of Gibraltar and Jebel Zatout.

DATA ON SUBZERO SPELL PROVIDED BY N. W. SCHOOL

Mercury Failed to Reach Zero Mark for 38 Consecutive Days

More than usual interest centered around the weather reports issued by the Northwest Experiment Station during the past winter. This was due not only to the long period of severe weather and impassable roads, but to a number of new records established during February. The following summary, prepared by R. S. Dunham, station agronomist, will consequently be of interest throughout the Red River Valley area.

For thirty-eight consecutive days, January 15 to February 21, the maximum temperature as recorded at the Northwest School did not rise to zero. For forty-five successive days, January 10 to February 23, the lowest temperature remained below zero. From November 1 to March 1, there were seventy-seven days with minimum temperatures below zero. From Dec. 15 to March 1, the temperature did not rise above the freezing point at any time. Average temperatures for the winter months were as follows:

November 15.8 degrees as compared with 25.6 degrees for the 5-year average.

December, 0.8 degrees as compared with 10.5 for the 5-year average.

January, —0.0 degrees as compared with 4.4 degrees for the 5-year average.

February —13.7 degrees as compared with 7.0 degrees for the 5-year average.

January 1936 was the coldest January ever recorded at the Northwest Station and February 1936 was the coldest month ever recorded. The minimum for the year was reached February 15 when the thermometer sank to —51 degrees. Previous lows were —39 in 1916 and —39 in 1912.

The total snowfall up to March 1 measured 34.5 inches which when melted resulted in 2.69 inches of water. The severe cold made the snow unusually dry. Commonly 24 inches of snow would result in 3.4 inches to 4.2 inches of water. This dryness was an important factor which made blowing and drifting the difficult problem it has been this winter. Depth of snow has not been recorded in previous years, but the amount of water in melted snow for the winter measured 3.08 inches in 1935, 3.76 inches in 1934, 3.24 inches in 1933, 3.50 inches in 1926, 8.10 inches in 1921, 4.01 inches in 1916, and 4.46 inches in 1915.

DODGE LINE HAS SEVEN BODY TYPES

Dodge cites improved spring suspension, easier steering and a "ride revelator" as among the outstanding features of its new 1936 line. Seven body types are presented—four-door sedan, four-door touring sedan, two-door sedan, two-door touring sedan, coupe, coupe with rumble seat and convertible coupe. Various changes have been made in the appearance of the cars. The radiator grille has been tapered and now has a raised center section, while the lower corners of the windshield are made to follow the cowl line, thereby giving a streamline effect. The engine, which is said to develop 87 horsepower from six cylinders, is now placed lower in the frame, so that there is practically a straight line from the engine to the rear axle. An innovation is the shaping of the cylinder heads so as to impart a whirling motion to the indrawn fuel mixture. This is said to result in better combustion. A spray from a steel tube extending through the cylinder block cools the exhaust valve seats. For more efficient engine cooling, water jackets extend downward and around the full length of the cylinder barrel. The ride revelator is said to keep the car on an even keel when rounding corners or traveling over bumpy roads at high speed. It is a steel bar mounted behind the radiator grille and anchored to the shock absorbers. For greater safety and ease of handling, the brake pedal now has a shortened motion, thereby making brake application quicker. Brakes are hydraulic. Various automatic controls are incorporated, including automatic choke, carburetor heat control, vacuum spark control and thermostatic control.

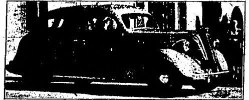
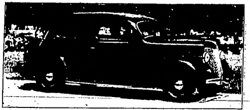
De Luxe LaFayette With Cruising Gear



The new automatic cruising gear, which increases liberally travel mileage in relation to gas and oil consumption, and also reduces engine wear, is now available on the deluxe LaFayette models of the Nash line. Hitherto the gear has been available only on the "400" and Ambassador. Adoption on the LaFayette marks the first appearance of this remarkable factor in car operation economy in the low price car field.



The 1936 Ford V-8 is more beautiful, more comfortable, and more silent in operation. The popular Tudor sedan is available both in the low-price and deluxe-equipped models.

LA FAYETTE ADDS MORE NEW MODELS

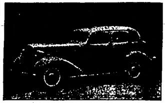
LaFayette begins its third year as a product of the Nash Motors Company with three new models added to the six already in its line. LaFayette has made a number of basic changes in body construction. The new body models are a convertible coupe, a three-passenger business coupe, and a five-passenger rumble seat coupe. Increased horsepower, improved springing and redistribution of car weight are among the outstanding LaFayette developments. The brakes are now hydraulic. All body types have unusual roominess. Riding ease is noticeable. The motor has been moved forward about six inches enabling the passenger compartment to be placed between the axles. Greater strength, rigidity and consequent safety are claimed for the all steel construction of body and top of the new cars. Floor, pillars, side panels and top are welded into one unit with the floor of the car acting as an additional frame. Much effort has been devoted to insulating the interiors, an asphaltic compound being sprayed and being covered with a sound deadening, temperature resisting material over which is placed a layer of fiber. Doors are wider than in previous models and have a strong inner stamping for additional strength. Various advantages are claimed for the new method of mounting the radiator and front fenders. With the exception of refinements to increase its horsepower to 87, the L head engine of the LaFayette remains basically the same.

LaFayette and Nash cars are sold in this territory by C. Gustafson & Son.

Proverb of Scilly Isles

A proverb of the Scilly isles, which lie off Cornwall, England, tells that for every man who dies a natural death on the islands the sea takes nine.

Speedy New Buick Century Is Auto Show Attraction



DESIGNED TO CROWD 100 miles an hour and to cruise at ordinary driving speeds at quarter throttle, the Buick Series 60 Century Sedan is one of the major attractions at the automobile show now in progress. The car has a 120-horsepower, valve-in-head straight eight engine and a wheelbase of 122 inches. It is the fastest of the four Buick lines for 1936.

Doctors Warn Against Neglecting Persistent Abdominal Tract Pains

The sooner the "acute appendix" is out, the better for the patient. A study of approximately 3,000 cases operated for appendicitis in a large city hospital is reported in the bulletin issued by the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association today. This study shows that the death rate from appendicitis is not going down as it should.

It shows, also, that most of the people waited for from three to four days before they came to the hospital for operation. By that time the appendix was already perforated in a large number of cases and chances for quick recovery were seriously reduced.

It shows furthermore, that something more than a third of the patients who came with a perforated or abscessed appendix had taken purgatives or laxatives after the pain started and before they found out that the trouble was not indigestion but appendicitis.

Death rates from appendicitis will not go down much, according to the bulletin, until people learn that persistent pain in the stomach or abdomen is likely to be dangerous and that home dosing with laxatives, which produce undesirable movement in the abdomen, may hasten perforation of the appendix and lead to a general peritonitis.

The doctors note, also, that more than half of the critical cases in this study followed upon a first attack. They caution appendicitis patients against any disposition to neglect a first attack on the mistaken notion that first attacks always subside without serious consequences.

NASH HAS DE LUXE, STANDARD MODELS

Nash introduces three new series of cars—a restyled Ambassador and a deluxe series "400" added to the standard series brought out several months ago. The Ambassador has been completely redesigned, particularly the front end; the hood has been lengthened by six inches, the louvres are now of airfoil design and parking lamps are recessed in the fenders. Built on a chassis of 125 inches these cars are strikingly appointed, interiors being done in chromium and black. Upholstery is of broadcloth, and there are arm rests at front and rear. Twin ignition engines are used in the Ambassador series. The six having 93 horsepower and the eight 102. An automatic cruising gear increases top speed while decreasing fuel consumption and engine wear. Brakes are hydraulic and steering has been made easier. Two body types are produced, a victoria and a four-door sedan, each to seat six passengers. Bodies are of steel with a steel top. The most striking feature of the "400" series is the six-cylinder 90 horsepower motor. On wheelbase of 117 inches, six models are produced in standard and de luxe types—sedan, touring sedan with trunk, coupe, coupe with rumble seat, victoria, and touring victoria with trunk. A cabriolet is also offered in the de luxe series. Bodies are of all-steel construction with seamless steel top. Nash cars are distributed locally by C. Gustafson & Son.

Harlem Globe Trotters to Play at Crookston

The Crookston Gunners, leading independent basketball team in this part of the country, will wind up their season this week-end against Saperstien's original Harlem Globe Trotters in their annual two game series. Saturday night, March 14, the first game will be played in the high school gym and Sunday, March 15, these two teams will meet in the armory in the afternoon. George Lee, former Concordia star and now basketball coach at Thief River Falls, will officiate at both games.

SMALLER TREE FOUND ENCIRCLED BY LARGER

Fertile.—Nature is hard to beat, and in looking for oddities the unusual accomplishments of Mother Nature can't be ignored. A cottonwood tree on the farm of Carl J. Anderson near Fertile blew down recently, and its height of 42 feet was cut up for heating wood. In the cutting, a peculiar circumstance was discovered. The tree had not been one tree, but two, for inside the green outer tree was the smaller, original one. It appears that the outside tree grew out from the last branch of the original tree, and continued growing, developing into a perfect cottonwood tree and completely covering the transplanted tree. The stump of the inside tree was eight feet high; the outer tree was 18 inches in girth. The tree had 34 distinct rings," indicating its age, which has been established as correct by Anderson, who recalls the time the tree was transplanted.

TERRAPLANE HAS TWO NEW SERIES

Terraplanes have the five innovations of the Hudson cars, said to make for improved springing, steering and braking. In addition there is a new ventilating system, while the "electric hand" gear shifting device is continued. The new models have 115-inch wheelbase and are produced in two series, deluxe and custom, all having six-cylinder engines of 88 horsepower. The same engine with an aluminum head producing 100 horsepower is also available. Bodies are longer and wider, and more completely insulated against draft and noise. The instrument panel is now tilted up and more legible. A water temperature indicator supplants the water level gauge, and ruby lights to indicate oil pressure and battery charging are retained. The new ventilating system is said to enhance comfort in cold weather. A significant change has been made in the front end. The front axle now is allowed to move in a true vertical arc, held here by two rods attached to the frame. Easier steering and greater accuracy are said to result. For greater safety, new Terraplanes have a double braking system composed of hydraulic and mechanical brakes. Various improvements have been made in the engine. With the electric hand the driver need not remove his hand from the steering wheel in order to shift gears. Local Terraplane distribution is handled by the Taxerass Implement company.

TALKING, MOVING PICTURES

The basement of our new building will be arranged for a show room. Talking moving pictures will be presented with liberal seating arrangements. Some of the pictures will be shown in the forenoon of each day, between the hours of 9 and 10 A. M. The balance of the forenoon will be devoted to demonstrations as above stated.

It will be impossible for us to serve lunch at noon this year owing to the Automobile Show and our own program. The crowd will be impossible to handle. But we will serve lunch on the last day of our program and even though we must omit the noon-day luncheon, we are going to try hard to make it worth while just the same.

The afternoon session will start at 1:30 sharp with a speaking program, which we believe will prove of interest to our visitors.

Following the short speaking program we will show more moving pictures. These pictures are of a high quality. There will be shown such as the "building of the Boulder Dam, Century of Progress, World's Fair, Moving Scenes of the growing, making and moving of rubber goods, the progress of the use of Phosphate and Commercial Fertilizer. Many comic pictures are also included.

FRIDAY, MARCH 20

Friday, March 20 will be much the same arrangement as the first day, only there will be different speakers and different pictures. All told we have made arrangements for more than 15 hours of talking, moving pictures. So there will be pictures shown each forenoon from 9 A. M. to 10 A. M. and the speaking program each day will start at 1:30 sharp followed by moving pictures.

SATURDAY, MARCH 21

Saturday, March 21 is our big celebration day, our Twenty-fifth Anniversary in business. The regular program will not start until 1:30 in the afternoon. But we hope to have many visitors in the forenoon just the same and there will be many features of entertainment including moving pictures Saturday forenoon as well.

At about 1:15 P. M. the band will play in front of our building and the program is on. The Saturday program will take place in our show room.

First a short and simple dedication ceremony of our new building. This will be conducted by the Rev. E. A. Cooke, J. R. Smith and George B. Peterson. Then we will have more band music. Following the band selections Superintendent Morris Bye will take charge as presiding officer. Some of the speakers who will take part in the program are: Mayor Prichard and Senator Tungseth. At the close of the speaking program we will serve lunch.

A hearty welcome is extended to all. A simple souvenier cane will be given away at the close of the program. "The cane you get, the cane you walk away with."

SPECIAL 10% DISCOUNT

As a mater of good will to our trade in the celebration of our twenty-fifth anniversary, we will give a special 10% cash discount on all orders placed for farm machines and tractors during our celebration. Where no trade-in and such orders are settled and paid by April 1.

This practically means for the 19th and 20th because there will be little or no time for orders on the 21st, our anniversary day.

MINNESOTA FARM LEADERS DISCUSS NEW FEDERAL ACT

Farm Aid Act to be Administered Thru County Farm Bureaus

Minnesota farmers were represented at a soil conservation act conference in Chicago on March 4-7 by Frank W. White and J. S. Jones, president and secretary, respectively, of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation. The soil conservation act, replacing the outlawed AAA, has the two-fold purpose of conserving the fertility of the nation's farm land and adjusting production to the needs of national and international market, its proponents declare.

Said to embrace a minimum of red tape, the new act will be simpler to administer than was the AAA. Those who invoke the act need sign no contracts, but grants of money will be paid them by the federal government for planting stated percentages of their arable land to soil building crops. These schedules have not yet been worked out, but will be available by the time the Minnesota planting season arrives, it was announced.

As in the case of the AAA, administrative work in Minnesota will be directed by the state college of agriculture, with local work carried on through County Farm Bureau and Extension offices.

C. E. Ewing, president of the National Livestock Marketing association, asserted at the Chicago meeting that the act must put production at too low a level, and that foreign markets should be developed to take the full output of American farms. He also objected to the cost of putting the new farm act into effect.

L. J. Tabor, master of the National Grange, took a different view, stating that "You make this act so serviceable to the people of America that it can become an Ark of the Covenant for a better day."

As soon as details are complete, County Farm Bureaus will carry on intensive campaigns to make all interested farmers acquainted with the provisions of the new act, in order that those who wish to use it may plan their spring's work in accordance.

Rise in Minnesota Ore Output Forecast in '36

The mining outlook for 1936 appears very promising, with an expected increase of iron ore output of 25 per cent or more over 1935, F. A. Wildes, director of the Division of Lands and Minerals, announced last week.

Royalties paid the state on iron ore leases and shipments of ore increased from $951,500 in 1934 to [illegible] in 1935, Mr. Wildes said. A further increase may be expected for 1936.

About 125,000,000 tons of merchantable iron ore remain on state lands under lease and on properties surrendered to the state. The Minnesota Tax Commission has valued this ore for taxation purposes at $20,000,000, this being in the eye of the law one half of the full and true value.

Newspaper "Spread"

A newspaper "spread" is a lead story and all its subsidiaries; also a story that requires a top head, that is, one that goes at the top of a column; also sometimes used to designate the head itself.

Local Pontiac Dealer

T. M. THRONSON

Active head of the Thronson Motor company, selling the Pontiac line of automobiles in this section of the state with good success. The company will exhibit several of the new 1936 Pontiac models at the automobile show and spring exposition at the Auditorium March 19, 20 and 21.

PONTIAC FEATURES 3 LINES OF CARS

Pontiac brings out three lines—a de luxe Eight, a Master Six and a de luxe Six. A large number of [illegible] no radical mechanical changes. With the "Silver Streak" radiator and grille introduced last year, 19 body types are included. Six models are mounted on each of the de luxe Eight and the de luxe Six chassis and seven models on the Master Six. In all lines there are two-door and four-door touring sedans with built-in trunks, standard coupe for two passengers and sport coupe for four passengers. In addition there is a four-passenger cabriolet on the Six chassis. The bodies are by Fisher and safety glass is standard equipment. Various alterations have been made in appearance. The chromium grille has been crowned, the front and rear fenders made deeper and lamps mounted on the rear fenders. Wheelbases remain at 117 inches on the Eight. Interiors have been thoroughly redesigned, especially as to the cushions and upholstery. Improvements in the engine are said to enhance acceleration, starting and economy. Horsepower has been increased to 87. Hydraulic brakes are used, in combination with improved drums and linings said to stop the car quicker and more evenly. The brakes are triple sealed for added safety. Several options of upholstery and interior trim are offered, together with a variety of color combinations. The Thronson Motor company distributes the Pontiac in Thief River Falls and vicinity.

MEOWING CAT GIVES WARNING FOR BLAZE

International Falls—The meowing of a house cat saved the home of Henry Swenson at Crystal Beach near International Falls, from destruction by fire. Swenson was getting ready to leave his home on a Saturday evening, when his attention was called to the peculiar actions of the family cat. The animal set up such a meowing and mewing as to cause Swenson to turn back and enter the kitchen. There he found a fire newly started behind the kitchen stove, which would, within a very short time, have entirely consumed his home.

MANUFACTURERS HEAD SEES LARGE CAR SALES IN '36

Forecasts Auto and Truck Sales Aggregating 3,675,000

By ALVAN MACAULEY
President Automobile Manufacturers Association

At the outset of its 1936 campaign the automobile industry is not unlike a football team that has captured the ball under the shadow of its own goal posts and by the successful execution of three series of plays, has carried it back up the field well into the opponent's territory.

Members of the team are revitalized. They know that their plays are effective. This, and the knowledge that they have less than half as far to go as they did when they first took possession of the ball, fires them with confidence in their ability to negotiate the remaining yardage.

This same kind of confidence prevails among the leaders of our industry. Since they took the ball back in 1932 they have staged an unbroken series of campaigns that has carried them well past midfield in their march toward recovery.

The strategy of striving unceasingly to make available to the car-buying public progressively higher dollar values in automobile products has proved itself a reliable and effective ground gainer.

This is attested by the fact that preliminary estimates place the industry's output at 3,675,000 cars and trucks, which is not only an increase of 28 per cent over the number produced last year but is roughly more than two and one-half times the 1932 output.

Available figures reveal that domestic retail sales of motor vehicles in 1935 have been running 38 per cent above last year, with gains of 40 per cent credited to the passenger car division of the industry and 30 per cent to the commercial vehicle producers. By Labor day the industry's retail deliveries for the year had more than doubled the number of vehicles sold in the entire twelve months of 1932.

Under the impetus of an increased demand from a number of foreign countries, it is expected that the industry's export shipments in 1935 will approximate 355,000 units—an increase of 27 per cent over last year.

R. R. SNOWPLOW CLEANS AWAY DEPOT PLATFORM

Clarissa—Evidently intent on showing Clarissa villagers just how efficient it was, A Great Northern railway snow plow not only cleared the tracks of snow recently, but in its zeal for cleaning completely sawed off 68 planks in the platform of the Clarissa depot. The plow, hitched behind a southbound freight engine, was pulling a string of cars on its way out of town when the air pressure which controls the wings of the plow gave way, letting the wings to the ground level as the plow was passing the depot. Traveling at a rate of about 10 to 15 miles per hour, the plow ripped up 68 planks for about 50 feet along the platform. The trainmen operating the plow managed to get the wing up in the air before it could hit the cinder portion of the platform, probably saving train from being thrown from the tracks.

Chevrolet Dealer

Head of the Northern Chevrolet company, one of the largest distributors of automobiles in this section of the state, the company handling the popular Chevrolet and Oldsmobile lines. Specimens of both makes will be on display at the automobile show and spring exposition which opens in the Auditorium next Thursday.

OLDSMOBILE LINE MEETS WITH FAVOR

Oldsmobile cars, while having some changes in design, retain the characteristics which proved so popular in the past season. New models are offered in a series of sixes in the low priced field and a series of eights in the medium range. Developments include super-hydraulic brakes, knee-action wheels, solid steel tops and center control steering, claimed to give unusually easy handling. Various improvements have been made in the new engines, which are now mounted in rubber at three points in such a way as to absorb vibration. Passengers now ride between the axles and a ride stabilizer has been added to eliminate side sway when rounding curves at high speed. Transmission is syncro-mesh, giving silent operation in all gears. Safety glass is standard in windows and windshields. The front end of the car has been redesigned, head lamps now being mounted high and the hood extended all the way to the grille. On the eight cylinder cars parking lights are mounted on the front fenders. The six-cylinder models have larger tires, which add both to comfort and safety, and both series have V-type windshields. The hand brake is now mounted on the dash just to the left of the driver, leaving the front compartment unobstructed. Both models are unusually roomy and seats have improved upholstery. Distribution of Oldsmobile cars in this territory is handled by the Northern Chevrolet company.

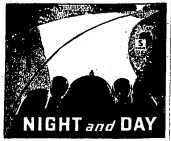
One of the distinctive features of the game of tlachtli, once the tribal sport of the Mayans, was that the player who was fortunate enough to score a goal had the right to take all of the clothes off the spectators.



you're safe on CONCRETE

AT night the superiority of concrete becomes most apparent because of its visibility. Its light gray surface with sharply defined edges reflects light but is not glary.

Concrete conforms precisely to the formula for the ideal pavement set up by the International Illumination Congress of 1928 and by the Illuminating Engineering Society in 1934. The importance of this is emphasized by the fact that the rate of death per accident is 43% higher during hours of darkness. Concrete, smooth but non-skid, insures a quick, certain stop even in the rain. Blow-outs, spring breakage, steering gear failures, accidents of all kinds are less apt to happen on concrete.

Yet concrete is not only safe—it is more comfortable—it saves in driving costs—it costs less for upkeep—and cost of construction is less than that of any other pavement of equal load-carrying capacity.

Early spring months are hard on Minnesota roads. Frost going out of the ground leaves many of them dangerous or impassable.

Concrete roads are safe, spring and fall, summer and winter. There are no ruts, no chuck-holes, no frost boils, no load restrictions.

Tourists follow the concrete. They shun dark, unknown, unpaved or poorly paved roads. They know they will reach their destination safely on concrete.

Concrete IS THE REAL ROAD

PLYMOUTH OFFERS COMFORT RIDING

Plymouths, with a number of design changes and mechanical developments, are offered in three regular and seven de luxe body types, all on wheelbases of 113 inches. One improvement is in steering, which is said to be practically "shockless". Front springs are pivoted at the rear and there is a new steering shock eliminator. In addition, the ride stabilizer has been perfected and is now mounted on the shock absorbers instead of attached to the front axle. Full-length water jackets extend the entire length of the cylinders, insuring uniform cooling, making for longer oil life. The six-cylinder motor develops 82 horsepower. A tube inserted through the engine block is said to maintain the motor temperature uniform, forcing water to all exhaust valve seats. "Calibrated" ignition is said to permit operation of the motor with full spark advance and with ordinary fuel without "knock". The frame has been completely redesigned, and is said to be twice as resistant as heretofore. Considerable changes are incorporated in the bodies, which are longer, lower and wider. There are bright chromium bars on both sides of the radiator grille and the rear tapers from the arched roof and is rounded from fender to fender. Brakes are hydraulic. A non-glare beam is incorporated in the headlights, to deflect one light. A newly developed high-color enamel paint is now used for bodies. Body, fenders and other parts are rust-proofed. Plymouth cars are distributed locally by G. Gustafson & Son, Borchert & Johnson and the Taxeraas Implement company.

CHRYSLER OFFERS LATEST FEATURES

Chrysler offers for 1936 four new lines of cars comprising a number of novel features. The automatic overdrive or fourth gear is continued in the Air-flow line and is now made available at extra cost in the Chrysler Six and De Luxe Eight. Other features are a more rigid frame, rubber insulation between it and the body on the Chrysler 6 and 8, built-in trunks on all sedans, starter buttons mounted on the dash and ventilation system employing butterfly wings. The Chrysler 6 is available in six body types—touring sedan, touring brougham, coupe with rumble seat, business coupe, convertible coupe and convertible sedan. Wheelbase is 118 inches. Engine develops 93 horsepower. The De Luxe 8 comprises seven types: touring sedan, rumble seat coupe, convertible sedan and convertible coupe on chassis of 121 inches. In addition there are a traveler's sedan seven passenger sedan and seven passenger sedan-limousine on chassis of 133 inches with 110-horsepower engine. For the other models the engine develops 105 horsepower with standard head and 110 horsepower with special aluminum head. The Airflow 8 and the Airflow Imperial 8 on wheelbases of 123 and 128 inches respectively are produced in coupe and six-passenger sedan bodies. The engines develop 115, 120, 130 and 138 horsepower on these two lines dependent upon the type of head. Bodies are said to be much roomier and height slightly reduced while length has been increased. The overdrive comes in to play at 40 to 45 miles per hour. C. Gustafson & Son are the local Chrysler representatives.

BUICK PRESENTS FOUR NEW LINES

Buick presents for 1936 four new lines of cars, incorporating a number of innovations. Greater strength and rigidity have been built into the frame while further progress is reported toward silencing and cushioning the engine. The new Buicks include: series 40 special on 118-inch wheelbase with 93 horse-power straight-8 engine; series 60 Century on 122-inch wheelbase with 120 h. p.; series 80 Roadmaster on 131-inch wheelbase with same 120 h. p. engine and series 90 Limited on 138-inch wheelbase with same horsepower as Century and Roadmaster models. Many body types are included in the four lines— types of coupes and a four-door sedan in the Special line; 4-door coupes and a 4-door sedan in the Century line; a four-door sedan and a convertible phaeton in the Roadmaster and two sedans and a limousine in the Limited line. In addition convertible coupes are offered in the Special and Century series. All sedan models have built-in trunks. Bodies have been redesigned and the slanting windshields are of the V-type affording maximum visibility; "center point" steering does away with the transmission of road shock and reduces the effort of turning the wheel. Fisher bodies have safety glass all around and the "no draft" ventilation is continued. The instrument panel has a single dial cluster mounted on the left. The radiator cap is now under the hood. The fenders are new in design and radiators are high and wedge shaped. Buick cars are sold in this territory by John Wiener, proprietor of the Wiener Body and Fender Works.

CHEVROLET SHOWS 2 SERIES OF CARS

Chevrolet Standard and Master deluxe models for 1936 are identical in all major features of engineering and style, but the Master cars have a longer wheelbase and are higher in price. Master deluxe cars are offered with either knee-action or conventional springing. They are quite changed in appearance with higher and narrower grille and new treatment of the hood. The Standard models, too, have been redesigned in chassis and body. Front doors of all models are now hinged forward. Both lines have hydraulic brakes, higher compression motor, improved carburetion, full lengthened water jacketing of cylinders and rustproofing of fenders and runningboards. Solid steel tops are used on all Chevrolets. The regular line uses spoke-type pressed steel wheels instead of wire wheels. Three new body types are added to the Standard series—four-door sport sedan with built-in trunk, two-door town sedan with built-in trunk and cabriolet. These cars have 109-inch wheel base and an overall length of 182 inches. Weight is 105 pounds greater. Front springs have been lengthened and rear ones shortened to minimize pitching. Standard models incorporate a frame said to have never before been used in the low priced field. While of great strength and stiffness, it is said to be extremely simple, facilitating lubricating and servicing. Improvements also have been made in the clutch. The generator is now ventilated. Chevrolet's own type of brake-shoes are used. Engines in both series are identical with 79 horsepower. The Northern Chevrolet company is the Chevrolet representative in this territory.

Cold, Not Starvation Was Cause of Pheasant Deaths, U Farm Authority Asserts

Examinations at the University Farm of pheasants found dead during the past weeks indicate that exposure to cold rather than starvation was responsible for the majority of the deaths, according to Dr. R. Fenstermacher, in charge of the diagnosis laboratory.

Approximately 60 dead pheasants were shipped to the University Farm by game wardens. Crops of nearly all these birds were found to contain adequate supplies of food.

Two Hungarian partridges sent in from Moorhead had ruptured blood vessels, probably the result of over-exertion.

At the same time, the Division of Game and Fish announced that preliminary reports from game wardens estimate loss of pheasants during the cold wave at between five and ten per cent. Most of the reports indicate exposure as the immediate cause of death.

Governor Hoffman of New Jersey has only a few months more to serve, but time enough to show the world that everybody else is wrong.

DE SOTO FOR 1936 SHOWS TWO LINES

DeSoto's presentation for 1936 embraces two lines of cars—a new Airstream and the Airflow III. An overdrive transmission, improved springing, redistributed weight, better cooling and anti-glare headlamps are among the high points of new DeSoto cars. The Airstream has deluxe and custom models on 117-inch wheelbase. Touring sedan, touring brougham and coupe are included in both series and in addition there are a convertible sedan and a convertible coupe in the custom line. These cars are priced just above the lowest price field. The Airflow comprises two models—sedan and coupe in the medium-low priced category. Contributing toward a "floating ride" the new cars employ a new type of leaf spring thinned out on the ends so that more area of each leaf comes in contact with the adjoining leaves. With the engine now moved above the front axle the seats are placed forward. Interiors are longer and wider. Increased power, performance and economy are claimed for the new power plants. An automatic spark control has been added to do away with the spark knock often noticeable in high compression engines. The Airflow engine six-cylinder of L-head design has an aluminum head of 100 horsepower. The Air-stream with cast-iron head develops 93. Both cars are available with an additional overdrive gear that comes into play when the car reaches a speed of 35 to 40 miles an hour and the driver lifts his foot momentarily from the accelerator.

The Taxeraas Implement Company is the De Soto dealer in Thief River Falls.

SNOWSHOES NINE MILES A DAY TO CARRY MAIL THRU

Detroit Lakes—Plodding nine miles a day on snowshoes, through woods and across fields, against stinging winds and in 40 below zero weather, Joe Rundlett, substitute rural mail carrier for the Detroit Lakes postoffice, has been carrying the U. S. mail through. No mercy messenger. No doctor bringing aid. Nothing at all sensational. Joe Rundlett looks upon his daily routine of reaching places in Becker county closed to a snowmobile and even a team of horses as "nothing unusual". He has frozen his hands and face "I guess six or seven times", but still he says the job isn't so tough "now that I'm broken in." Breaking through each day to bring mail to some forty patrons, Joe doesn't necessarily take the road. "I take the shortest route," he said and stated that the straightest course took him through timber land and up and down hills. On his daily hike he packs a mail bag weighing over forty pounds. It was pretty heavy at first, but he doesn't mind it much now he states.

ROD RIPS THRU CHEST LODGES IN MAN'S MOUTH

Hopkins.—Elof Nelson, employed in the blacksmith shop of the Minnesota State Highway department's maintenance division at Hopkins, is recovering from injuries received in a freak accident. Nelson was smoothing down a steel rod on a power-driven buffer when the rod was twisted out of his hands by the speed of the buffer wheel. Entering his chest, the steel piece traveled thru his jaw and one end of it lodged in his mouth. He was given treatment at once, and will be incapacitated for only two weeks.

SAFETY, COMFORT FEATURED IN NEW 1936 MODEL CARS

Greater Ease of Handling in Traffic Also Is Provided

During the current year, the automotive industry, noted for its progressiveness, has carried on as usual, adding many refinements and improvements. Chief attention seemingly has centered in the thoughts of safety and comfort.

Much thought, it is apparent, has been given to better braking and better lighting equipment, proving that car manufacturers are alert to the paramount question of safety.

Greater comfort, a noteworthy achievement of the last year, is reflected in a continuance of the strides toward improved springing suspension and redistribution of weight. The lines of the new 1936 cars mark a new "high" in the matter of beauty.

The leading safety innovation is the use of all-steel roofs, so welded to the body that the entire car gains greatly in rigidity and ruggedness. More rigid frames are the rule for 1936.

Improvements have also been made for greater ease of handling, some models having automatic gear-shifting devices and many others being equipped with synchronized gears that make shifting noiseless and practically effortless.

HUDSON PRESENTS SIXES AND EIGHTS

Hudson's new models, which include both sixes and eights, are noteworthy for a number of improvements, particularly for greater ease of riding and steering. Five innovations are emphasized by the company. They are described as "Radial Safety Control," the "Rythmic Ride," "True Line Steering," "Duo-Automatic Hydraulic Braking," and "Automatic Draft Elimination." In the new cars the driver is enabled to hold a straight line on the road with very little effort as steering is not affected by the action of springs or the application of brakes. The new braking system consists of a big hydraulic brake which does the main job of stopping and a secondary mechanical braking system to be used in emergency. The new models are produced on two wheel bases of 120 and 127 inches. The rear tread has been made wider and the cars longer, wider and more rigid. The electric hand introduced last year is continued with improvements. Bodies have a one piece steel top and are said to be more completely insulated from noise and fumes. The windshield is V-shaped with wipers operating from the bottom. The instrument panel is tilted so that the instruments face the driver more squarely. A novel ventilating system is introduced in the new Hudson models. This is the automatic draft eliminator, consisting of a screening cloth placed over an opening just above the rear axle in the floor body. The air is withdrawn from the car by vacuum. The new system is said to be of special value on dusty roads as it cleans the air before it is admitted to the car. Local sales of the Hudson line are handled by the Taxerass Implement company.

Observe St. Stephen's Day

Since the Middle ages peasants flock each year to Budapest to celebrate St. Stephen's day. At this festival dignitaries of church and state, attired in medieval splendor and gala uniforms, march in solemn procession through the city carrying the preserved right hand of St. Stephen in a golden shrine. The many-colored costumes of the paraders make this march a fantastic display.

13 BODY STYLES OFFERED BY FORD

Ford introduces for 1936 a line of cars changed in appearance but without material engine alterations. Fords are presented in 13 body styles including standard and de luxe models. Among the outstanding changes are improved steering and gear shifting and the use of pressed-steel wheels. The grille has been made more pointed, the fenders both in front and rear deeper, giving the car a greater massiveness in appearance. Bodies, unchanged in dimensions since early 1935, except for greater width in the four-door sedans, include: Three and five window coupes, roadsters and cabriolet with rumble seat, phaeton, two-door and four-door sedans and the same sedans with built-in trunks. In addition there is the deluxe convertible sedan. Wheelbase remains at 112 inches. All other models may be obtained with deluxe equipment except the five-window coupe and the two-door and four-door sedans. Safety glass is provided throughout. Mechanical refinements in the steering assembly are said to add greater ease. It is now possible to set the steering wheel so that the "high spot" conforms to the straight ahead position of the front wheel. An adjustable drag line has been incorporated to eliminate play. For greater quiet in shifting helical gears are now used in low and reverse as well as in second and high as they were heretofore. The synchronizer between second and high is retained. Radiator capacity has been increased to five and one-half gallons. Lund & Tunberg handle Ford sales in this territory.

1913 Model Chevrolet Is Oldest in Daily Use

Hiram H. Dohner, 70, of Quentin, Lebanon County, Pa., was found to be the owner of the oldest Chevrolet licensed and in daily use in the United States in a contest conducted by Chevrolet Motor Company recently. Mr. Dohner will be presented with the one millionth car built in 1935, a 1936 model. Mr. Dohner owns and drives Chevrolet No. 470, 1913 Royal Mail roadster, which he purchased from the Chevrolet dealer in Lebanon, Pa. He has already received official notification from Chevrolet officials, and will shortly drive his present 22-year old car to Detroit, where he will inspect Chevrolet factories and take delivery of his new 1936 model.

Youth is wonderful, but it rarely gets into full bloom much before 60.

BLOW TORCH EXPLODES; RAISES KITCHEN ROOF

Luverne—Explosion of a blow torch which was being used to thaw out frozen water pipes caused George Reimer of Luverne to suffer painful burns on his face and hands at the Peter Wiese farm. The explosion also resulted in considerable damage to the house. Its force was so great that it literally lifted the kitchen roof, besides breaking all the windows on the ground floor of the dwelling. A small blaze started, but was quickly extinguished.

Lake's Name Changed

The region known as Crater Lake National park, Oregon, has known several different names since it was first explored by whites. Deep Blue lake was the first designation bestowde upon it by the palefaces. The choice was certainly descriptively accurate. Not even the storied Mediterranean is more intensely azure. Mystery lake succeeded this title—another appropriate selection. Lake Majesty was later chosen as its name. Since 1869, however, when a party of pioneers visited this Oregon wonderland, the waters have been known as Crater lake.

COUNCIL BUYS NEW COACH FOR POLICE FORCE

Low Bid of Northern Chevrolet Company Accepted Friday Night

REFUSES PERMIT FOR A. V. BRODIN GARAGE

Petitioners Object to Fiterman Opening Store on Horace av. N.

At an adjourned meeting Friday evening the city council took action to accept the bid of the Northern Chevrolet company in the sum of $655 for a Chevrolet coach for the use of the police department. Nine additional bids in amounts ranging up to $1,028 were submitted by six other local automobile dealers.

A building permit was granted to Charles Fiterman to erect a one-story warehouse along the Soo Line tracks near Ninth st. at an estimated cost of $750. The application of A. V. Brodin for a permit to erect a combined garage and toolshed near the boulevard on the east side of the river was rejected following expressions of disapproval by residents of the neighborhood on the ground that the structure might detract from the attractiveness of the district.

City Clerk P. G. Pederson read a petition signed by about 20 residents objecting to the establishment by the Northern Trading company of a salesroom in the former church building on Horace av. Charles Fiterman, proprietor of the company, was present and informed the council that he had no intention of storing either hides or junk at his downtown location. The matter was disposed of by referring it to City Attorney Theodore Quale.

Following a brief discussion the council voted to sustain the veto by Mayor W. W. Prichard of a resolution granting an adjustment of delinquent taxes on a piece of property adjoining the downtown district owned by Mrs. M. V. Evenson. The opinion was expressed that there should be no compromise made on delinquent paving taxes.

Stanley Michalsky, superintendent in charge of the enclosed skating rink project, informed the council that he would require as many as five bricklayers early this week, and the council agreed to get in touch with available workmen in this city and nearby points.

Appearing in behalf of the park board, Architect Henry C. Eckland presented plans for a new concrete bath house at Tindolph park to be constructed by the board as a WPA project. The council approved the plans and specifications, which call for a building 16 by 24 feet in size.

At the close of the meeting relief matters were discussed with C. M. Evenson, overseer, and it was agreed to continue the wood-cutting project for the time being. City Attorney Quale suggested that steps be taken by the city and county to secure a share of state relief funds at least equal to the contributions made to state relief funds by the local units of government in the form of direct taxes. The council instructed Mr. Quale to join with County Attorney H. O. Berve in an effort to secure a share of available state funds.

The traveling entertainers, who are en route to Winnipeg, are the pick of the performers who have appeared on the New York radio programs, more than a dozen units now playing at theatres thruout the country.

Among those participating in the program here Friday are Walter Gaus, 21-year-old accordianist, native of Jugoslavia; Liang Huey Kong, native of China, who will sing a group of songs; Margaret Coleson, singer, graduate of Drake college, Iowa; Paul Zbell, of Connecticut, imitator of birds and animals; William Hanlon of Hamden, Connecticut, billed as the singing cop; Rhoda Baker of New York City, coloratura singer; and the Three Rythm Rascals, Negro musicians.

GRAND PLAIN MAN CARBON MONOXIDE VICTIM NEAR CITY

Floyd Nelson Kept Engine of Car Running When Auto Stalls in Snow

The victim of carbon monoxide poisoning, Floyd Woodrow Nelson, 22, living north of Mavie in Grand Plain township, Marshall county, was found dead in his car stalled in the snow Wednesday morning on the Angle road eight miles southeast of this city by Henry Louze, driver of a school bus.

Nelson was seated behind the wheel of the car with the motor switch turned on and the gas tank empty, indicating he had run the engine to keep warm, according to Police Chief A. B. Stenberg, who with Sheriff Arthur Rambeck visited the scene when advised of the tragedy.

Nelson, the son of Mrs. Amanda Nelson of Grand Plain, was born in that township July 15, 1913, and spent all his life there. In addition to his mother, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Mildred Lindahl of Wells and Miss Fern Nelson at home, and by five brothers, John and Milton of Superior, Wisconsin; Burton, of International Falls; Carl of Spicer; and Lawrence, of Mavie. His father and a brother and sister preceded him in death.

Rev. E. O. Sabo will officiate at funeral rites in Zion Lutheran church at Germantown. The date of the rites had not been set last night.

Tile-Laying Under Way on Enclosed Skating Rink

Walls of the enclosed skating rink now under construction on West Second st. started to rise early this week with ten men engaged in laying hollow tile. Stanley Michalsky, superintendent in charge, said he hoped to add several men to the crew within the next few days.

Charles Gustafsons Mark 55th Anniversary

Defying superstitions attached to Friday the 13th, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gustafson, pioneer local couple, on that day last week observed their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary quietly at their home. The now venerable couple were married in Sweden in 1881 shortly before coming to the United States. They have been residents of this community since 1886.

Moving Saturday into their commodious quarters in the new postoffice building, the staff distributed mail to box holders for the first time Sunday, and the work is now proceeding as smoothly as usual. From force of habit a considerable number of patrons called at the former location on Third st., early this week, only to find the doors locked.

No formality marked the inauguration of service in the new structure other than the placing in the lobby of a huge bouquet, the gift of the staff. In addition to his other duties Postmaster Andrew Anderson was engaged early this week in showing patrons thru the building, not the least attractive feature of which is a pleasant private office for the postmaster fitted with a green rug and new fumed oak furniture.

The distinction of being the first person to buy a stamp in the new building goes to James Cosgrove, prominent in local Democratic circles. The staff reported that Steve Warring was the first money order patron, while Anna Weslul of Hazel was first to patronize the registry window, and Dr. L. R. Twete was the first to transact business with the postal savings department.

WINDBREAK PLANS TO BE DISCUSSED AT HAZEL TUESDAY

Parker Anderson, Extension Forester, Will Lead Discussion

Farmers interested in getting first hand information on the establishment of windbreaks will have an opportunity to do so by attending a meeting to be held at the Hazel school at 8:00 on Tuesday, March 24, says R. M. Douglass county agent.

Parker Anderson, extension forester from University Farm will be present and will discuss the establishment of the standard windbreak and also the supplementing of existing native protection. Mr. Anderson will also discuss procurement of tree stock, including the establishment of a small tree nursery and general care of the growing windbreak.

The drought has severely affected both native growth and artificial plantings, says Mr. Douglass. In many cases, groves have run their course and are dying a natural death. To be assured of needed protection for the farmstead in years to come, plantings should be started now.

W. J. LaBree Returns from West Coast Trip

The Saturday morning program will be similar to that of Friday morning. The dedicatory program in the afternoon will be held in the main floor show room, beginning at 1:30, and will open with a group of band selections. Chairman Morris Bye then will call on C. D. Gustafson for brief welcoming remarks, after which the dedication will be conducted with addresses by Rev. George V. Peterson, Rev. J. B. Smith and Rev. E. A. Cooke.

Other speakers will include Mayor W. W. Prichard, Senator E. L. Tungseth and P. R. Fields or C. H. Moore of Grand Forks. Mr. Gustafson then will introduce members of the large staff of employees of his company, following which there will be motion pictures shown in the basement while lunch is being served. Mementoes will be distributed at the close of the program.

Can-You-Beat-It Display Gets Big White Leghorn Egg Entry From Arne Vik

Arne Vik of St. Hilaire last week entered in the Times "Can you beat it?" department a White Leghorn egg weighing no less than four ounces, an extremely large specimen from this breed of fowl, and equaling in weight the White Wyandotte egg brought in recently by C. V. Whitchurch. Mr. Vik's contribution measures two and three-quarter inches in length and nearly six inches in circumference. However, a letter received by The Times this week indicates that larger White Leghorn eggs are laid elsewhere. Mrs. M. P. Malret of Cokato writes that one of her young hens laid a double-yolk egg fully three and one-half inches long.

U. C. T. COUNCIL HONORS BENNES SATURDAY NIGHT

Last Saturday evening was observed by the local council of the United Commercial Travelers as Grand Counselor E. M. Bennes night, the occasion marking the first public appearance of Mr. Bennes since his recent illness, and his election for the twentieth year as secretary-treasurer of the local council.

In the course of the evening a class of thirteen candidates were initiated, and Anton L. Hall was elected senior counselor succeeding Julien Provencher. Other officers named in addition to Mr. Bennes were J. L. Winklesky, junior counselor; C. H. Jung, past counselor; C. M. Olesen, conductor; Harold G. Rasmussen, page; Fred Bjornson, sentinel; A. G. Gabrielson, chaplain; and H. A. Brumund and C. H. Jung, executive committee.

Mr. Provencher was named delegate to the grand council session at Owatonna in June, and L. G. Larsen was appointed alternate.

Tax Questionnaire Is Discussed by C. and C. Members at Luncheon

Members of the Civic and Commerce association, following their luncheon last Thursday, discussed a tax questionnaire received last week by Mayor W. W. Prichard from the state tax commission, which is seeking an expression of opinion by local taxpayers on possible changes in present levies such as lowered income tax exemptions and a per capita tax on all employed persons. After brief consideration the matter was referred to the association's legislative committee for further study. No luncheon was scheduled for this noon, the association rooms in the basement of the Auditorium being utilized for displays by exhibitors in the industrial department of the spring exposition now in progress.

Charles Fiterman Moves to Horace av. Location

Charles Fiterman, proprietor of the Northern Trading company, this week established headquarters in the former Trinity church building on Horace av. near Third st., his former building on Main av. now being in process of demolition. He stated that he plans to add a furniture department.

Torrens Title Registering System Now in Effect Here

For the first time in its history, Pennington County now has within its borders a parcel of land to which the title is registered under the Torrens system. On March 11th, Judge M. A. Brattland issued an order and decree which registered the title of Paul A. Lundgren and Ruth G. Lundgren to their residence property in this city.

This modern system of land titles, while new to this county, is used extensively in metropolitan areas in this state and elsewhere. After its introduction in South Australia by Sir Robert Torrens in 1858, the system found immediate favor as being an improvement over the old system of land titles. The Torrens system eliminates the necessity of abstracts, and provides a simple and speedy method of transferring title.

A certificate of title is issued to the owner of registered land, and when a sale is made, the registrar of titles merely issues a new certificate of title to the purchaser, which contains no data as to the former owners of the land. The system provides for the registration of the title itself, and not for the recording of the evidence of title with the register of deeds as under the old system. One of the many advantages of registered titles is that the owner cannot lose his title by adverse possession.

Paul A. Lundgren and Lincoln Arnold were the attorneys who registered the first parcel in Pennington County. An application is now pending before Judge M. A. Brattland for the registration of the title to the premises occupied by the Thief River Grocery company. H. O. Chommie was appointed official examiner of titles in Pennington county, by order of Judges Brattland and James E. Montague. Aside from examining the titles which are presented for registration, Mr. Chommie serves as legal advisor to the registrar of titles. Fred D. Lorentson, register of deeds, serves as the registrar of titles in this county.

Name of City Broadcast Over National Hookup

The name of this city, in all probability for the first time on record, was broadcast over a nationwide radio hookup from New York city Sunday evening, the announcer being none other than that well known personage, Major Edward Bowes, who presides over the weekly amateur hour originating in New York. The name of Thief River Falls was mentioned in connection with the announcement of the week's theatre bookings of traveling amateur unit No. 9, members of which will appear in person at the Avalon theatre Friday evening.

Automobile and Industrial Exhibits Are Now in Place

Featuring a representative showing of new automobiles on the main floor, and with a varied array of household utilities and other items on display in the basement, the ninth annual spring exposition opened in the Auditorium this morning and will continue thru Saturday, with special entertainment programs being offered each evening, followed by dancing to the music of Abbie Andrews and his orchestra of Fargo.

The prospect is for a packed Auditorium this evening when the style show, always a popular feature, will be presented, beginning at 7:45. Forty models representing seven local stores will parade from the stage out onto a triangular runway, and will display the latest spring modes for men, women and children.

Musical accompaniment will be provided by the Andrews orchestra, in addition to which there will be an acrobatic dance number by Elaine Wenner, local dancing instructor, and a toe dance by one of her pupils, Lois Anne Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Peterson. Varying from some years in the past, seats will be provided for spectators at the style show on the main floor of the Auditorium as well as in the balcony, S. P. Orwoll, style show chairman, announced.

Vaudeville programs will be presented Friday and Saturday evenings, featuring the "Early Steppers of 1936", a tabloid musical comedy with a group of sixteen singing and dancing girls in addition to individual performers. Also contributing to the evening's entertainment will be six professional vaudeville acts, including Lester Body, master juggler; Kjohn and Parsquist, balancing novelties; Rolette Brothers, high perch thrillers; Morris and Betty, ballroom adagio dancers; Connie Nelson, lyric soprano prima donna; and Connie and Smith, comedy and songs. Ben Smith of Minneapolis will officiate as master of ceremonies for the vaudeville programs as well as for the style show.

The main floor of the Auditorium this morning was well filled with automobiles placed on display by seven local dealers, eighteen different models being on display. W. C. T. U. News Notes

Widespread interest in the first seminar on alcohol education ever held in the world—now in session at the National W. C. T. U. Headquarters in Evanston, Illinois,—is reflected in the inquiries from many parts of the country and the press notices.

The seminar is one of the projects being carried on by the W. C. T. U. in connection with the Frances Willard Centenary Education Program, under a $500,000 fund being raised for five specific objectives— Spiritual Education, Alcohol Education, Peace Education, Character Education and Citizenship Education.

Miss Bertha Rachel Palmer, National W. C. T. U. director of Scientific Temperance Instruction, is in general charge of the seminar, which is now nearing the end of the second month of its ninety-day term of study and has completed its initial consideration of the physical and mental relations of beverage alcohol to the health and welfare of the individual and the community.

An interesting feature of the research and lecture is a series of timely discussions of the various aspects of the subject by guest speakers.

The first of these to address the seminar was Irl G. Whitchurch, professor of Ethics, Garrett Theological Seminary, who talked on "The Place of Religion in Everyday Life."

For Your Cookbook

Noodle Mold (Meatless)

One and one-half cups cooked noodles, 2 eggs, ½ cup grated cheese, 1 teaspoon chopped onion, 1 teaspoon chopped pimento, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 2-3 cup milk. Mix ingredients and pour into buttered mold. Set in pan of hot water and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. Unmold and surround with the green beans.

Salmon Chowder

Cut four strips of bacon in small pieces and brown in a heavy sauce pan with one medium onion, cut fine. Add three tablespoons flour and three cups milk gradually, stirring until smooth. Add two and one-half cups cubed, boiled potatoes and one pound canned salmon, broken into pieces. Simmer for a few minutes before serving.

Salmon dishes are equally at home on party menus. For a party luncheon a delightful variation is a service of salmon hollandaise—as gay and festive as the most particular hostess would wish.

Cheese Fondue—One and one-half cups scalded milk, one and one-half cups bread crumbs, one-fourth pound cheese, one tablespoon butter or substitute, one teaspoon salt, three eggs. Scald milk, combine the first five ingredients and let cook, then add the well-beaten egg yolks. Beat egg whites until dry and fold into mixture, being careful not to break down the lightness of the mixture. Pour into an oiled baking dish and bake about 30 minutes in moderate oven. Serves six.

Mock Chicken Casserole—Pork chops, rice, tomatoes, onion, celery, salt and pepper, hot water. Select large, lean pork chops three-fourths inches thick. Brown in skillet and remove to casserole. On each chop place one tablespoon uncooked rice, one slice onion, half a tomato, fresh or canned, and a ring of green pepper. For each chop used now add one-third cup chopped celery, salt to taste, a dash of pepper and half a cup of water. Bake three hours in a moderate oven, adding a little more water, if absorbed too quickly. When using canned tomatoes the liquor may be strained and used instead of water.

Butterscotch Apples—Five apples, two-thirds cup brown sugar, one-half cup water, three-fourths cup milk, one-half tablespoon cornstarch, one-eight tablespoon salt, one-half to one tablespoon butter, one-half tablespoon vanilla. Wash apples and cut into quarters, pare and core them. Into saucepan put sugar and water, heat. When syrup boils add apples. Cover and boil gently until apples are tender. Remove apples from syrup with skimmer, or wire egg beater, placing in sherbet glasses. In another pan mix milk and cornstarch thoroughly. Stir and cook until mixture reaches boiling point, then add it to syrup in which apples are cooked, and boil for a few minutes. Add salt, butter and vanilla. Stir into mixture, then pour sauce over apple. Serve hot or cold.

Bran Biscuits—One cup bran, one cup flour, two tablespoons brown sugar, one teaspoon baking powder, one-third teaspoon soda, one teaspoon salt, one egg, one cup buttermilk or sour milk, one teaspoon molasses, two tablespoons melted fat. Mix dry ingredients thoroughly. Beat egg until light, then add sour milk, molasses and dry ingredients. Stir in melted fat and fill gem tins about one-half full. One-half cup raisins may be added with the flour. Allow to stand about 10 minutes. Bake in hot oven 15 to 20 minutes.

Stooped Shoulders in Children Are Held Due to Variety of Ailments

When the parent or teacher exhorts the round-shouldered child to stand up straight, he should remember, according to the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association, that stoop shoulders and round backs are not always the result of carelessness and bad training.

Today's bulletin from the doctors' committee lists a series of ailments that have been found recently to be at the bottom of a number of cases of what seemed to be perverse stooping.

Among them were stomach and intestinal disturbances, malnutrition, fatigue and even chronic infections of the nose and throat and eye defects.

Besides these, of course, changes within the spine, itself, were found that were due to tuberculosis or to growth deformities.

Ordinary mass exercises and exhortation do more harm than good in cases like these and the doctors issue a special warning in this bulletin against drastic, ill-advised efforts to make the chronically stoop shouldered to stand up straight.

A careful physical examination with the aid of X-ray should be made first to find out just what is causing the deformity. Posture exercises based upon accurate knowledge of what is wrong can be prescribed, then, and the child benefited.

Red River Valley History

By Wm V. Working

This City in the Nineties

The year 1891 was a critical period in the history of Thief River Falls, a period in which it demonstrated that success breeds envy. The new town had grown vigorously since it had been platted as a village in 1887 and with many flourishing industries either launched or planned its future appeared rosy. But there were persons who did not like to see the village prosper so well. Some of these had lumber interests nearby and others were interested in neighboring townsites. The prospect of Thief River Falls becoming a great lumber milling center and an agricultural center did not fit in with their plans.

So steps were taken to check the growth of the new town and to detract as much as possible from its popularity. Of course, there was not a concerted movement to this end and the world was by no means leagued against the founders of the village and its new residents. It was simply that a few men interested in a purely business way sought to benefit themselves by this kind of an attack. In those booming days such tactics were considered permissable in many quarters as boom interests were included in the saying about everything being fair in love and war.

Well, as might have been expected, nothing was exempt from this "campaign of calumny". In that year there was an Indian scare up in the Roseau country. Thief River Falls was not far from the alleged danger zone, but was apparently absolutely safe as far as the hostility of these Chippewa in the northern part of the state was concerned. But in those days, with Indian raids and killings fresh in the minds of many pioneers of the state, so-called Indian "scares" made people nervous. So the trouble up north was virtually made to order for the enemies of Thief River Falls. They slyly spread reports in the Twin Cities and elsewhere and even managed to get the bad news over into adjoining states. If the news was misinformation when it reached the east it needed no ulterior motive to give its damaging effects. But the enthusiasm and enterprise exhibited here soon made itself felt outside of the community and did much to counteract the unfavorable publicity.

But about this time another troublesome factor obtruded itself. This was the move to create a new county with Red Lake Falls as the county seat. Authorities consulted by the writer interpret the new county move of 1891 as a scheme to "control the destinies" of St. Hilaire on the part of the leaders at Red Lake Falls. However this may have been, the county was formed five years later with Red Lake Falls as the county seat. By that time conditions had changed to some extent and there is no criticism attached to motives of the proponents of the plan, except among former opponents who, like the rebels of the South have refused to be "reconstructed".

Still, in spite of these trials Thief River Falls went blithely ahead with its program of progress. Just as in the case of newspapers and prima donnas a new town must be tempered by the fires of adversity in order that it may thrive. But the villagers did not permit serious matters to engross their attention. Culture also received consideration. A cornet band came into existence formally Jan. 31, 1891. We have not detailed data on women's clubs or mixed social organizations, but we know that there were card clubs. Contract bridge was not popular then but bridge whist was played and perhaps in more intimate circles, exclusively male auction pinochle and even draw poker were social activities.

The village had been organized in 1890 and the first council meeting held May 26 of that year. Is there anything significant in the fact that the first saloon license was granted June 23, 1890, the fee being $500, and in the same month the village council purchased a lot and erected on it the first municipal building, a city jail. This site is described as lot 20, of block 18, just east of the Central school. The writer carries no briefs for drys or wets and is instead, absolutely neutral as a writer of newspaper articles in the liquor matter. After all, one saloon was not a very plentiful source of supply for those who liked intoxicants in that period. Men worked in the woods and others who worked at hard labor in the pioneer community felt the need of stimulants at times and also depended on the exhilaration caused by liquor when they wished to celebrate. But those were the days of real he-men, when it was said in lumberjack circles that a man was not a man unless he could chew peerless and "spit against the wind."

Thief river Falls has changed since those days. We still have he-men and splendid women; we have greater industries and far better culture. Thief River Falls is a real city today, representing remarkable progress since the day back in 1896 when it became a city virtually in name only.

Hens Pay Well for Feed, Farm Records Indicate

"You've got to feed hens well to make them lay," says Miss Cora Cooke, extension poultry specialist, University Farm, St. Paul.

Records kept by 92 Minnesota farm poultry raisers in 1935 afford striking proof of the advantage of liberal feeding, she explains. Hens in the highest-producing flock in the group averaged 131 pounds of feed each, produced 217 eggs, and returned the owner $2.25 per hen for his labor, after other expenses were paid. In the lowest-producing flock, the hens averaged 65 pounds of feed, produced only 103 eggs, and left only 45 cents for the owner's labor.

Another important factor in flock earnings, says Miss Cooke, is the percentage of chicks saved and the general health of the laying hens. The year's death losses for the lowest-producing flock were 26 per cent of chicks and 23 per cent of hens, as against 8 per cent of chicks, and 5.5 per cent of hens for the highest producing flock. Sanitation is the chief factor in disease control.

That money can be saved on home-mixed feeds is indicated by the fact that the owner of the highest-producing flock mixed her own feed at a cost of $1.48 a hundredweight as compared with $1.96 cost in the lowest-producing flock where commercial mixtures were used almost altogether.

About the same difference in methods and returns were found when records of the 19 best-laying flocks were compared with the 19 lowest, Miss Cooke reports.

CALF HAS PIG'S EARS, HIDE HALF-INCH THICK

Nashwauk.—The Range usually has a hard time trying to beat the "freaks" which are born in sections where agriculture is more prominent, but a calf born at Sucker Lake about five miles north of Nashwauk will challenge anything in southern areas. A cow belonging to Nestor Maki gave birth to the freak, which resembled a pig. It took three men nine hours to assist with the birth. The calf was twice the size of a normal calf. The head resembled a cow's but had pig's ears, was so large that it was necessary to remove it in pieces with pliers. The hide of the animal was half an inch thick. The ears, hide, legs, and tail were like those of a pig. The cow survived the ordeal of the birth and is doing nicely.

Observations on Trip to California

By Joel E. Shoberg

San Francisco has a total of 90,000 pupils attending the public schools and a teaching staff comprising 2800. Besides these it is estimated that an additional 15,000 attend the cities high schools, this not counting the higher institutes of learning. Night schools are very popular in San Francisco and have large classes of the working youth who in this manner and without cost gather an education that would otherwise be denied them.

I have been asked what constitutes the most noticeable changes in the food, clothing and climatic conditions and habits of the Californian in comparison with that of Minnesota. Well in the first place the one big meal of the day in California is the evening meal, the six-o'clock-dinner, and this comprises everything according to taste and very much like a full meal in Minnesota, with a possibility that more vegetables and fruits are generally served here than back home. The noonday meal as a rule is very light, a fruit menu exclusively, or a sandwich, with wine, coffee or milk,—and the breakfast also light consists chiefly of eggs, toast, cereals and canned fruits. The forenoon and afternoon lunches so popular in Minnesota we never see here, excepting on social occasions. Midnight lunches following parties and social gatherings are very popular, and the restaurants and cafes at midnight are packed with dining crowds. As is natural in a state where grapes are grown in every county, wine is cheap and plentiful an it is a favorite drink among all classes.

Concerning clothing no visible change is noticeable excepting high overshoes and caps with earlappers are not found here. Also the winter garments are lighter in weight. But from Thanksgiving until the middle of March we see womens fur coats and winter coats with large fur collars, mufflers, sweaters and gloves like back home, and the men wearing light top coats. The average winter temperature of San Francisco seems to be from 40 to 60 degrees above, but being surrounded as we are on three sides by water, the atmosphere is always moist and especially after midnight the air feels quite raw, and you feel chilled even at the above temperatures. Further south in the state and also more inland away from the Pacific breeze the climate is more mild and the raw wind is absent and the suns rays has more power.

I have also been asked what constitutes the chief winter amusements of the California public. These are so varied and differs so with the taste of the individual that they include practically every imaginable form of recreation. Night clubs, theatres and dance halls of course reap their major harvest during the winter months, when joy riding and outdoor amusements are not as popular as during the summer months. Indoor swimming pools with warmed water are very popular here and are housed in million dollar palaces where the public may bathe, row canoes, dive and enjoy all forms of water sport at an admission fee of fifty cents. Most of the large hotels and night clubs give entertainments both with and without a cover charge. At the best ones both the private rooms and the dance floors are marvels of beauty and luxury.

San Francisco is a great city for church activities, I am told that about 75 per cent of the population here are church members, and of these 75 per cent are catholics. A fact is that the Catholic churches and edifices scattered throughout the city are marvels of architectural skill. Of the Protestant church I am not sure which one has the largest membership, but the Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists and Christian Science and others have wonderful assembly buildings. Most of these churches sponsor special winter entertainments especially for Sunday evenings and for the young people of the congregation. The nature of these are varied, different kinds of programs, outings, swimming contests, and several open their basements to social card games and dancing entertainments. Musical entertainments of every variety are given at churches, halls and auditoriums throughout the city every week and draw large audiences.

Our Bird Neighbors

By C. B. Hovie

Evening Grosbeak

Several times this spring, small bands of this beautiful bird visitor from northwestern Canada, have paused and tarried awhile at our place. Their clear melodious call note is one of the most pleasing winter voices we have.

Coming from a bird midway in size between a house sparrow and a robin, wearing a striking coat of bright yellow, clear black, immaculate white and chestnut brown head and shoulders, a very pleasing effect is made. The wings and tail are black, the body and a line extending from ear to ear over the nostrils are yellow and each wing has a broad patch of white about half an inch wide and two and a half inches long, on the upper side. The female is duller colored than the male.

Seeds of such trees as maples and box elders are on its bill of fare, but the bird greatly prefers the seeds in fruits and berries still remaining on the trees at this time of the year.

Only occasionally during winters of exceptional severity does the Grosbeaks wander much further south than Minnesota altho different varieties of this species are found in the southwest.

For our most beautiful winter small bird, even at the risk of offending admirers of the gaudy Blue Jay I hereby nominate the Evening Grosbeak.

Parachutes in Airplanes

Parachutes were first carried in an airplane. In 1912 Captain Berry made the first descent from an airplane in St. Louis, Mo. He used a medium sized parachute, folded and stuffed into a conical cylinder, tied under the front end of the airplane skid. During the last days of the World war in 1918, German aviators frequently used them, but after the war little was done to complete the use of parachutes until the year 1921. At this time British and American aviators began working upon a parachute which could be carried conveniently by a pilot.

ROOSEVELT ASKS BILLION AND HALF FOR RELIEF FUNDS

Appeals to Businessmen of Nation to Increase Employment

President Roosevelt Wednesday appealed directly to business to increase employment, declaring that upon it rested the responsibility as to whether the new $1,500,000,000 relief fund he asked of congress would be adequate.

In a special message asking that a lump sum of a billion and a half be placed to the credit of WPA for the 1937 fiscal year—a request that stirred protest and brought promise of a major battle in congress—the chief executive placed special emphasis upon a call to industry to "organize a common effort" to provide more jobs.

"Only if industry fails to reduce substantially the number of those now out of work will another appropriation and further plans and policies be necessary," he said.

Declaring that about $1,600,000,000 would be available to add to the $1,500,000,000 he requested, Mr. Roosevelt presented this picture of the present relief situation: 5,300,000 families and unattached persons are in need of public assistance (3,800,000 on the works program and 1,500,000 on local and state rolls).

As his message was read in the senate and house, however, signals were hoisted that a fight would be made to earmark the new fund for specific purposes.

Speaker Byrns was one who foresaw a battle over earmarking. Senator Clark asserted he was "tired of signing blank checks. Senator McNary, minority leader, said no appropriation should be made "without a bill of particulars."

CONGRATULATIONS

Congratulations to C. Gustafson & Son on their record of twenty-five years of successful merchandising. That's the proper thing to say on an occasion of this kind. They evidently have done well. Their business has prospered. And such progress as they have made could not have been possible over so long a period of time if it were not deserved. In a community as small as this people get acquainted with each other quite quickly. An individual or an organization, if at all active, is classified in a short time. The steady growth of their business during these twenty-five years indicates that Gustafsons have been judged very favorably by the people of this community. The votes of satisfied customers have elected them to a steadily increasing responsibility in their particular field of activity. And so we congratulate them on their past success and wish them well in all their future undertakings.

So much for that. As we tossed around in bed the other night trying to figure out the proper thing to stress in commenting on this anniversary, it occurred to us that perhaps the community as a whole should be congratulated for the progress the Gustafsons have made rather than the Gustafsons themselves. For certainly the community has become the principal beneficiary of that success.

The fact that their business has grown indicates that this firm has given the community a satisfactory service. In this respect the community has benefited. The fact that this firm has prospered indicates that its affairs have been well managed. And in this respect, too, the community has benefited, because only through good management could profits be possible, and only through profits could it be possible to build the kind of a plant that houses the Gustafson business at the present time.

Other individuals in their position might have served as well. Others might have managed as well. But in this case, the results of good service and the results of good management are represented by a substantial improvement to the community, a building and a service plant that belongs as much to the community as it does to the fee owners. In other words, as this business has prospered in the community, it has also been a factor in making the community itself richer and more prosperous.

And so, while we are glad to congratulate Dave and his Dad on their success, we also want to congratulate the community on its good fortune in having this particular business so well managed, and operated by men with so much confidence in the community, that the community as a whole is a better community because of their service.

THE DOLLARS MUST GET VOTES

A group of Hennepin County farmers are making a vigorous protest to WPA officials because they are being discriminated against in WPA projects in rural Hennepin County. The Minneapolis Truck Drivers Union, involved in trouble of one kind or another for many months, is dictating the policies of WPA in the placing of workers in their county, they complain. We regret that space does not permit us to publish the petition of these farmers, as they request, but they have our sympathy. And more than sympathy they probably will not get from the WPA officials unless they prove that they control more votes than the city truck drivers. As time goes on it becomes more apparent that relief money is primarily a campaign fund. Every dollar must do its duty in buying votes.

Citizens of Thief River Falls were surprised Sunday morning to find that the post office had changed locations and that Andy Anderson had set up shop in the building that has been under construction ever since Halvor Steenerson went to Congress. When they were told last week that the mail would be distributed in the new building Sunday morning folks just smiled a nice big Oh Yeah answer. But sure enough, the unexpected happened. The big news flashed through town in a hurry and all day long community skeptics tramped in and out of the lobby. "Surprisingly nice" was the general verdict. In which opinion we wholeheartedly concur. It is a nice building, and when the grounds are properly landscaped it will be an attractive corner.

This is National Grocers Appreciation Week and while the grocers the country over probably won't get round shouldered carrying around the heavy burden of appreciation that will be heaped upon them, there probably isn't any group of people more deserving of a few nice words—and less likely to get them. As a group, grocers are a hard working lot. They put in long hours, day in and day out throut the year, and few of them get more than a bare living for their pains. Of course you, yourself, are the least appreciated person in the world and compared with you the grocers live an easy life, but it won't do any harm to tell your grocer, the next time you drop in to inform him you won't be able to pay the bill this month, that next to yourself, he is about the swellest guy in the world and certainly the best fellow you ever owed money to.

Blocked roads will make it difficult for many people to attend but our guess is that there will be a capacity crowd at the Style Show tonight. This is one form of home-talent entertainment that always proves popular. Which, to some extent, may be due to the fact that this particular home-talent event has always been presented in a decidedly professional manner.

Fifteen real estate transfers in the county during the past three weeks, ten of which were in the city itself, indicates that in this particular field the season is not backward. The encouraging thing is that homes will be built this summer on many of the residence lots that are changing hands.

The Spring Show gets under way this afternoon but there is some doubt as to whether or not Miss Spring will be present in person. The young lady is almost as slow in coming as Old Man Prosperity. Perhaps they are both stuck in a drift around the same corner.

Editor Times:

From reports of the daily press in Minneapolis, I learn that the Hennepin County Farmer-Labor Convention, Sunday last, presented a resolution asking for my removal as Chief Inspector of Grain with the Railroad & Warehouse Commission.

I have endeavored to find out the reason for such action, and was rather surprised to learn of the submitted allegation that I was a Republican and not a Farmer-Laborite. Briefly, permit me to review my political record.

I have voted for and supported the Farmer-Labor ticket from its inception, and before that I always voted for the Republican or Democrat that had the most progressive ideas and record. I was a Farmer-Laborite when some of the loud speakers now in our party were hiding behind the Democratic or Republican banner in the state of Minnesota.

Reviewing the past campaigns; in 1924 I organized thirty-three Shipstead for Senator Clubs in various parts of the state and they carried on an active campaign at the expense of the clubs and myself, not only for the election of Shipstead alone, but for the entire Farmer-Labor ticket. In the campaign of 1930, at my own expense, during the primary campaign, I supported Knud Wefald for U. S. Senator. He lost out in the primary. That fall I made every county in the 1st and 9th districts. In the 9th I worked for the election of Knud Wefald for congress, who filed by petition, and for Governor Olson and the whole Farmer-Labor ticket. I am happy to say that my county, Fillmore in the 1st District, went for Governor Olson with a substantial majority in 1930 and 1932.

When Olson was elected, I was appointed to a position in the Agricultural Department, without any solicitation on my part.

I supported the Farmer-Labor ticket in 1932 and also 1934. If this record is not a Farmer-Labor record, what is?

Personally, I assumed that one of the Farmer-Labor party's aim was to eliminate boss control, that we as a party would endeavor to give to the people of Minnesota the best possible service at the least possible cost. The following should be sufficient proof that I have lived up to this belief.

During the fall and winter of 1932 and 1933 there was a serious drouth in the Counties of Todd, Wadena, Morrison and part of Stearns. I was appointed by the Executive Council to investigate and make recommendations, which I did. Upon my recommendation, the Executive Council voted $35,000.00 for the relief of the farmers in this area. Later on when the Legislature was in session they appropriated another $35,000.00, and I was put in charge of distribution. I was drawing wages from the Agricultural Department, hence there was not a dime spent for overhead. I followed the American spirit of appointing citizens in the various counties to act as a committee to investigate and distribute, without cost, the relief after it was shipped to their county.

For the purpose of eliminating chiselers that might want to get something for nothing I conceived the idea of taking notes from the farmers for the amount of feed needed to carry them through. These notes were made payable to the State of Minnesota, carrying a small interest. I was told the procedure was illegal, which I was well aware of, but it was a moral obligation by the farmers to the tax payers of the State of Minnesota, and I am happy to say that over $10,000.00 has already been repaid into the State Treasury on these notes.

In the year 1933 when the serious drouth hit the 7th and part of the 6th district, as early as June 1933, I realized that something would have to be prepared for the inevitable emergency in the fall in order to save the livestock in those districts. Grain can be bought on the market almost any time, but roughage must be prepared in the proper season. I went to the Governor and requested that he make arrangements for the cutting of hay in the tax delinquent and state owned lands in the Northern part of the state, where there was a good crop and usually left and never cut, just a fire hazard and waste. The Governor permitted me to do so and I went into six counties in the north, appointed a committee of production consisting of the County Commissioners, County Agent, Auditor and County Attorney, for the purpose of satisfying the people that there would be no possible suspicion of graft, chiseling or anything of the kind, assuring them that the State of Minnesota would buy every ton of hay cut. I put the price at $7.00 per ton, baled f. o. b. cars. The Railroad & Warehouse Commission worked with me and obtained freight rates, which made it possible to lay the hay down from the farthest point north to the farthest point of the drouth area at a rate of about $2.50 per ton. 41,000 tons were produced, shipped and distributed at the cost of between $10.00 and $11.00 per ton. This was an enormous saving to the taxpayers of the State as was evidenced when the Federal setup went into effect, raising the price as high as $18.00 to $20.00 per ton. We also distributed several thousand bushels of grain and expended the sum of $750,000.00 at an overhead and distributing cost of less than a quarter of one percent. I had three girls and one man take care of the clerical work. I was drawing no salary from the relief setup, because I had my regular wages paid by the Agricultural Department.

My record must have been clean because even the Legislature that was in session that winter, passed a resolution complimenting me on efficient work.

I also was instrumental, with the fine cooperation of Senator Henrik Shipstead, to get the first $325,000.00 relief money granted to the suffering farmers in the State. I asked the Senator to accompany me through the drouth stricken area and he promised to do so. Early in December 1933, before leaving for the drouth area, the Senator telephoned President Roosevelt from Minneapolis and when we reached Glenwood that night, we had a telegram from the President assuring us that $325,000.00 would be granted.

As to my record with the Railroad & Warehouse Commission, that also speaks for itself. With the most difficult crop that Minnesota has ever handled and with numerous new men, we have conducted the business of the Grain Inspection Department without a solitary serious complaint from any source whatsoever. It is also gratifying to know that, through the fine cooperation of the three Railroad & Warehouse Commissioners, I have been able to reduce overhead expenses in this department several thousand dollars a year, which now reflects in payment to employes of the department. The employes of the Grain Inspection department have for the past several years been compelled to take "payless vacations" at the rate of from 4 to 15 days per month for the biggest part of the year owing to shortage of funds—this unfavorable condition has practically been eliminated.

Yours very truly,
G. H. LUND,
Chief Grain Inspector of Minnesota.

Growing With Your Child

"Why Don't I Have Boy Friends?"

That question seems, off-hand, to apply more to young folks than to parents; but sometimes, when a disconsolate or giggling girl puts the query, it may be that her mother has more to do with the situation than she realizes.

Most mothers are eager to have their daughters be popular. It may be that in their eagerness, they over-emphasize the necessity for popularity until the daughter is made self-conscious. The mother who interferes, questions, takes too great a part in her daughter's social life may ruin what would otherwise be perfectly good possibilities. One mother did so much talking among her friends about her daughter's good looks and ability that the girl became progressively ignored and isolated. The girls in her little group got tired of having her pushed into the limelight on every possible occasion, and became suspicious and cold toward her, when it was largely the mother's fault that the child so conspicuously desired to be always "the belle of the ball." She was not to blame because her mother's ill-advised concern made her artificial in her relations with both girls and boys.

Parents may tend to thwart natural social relations by being too critical of their children's friends. If one boy is labelled "silly", another "uncouth", and a third is eyed with suspicion as to his morals, the girl involved may be made so fastidious and "choosy" that she herself unconsciously measures every boy she meets according to an impossibly high standard.

"I don't want to go to the party with that dumb boy!" fretted a girl who was really in need of more social life. Whereupon her best friends very sensibly took her to task. "Don't be too sure he's 'dumb'," she countered. "Remember that sleigh ride I went on with Tom, when I was feeling miserable because Walter had asked Jane instead of me? Well—Walter is grand on the dance floor, but, believe me, Tom was the life of that sleigh-ride. He was so much more fun than Walter that I wondered afterwards why I had had such a romantic idea about Walter."

Parents cannot make friends for their children, but they can keep their hands and their tongues off the unpracticed youngsters who are going thru their social "growing pains," and need sympathy rather than criticism.

It is the girl who is herself at ease and who can put other people at theirs, who is in the midst of a whirl of "good times." We can't expect children to blossom without opportunities for practice of social graces. The girl who has taken an unobtrusive but dignified part in her family's social life from early childhood will have a good chance of adapting to a wider social life. Even a four or five year old can greet friends, help them with their wraps, be allowed to join the dinner party for dessert. The slightly older child will profit by the conversation of adult guests. We can't learn to be good conversationalists without conversing, and the child whose contributions are courteously and considerately received will have the exhilaration of being wanted and listened to. How else is self-confidence engendered?

Boys don't want to go out with girls who are so sharply witty as to be cutting, who are so afraid of doing the wrong thing that they behave artificially; who demand too much in the way of time and attention and money; or with those who haven't anything to offer in the way of jollity and nonsense and good sportsmanship, or who are inhibited and stiff and fearful.

If girls have acquired habits that make them forlorn searchers for the boy friend, depend upon it, their fathers and mothers have had something to do with the acquisition of those particular traits. Maybe a new policy, at the time when the teen age child is recognizing himself as an individual, is trying to establish himself as a going concern in his own generation, is indicated.

INDIAN SHOWS UP WHITE BROTHERS FOR HONESTY

New Ulm.—A pair of binoculars lost in the wide open spaces of Alberta can generally be given up by the owner as gone for good, and when Dr. Albert Fritsche, New Ulm physician, suffered that experience he felt as might be expected and took the loss philosophically. Dr. Fritsche trekked northward last fall in quest of caribou, mountain sheep, bear and other big game, penetrating the primeval wilderness beyond Jasper Park, Alberta, Canada. Two days "out from civilization," Dr. Fritsche discovered his field glasses, an expensive pair, were missing. Last week, months after his return, he received a letter from J. P. Smith, grocer and provisioner at Hinton Trail, Alberta, advising that an Indian trapper had found a pair of binoculars, and wondering whether anyone in Dr. Fritsche's party had lost them. The Indian had turned the field glasses over to the storekeeper, in spite of the fact that there were no means of identification on them, and they were found in a region where there was no human habitation for miles around. Dr. Fritsche received his glasses, and the Indian a generous reward for his extreme honesty.

Tall Tales

As told to FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Dog Tale

THE year Paul Bunyan established his lumber camp on the Big Onion river he had a great deal of trouble with rats and mice. They ate up the scraps of buffalo milk pancakes that Big Joe, his camp cook, made and grew to be as big as two-year-old bears.

So Paul sent over to Michigan and got a pup that was part wolf and part elephant hound and began feeding him on bear milk. In a little while this pup, whom Paul named Sport, was big enough to clean up all the rats and mice around the camp, so Paul decided to send him after bigger game. He trained Sport to become a moose ferrier and when Big Joe said, "Sport, go out and get me a mess of moose," Sport would do it.

PROJECT FOR RED RIVER DRAINAGE BASIN DISCUSSED

Water Resources Subject of Conference in St. Paul

A comprehensive study of the Red River drainage basin toward eventual development of its water resources was held Monday in St. Paul.

Possibilities and problems in the Red River valley were under discussion by 25 planning, sanitation and water engineers representing Minnesota and North and South Dakota. W. W. L. A. Jones of Washington, department of agriculture engineer, also attended the conference, at which representatives of various municipalities spoke on needs of their towns and cities in connection with the plan.

"This is the first of 16 studies of as many drainage basins in the United States," added Holm. "Through the surveys we hope to determine what effect development of water resources will have on municipalities, agriculture, industry, sanitation, and population of the various areas."

When regional surveys are completed and the problems of each area determined, a co-ordinated plan will be drafted. This will be followed by drafting of construction plans for the 16 regions. The recommendations and plans will be submitted to President Roosevelt on or before December 1.

SQUIRREL DESERTS DIET OF NUTS FOR ICE CREAM

Austin.—A squirrel with propensities for ice cream has been discovered at Austin, and after this it will be hard to get the animal back to a common diet of nuts. A businessman and his wife of that city took home a quart of ice cream during the cold days. They ate a part of it, then placed the lid on the carton and packed it in a snowdrift to keep it frozen until dinner time. Later in the afternoon the man's wife looked out in the yard and saw a squirrel busy at the carton. It had pulled the cover off, and with both paws was passing ice cream to its mouth, as fast as it could lick the stuff down. The little fellow would rub his hands together to warm them up and then go to eating again. His paws got colder and colder. He sat up, and held his paws in his fur coat and tucked them under his armpits and sat, watching the carton, to see it was not stolen. When the job was finished the squirrel licked its chops and went away. Not a drop of the ice cream was left.

Minnesota Schoolmen to Meet on University Campus April 6, 7, 8

What the future of education should be in an agricultural area, namely Minnesota, which is nevertheless keenly interested in having contact with and an understanding of the vast problems, social, economic, and political that the world is facing, will be the general topic of the twenty-third annual Schoolmen's Week at the University of Minnesota, April 6 to 8. Plans for the week, with which will be combined the annual Superintendents and Principals Short Course, have been announced by Dean Melvin E. Haggerty, of the College of Education.

"Social Problems: Minnesota faces the future as a mature state," will be the topic on Monday, April 6. That for Tuesday will be "Education and the nation", and that for Wednesday, "Education and the world situation."

Principal visiting speakers will be Dr. James T. Shotwell, professor of political science in Columbia University, and long an active participant in League of Nations affairs, and Dr. Francis David Farrell, president of Kansas State College, a distinguished agricultural educator.

President L. D. Coffman, Dean Haggerty, Dean Walter C. Coffey of the department of agriculture, Dean E. M. Freeman of the College of Agriculture, Forestry and Home Economics, Professor Alvin Hansen, and many others will take part.

FALLING CHIMNEY SAVES LIVES OF FAMILY IN FIRE

Breckenridge.—Wakened from sleep by the crash of the chimney bricks on the upstairs floor just over their heads, Edwin Davison and his family at Tintah were probably saved from fire which destroyed their home. Fortunately, the floor did not give way under the crashing bricks, or they might have been seriously hurt and unable to leave the house. Only a few of the things downstairs were saved, as evidently the fire broke out in the upper part of the building.

ANNUAL MEETING OF LAND O'LAKES IN MINNEAPOLIS

Stuart McLeod Reelected Director From This District

Higher prices of dairy and poultry products in 1935 increased by nearly 10 per cent the value of foods sold by Land O'Lakes Creameries, Inc., as compared with 1934, despite a slight decline in volume of sales, Emil G. Johnson, treasurer, reported to the 1936 meeting of Land O'Lakes Friday in Minneapolis. A large gathering was in attendance at the meeting, including many from this community.

Sales of the co-operative last year totaled 130,003,090 units which means pounds of butter, packages of cheese, turkeys, dozens of eggs and the like. This was a drop from the 133,835,775 units sold in 1934.

Money received for the products, however, increased from $32,384,652 to $35,566,291. Mr. Johnson said Assets of Land O'Lakes increased to $6,783,037 last year, which included $484,704 of cash, $1,851,511 of accounts receivable and investment of $1,180,699 in the Minneapolis plant and other land, buildings and equipment, after allowance of $517,394 for depreciation.

Two new directors of Land O'Lakes were elected Friday and 21 were re-elected, as nominated by members from Minnesota and Wisconsin districts in the co-operative organization. S. A. Striegl, Pine City, was elected to succeed H. R. Berg, Rush City, and E. H. Huhnke, Deer Creek, was named to succeed J. O. Bjorklund, Henning.

Re-elected directors were John Brandt, president, Litchfield; J. Reil, Brownton; F. L. Farley, Spring Grove; Chris Skaar, Hayward; H. A. Illsley, Faribault; E. M. Rosenberg, Bertha; A. L. Velgel, Mankato; Oscar A. Berning, St. Michael; C. A. Torkelson, St. James; F. W. White, Marshall; C. J. le Count, Villard; M. H. Mauritson, Shelly; V. Lockwood, Motley; John B. Irwin and John Burgess, Minneapolis; Stuart McLeod, Thief River Falls; Jens Jensen, Luck, Wis.; Archie J. Brovold, Ettrick, Wis.; Fred W. Huntsicker, Greenwood, Wis.; A. L. Berg, Baltic, S. D., and A. J. Sandness, LaMoure, N. D.

Factional and personal interests must be set aside in the interests of a common purpose that is best for the greatest number, members of Land O'Lakes were told Thursday afternoon.

The speaker was J. O. Christiansen, superintendent of the school of agriculture, University farm, who drew a parallel between government and co-operative institutions.

"You in this organization must look upon questions of controversy and questions of discussion not as questions of factionalism, personal aggrandizement or bitterness, but rather as questions of common interest to be decided on a basis of that which is best for the greatest number of your membership," he said.

Big Program for Gustafson's 25th Anniversary

Founders to Hold Open House March 19, 20, 21

Fine New Home of Company to be Dedicated Saturday Afternoon

From an infant concern in 1911, with a tiny building, one employe and a first-year volume of business of $10,000, to an institution 25 years later that occupies a modern brick building 75 by 140 feet in size with full basement, employs 18 persons with eight more to be added during the summer, and in its twenty-fifth year handled a volume of business aggregating a quarter of a million dollars—that, in brief, is the record of C. Gustafson & Son, who, beginning today and continuing thru Saturday, are jointly celebrating the silver anniversary of their engagement in business and dedicating their splendid new quarters, completed last fall.

The elaborate program arranged for the occasion under the direction of C. D. Gustafson, co-founder and active head of the farm implement and automobile agency, is published in detail elsewhere in this issue. It includes demonstrations of new types of farm machinery by factory representatives, informative talking motion pictures to be shown in the basement each of the three days, and talks by local citizens and representatives of the factories producing items handled by the company. The three-day event will reach a climax Saturday afternoon when the building dedication program will be held, beginning with a band concert at 1:30.

March 21, 1911, was the date that Charles Gustafson and his son David, who had recently moved into the city from the family homestead five miles southwest of town, engaged in business as agents for the Minnesota state prison line of farm machinery, which they have continued to handle thru the years.

They began business in a tiny frame building on the corner now occupied by them, purchasing the structure from Fred Nickolai at a price of $150, and selling it 20 years later to a Sanders farmer. To secure additional room the proprietors of the infant concern rented a nearby barn from Rev. August Erickson for $5 a month. William Prantz, now deceased, was the only employe to begin with, this number increasing with expanding business to a point where this summer the institution will provide a livelihood for 25 persons.

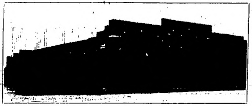
The company's next building expansion took place in 1915 when a roomy service shop was erected at the rear of the original office quarters, which were replaced in 1929 by the construction of a new brick office brought to completion last fall under the supervision of Olson & Kolden, contractors.

The company's home, as it stands today, occupies a site 75 feet wide and 140 feet in depth, with full basement. In the front portion is an office and display space 75 by 70 feet in size, with a shop in the rear. The building provides storage accommodations for 60 cars and trucks, 24-hour service being given during the winter months.

Cherries Centuries Old

The history of the cherry goes back many centuries. Pliny, more than 1,900 years ago, wrote an account of the arrival of cherries in Rome, brought by returning soldiers from the Black sea area.

BUILDING TO BE DEDICATED SATURDAY



Above is pictured the fine new home of C. Gustafson & Son, local implement and automobile dealers, which will be formally opened with impressive dedicatory rites Saturday afternoon, to which patrons and friends from throut this section have been invited. The building, construction of which was completed last fall by Olson & Kolden, local contractors, covers a tract 75 by 140 feet on Main av. at Fourth st. It includes a full basement for car and truck storage; a spacious and attractive office and display room 75 by 70 feet in the front portion of the building; and shops in the rear. Gustafson's new home is a splendid addition to the business district of Thief River Falls.

Three Stages in Development of Gustafson & Son

C. Gustafson and Son Handle Representative Lines of Merchandise

Gustafsons have featured the International Harvester company line of farm machinery since the fall of 1917, when they bought out the Prichard company implement stock. The following year they bought out the Tvete & Son implement business at Goodridge.

Principal lines now handled by the company, in addition to International Harvester farm implements, tractors and motor trucks, include Chrysler, Plymouth, Nash and LaFayette automobiles, Goodyear tires, and products of the American Steel & Wire company, American Agricultural Chemical company, fertilizer producers; Lindsay Brothers, Minneapolis; and Kelly-How-Thompson company, Duluth.

SNOW THROWN BY ROTARY CRUSHES AUTOMOBILE TOPS

St. James.—Curious citizens of St. James, gathered to see the first M. & St. L. train to reach the town for over a month on March 8, were greeted with a bombardment of snow which did damage amounting to hundreds of dollars. Traveling at a rate of three miles an hour, the railroad rotary came steadily along. It could plainly be seen how the snow was thrown out by the rotary, but it was not until the falling snow crushed through automobile tops, crushed fenders and hoods and damaged a half dozen cars that the people realized that falling snow is heavy. Mrs. Ben Bertilsen was cut about the face and leg by broken glass as the heavy snow did $5 damage to the car she was in. The new car of Manfred Anderson suffered damage to the fenders, radiator shell, and hood. An old roadster driven by Albert Babolian suffered the complete destruction of its top as the heavy snow crushed through. John Johnson's car was damaged when wood support stays for the top were crushed. Other cars were damaged by broken glass, crushed fenders and tops.

MERCY PLANE WRECKED; FARMERS FIGHT DRIFTS

Sanborn—An air plane called from Minneapolis to transport a Sanborn farm girl over impassable roads to a hospital for an immediate operation cracked up near Springfield, and it was necessary to call out dozens of farmers who fought drifts for three hours to get the girl into town for treatment. The plane, piloted by Elmer Hinck and equipped with skis, missed its way, passed over Sanborn, and flew to Lamberton. Regaining his bearings, the pilot followed the road back to Sanborn, but in landing failed to note a telephone pole and wires. The plane had its right wing torn half off, and the propeller broken. Notified of the loss of the plane, farmers turned out to open the road for Miss Viola Paskonin, suffering with appendicitis. They succeeded in battling their way through the roads to Sanborn, where a car waited to take her to New Ulm. She immediately submitted to an operation there, and is making a rapid recovery.

Co-Founder of C. Gustafson & Son

Pictured here is Charles Gustafson, senior member of the firm of C. Gustafson & Son, who in partnership with his son Dave engaged in the farm machinery business in this city in March, 1911, a quarter of a century ago. Today at the age of 83 Mr. Gustafson still maintains an active interest in the expanding affairs of the business now operated by his son. Born in Vermland, Sweden, in August, 1853, Mr. Gustafson was married there to Louise Johnson in 1881, and two years later the couple came to this country, first settling at Stephen and then moving to Crookston, where Mr. Gustafson served as engineer on the Great Northern line to St. Hilaire. The family settled in 1889 on a homestead five miles southwest of this city, remaining there until 1910 when they moved into Thief River Falls. In addition to serving on his township and school boards, Mr. Gustafson was secretary of the St. Hilaire creamery until 1910, and later aided in the establishment of the local cooperative creamery. He also has been active in Swedish Mission church activities. In March, 1931, Mr. and Mrs. Gustafson celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home here.

For a Quarter of a Century we have observed that the firm of
C. Gustafson & Son
have rendered a constructive service to their community

They have had the sound vision that agricultural wealth comes from the soil. Their foresight undoubtedly inspired the efforts which they have consistently applied to the maintenance of the fertility of the farms in their trade area. As producers of "AA QUALITY" fertilizers, we congratulate the farmers of Pennington County in having rendered their patronage to this firm, whom everybody recognizes as rendering a service that cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

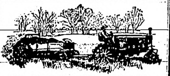
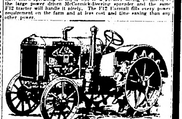
Farm and Implement News



You are not wasting time nor adding to cost by operating a regular spreader with the F12 McCormick-Deering tractor, but if you have much spreading to do, it will be a greater saving to invest in the large power driven McCormick-Deering spreader and the same F12 tractor will handle it nicely. The F12 Farmall fills every power requirement on the farm and at less cost and time saving than any other power.



There is power for every requirement in the McCormick-Deering line of tractors and the W30 has proven a great satisfaction to many farmers in this section on every heavy job of three to four bottom plows, the larger threshers and a tractor to fill the requirements of dependable heavy duty continual service at low cost of operation. There is a sensation of great satisfaction to feel and realize the great power in this great tractor.

McCormick-Deering No. 8 Little Genius Tractor Plow

Real dependable power on the farm is essential and with it the knowledge of all other implements for the farm operations made to fit and work with that same tractor power means a great saving in time and worry. You know that McCormick-Deering power implements fit the McCormick-Deering tractors and work perfectly as one unit without make-shift connections or power drives. This especially is an important consideration to your tractor investment. Not only that, but back of the McCormick-Deering line there is repair service second to none and with it we have the repair parts in stock and service men who are competent and all at your service and command.

Our twenty-five years in business is now history and we begin the march for the golden, or fiftieth anniversary, and while we realize that many of us who are here now will not reach the next twenty-five, but our successors will be here to continue the McCormick-Deering service and no doubt many of the sons and daughters of our trade today will be owners of McCormick-Deering machines we sell today and the service will still be here for them.

It is with sincere pleasure that the
extends its
to
C. Gustafson & Son
on this happy occasion of their
25th ANNIVERSARY

SINCE 1917, or nearly twenty of the twenty-five years Gustafson's have served this territory in the farm machinery business, they have represented our company in the Thief River Falls territory. During these years our relations have been very pleasant. It pleases us to think, of course, that International products, backed by International service, have been a factor in their success. But we also know that they, in turn, have been a factor in our success. Only through representation such as Gustafsons have given us has it been possible for us to maintain our standard of service to buyers of International products.

In reviewing the remarkable record of progress of this father and son partnership extending over a period of twenty-five years, considering the humble beginning in a small frame office and their present quarters in their fine new building, realizing that year in and year out they have served the same group of people, we know that they have operated their business both honorably and efficiently. The steady growth of their business is a most effective testimony to the high regard in which they are held by those whom they have served—satisfied customers.

And so again, in appreciation of the excellent representation they have given us, and in recognition of the service they have provided their community, and the substantial contribution they have made to the progress of that community, we congratulate them, and extend to them our sincere good wishes for their continued success.

FORTY STUDENTS ENTERED IN FREE THROW CONTEST

Event Will End Basketball Season; Prize Will be Awarded to Winners

To conclude the 1935-36 basketball season, a free throw contest is being held in the high school gymnasium. The forty boys who entered have been shooting their first series of fifty baskets this week. The one who reaches the highest percentage out of one hundred free throws will receive, as a prize, a second hand basketball in good condition. Those people who have entered have shot fifty throws, twenty-five in each series.

After each contestant has shot fifty free throws, all those who have made less than thirty baskets will be eliminated immediately.

The tournament will occupy the remainder of this week, and the first part of the coming week.

All of the players on this year's team and the candidates for '36 and '37 have entered, besides other boys. Although only one contestant can win a prize, the free throws provide good practice for each individual player.

Juniors Speak On Vocations

Miss Tandberg has announced that her English III classes have completed their speeches on vocations. The students delivered five to ten minute speeches on some vocation in which they were interested. Some of the vocations chosen include the following: medicine, law, engineering, nursing beauty culture, teaching, journalism, advertising, artistry, dancing, farming, personnel directing, merchandising, construction work, military service, dress designing, social welfare work, undertaking, and stenography.

The speeches were based on research work the individual had done outside of class. The students had one month in which to prepare their topics. The speeches summarized the personal qualifications necessary, education necessary, both in time and expense, and rewards gained.

Miss Tandberg stated the speeches were very well presented and gave the students a new outlook on various fields of work.

MAKING THE ROUNDS

English II students have just finished the study of essays and dramas and are now reviewing the structure of sentences.

The students of Miss Tandberg's English III class are completing their vocational talks this week. They are scheduled to begin their creative writing next week.

INTERCLASS IS OVER FOR SEASON

Outdoor Sports Will Begin When Weather Is Suitable

The winter's season of interclass basketball is over, and each team seems to be fully satisfied with the amount of games played and the results of each.

The senior "A" and the sophomore "A" team are on a par, each losing one game out of the large number which have been played.

Although basketball practice is still carried on in the regular gymnasium periods, the Free Throw Tournament will conclude the 1935-36 basketball season.

As soon as the weather is fit, the regular spring activities of baseball, diamondball, etc. will commence. However, Spring is still in the distance, and a long interval will elapse between the basketball and baseball seasons.

LINCOLN HIGH TIMES

A slumbering "slumber party" or how to stay awake without drinking black coffee:

Now let's settle down right away. It's terribly late. Oh, for cat's sake, get your big feet out of my stomach. It's bad enough that you take ¾ of the bed without having to suffer that agony of having one's food digested wrong. I saw the darlingest dress the other day. It was a navy blue print in a shirtwaist style and it had a navy blue straw hat to go with it. Oh, if only I could have it. Oh, keep still for a while. I've got to teach Sunday school tomorrow and if I can't get to sleep, how can I? It's hard enough to answer some of the questions they ask already, without going unprepared and with no sleep. Well, if you think it's so easy, why don't you try it? Oh, gee, I've simply got to have a drink of water, my mouth is so dry from all that popcorn I ate. Don't you think he's handsome? Why all the girls are just wild about him. Of course, he's a marvelous dancer. That helps a lot. These athletic heroes aren't so much good outside of the basket ball floor or the football field. Some of them need to grow up. Well, let's settle down. Huh? Oh, I am not snoring. I guess I ought to know. How would I know? Well, I can't when I'm awake, so how could I when I was sleeping? Oh, jumping grasshoppers, I forgot to brush my teeth! Come on down with me. Well, I can't sleep if I don't. Don't tickle me, I'll wake the whole house. Is that door opening? Oh, burglars! Help! It's only the dog? Well, how could I know? Here, puppy. Oh, he's so cute, let him come into bed. Here, Nerts, nice puppy. Look, he's licking my face! Well you can have him now. I want to sleep.

EIGHT WEEKS

There are approximately eight weeks until we shall be subjected to the State Board Examinations; only three weeks between now and the Easter recess. For those who have neglected their studies all year, eight weeks does not begin to be enough to carry them over the falling mark, except by the rarest display of luck.

There is that part of the student body who need quite extensive review to straighten the main points in their courses. To these goes the saying that "you are never too old to learn" (if you hurry!) But, with eight weeks, bear down and get white instead of a yellow slip at the end of the year.

For the average and above students, these eight weeks mean more than review; they mean eight weeks of extra-curricular activities. At the same time they keep their studies up to date.

But to the down-in-every-class-student, take the advice of the little bespectacled Englishman in the newsreel and "study, study, yes and again—study!"

Freshmen Themes

Recently the English I classes completed work on "Ivanhoe." Miss Olson, English I instructor, has submitted three themes written about this novel. These three characteristic themes were written by Dolores Froseth, Leona Brattland, and Wesley Burrell. One will be printed this week, the remaining will be printed the following week.

The Jewess, Rebecca

Rebecca, the daughter of the rich Jew, Isaac of York, was as beautiful in her dark, Oriental fashion as the proudest ladies of England. Yet, because she was a Jewess, she was scorned and scoffed at by these women, who secretly envied her loveliness. Although Rebecca had brilliant jewels and beautiful, richly embroidered clothes, she was quite as lovely when they were taken from her at Templestowe, and she had no other ornament save her beautiful hair.

Rebecca's lustrous dark eyes, sable tresses, and pearly teeth brought her many admirers, among whom were Prince John of England and Brian de Bois Guilbert, who captured her, brought her to a friend's castle, and later to Templestowe, the mansion of the Knights of that Order. Here Rebecca was accused of sorcery by the Grand Master, but still she remained courageous and trusted in God to send her a champion to defend her on the field of battle. Ivanhoe received a message from her father, Isaac, and hastened to the castle to act as her champion, where he defeated Bois Guilbert and set Rebecca free.

Formerly, Rebecca had shown her kindness by caring for the wounds that Ivanhoe had received at the Tournament of Ashby. Acting as his handmaiden and being constantly near him, Rebecca was led to love Ivanhoe, which she earnestly tries to conceal. Ivanhoe, also, gazes rapturously at the beautiful features of Rebecca, but she did not hesitate to tell him of her religion, that he might not retain any feelings for a woman of so different a class. Later, after Ivanhoe and Rowena were married, Rebecca went to Rowena and begged her to give Ivanhoe her farewell, for she was going to leave England. Upon parting, Rebecca presents Rowena with a beautiful gift and hastens away, lest she should betray more than she would of her feeling for Ivanhoe. While Rebecca was giving her services to the sick and hungry, Ivanhoe would often think of her—more than Rowena, if she knew, would have approved.

ETIQUETTE

Personality is an asset that every person may enjoy no matter if he is young or old, boorish or pleasing.

Some main points that are necessary in having a pleasing personality are a favorable appearance, a pleasing voice, and a good vocabulary.

Appearance is the most important feature of your personality. Although a person does not know, unless he has a chance to converse with you, what your speech is like, he does know whether you are or are not pleasing to the eye.

Let us next consider the voice. Is your voice loud, harsh, or coarse—in other words, is it indicative of a lack of refinement? No one needs to have a voice such as that. If you have, do not sit and let it slide at that but do a little gymnastic work with your throat, tongue, jaw, and the lips.

Speech is also a very essential factor concerning your personality. If you use such words as "yeah" for "yes"; "O.K." for "all right"; "sure" for "yes"; "kid" for "child"; "gets my goat" for "annoys me," your personality will be reduced to the minimum.

I am sure that you, as well as I, do not think a boaster has a pleasing personality. It is boring for anyone to listen to anyone who says I did this or I did that or still I am going to do this.

How about a person who sulks? Such a person adds discomfort to anyone near him. So when I say, "Let such a person go live on an island all by himself and then his silence will bother only the frogs and the crickets," I am almost certain that you will agree with me.

The person who is successful in obtaining this thing called "personality" will no doubt enjoy the friendship of people both in the business and social world.

Hi Ho's Maneuvers

"I have burned paper prayers before statues of our gods," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown. "They have not brought direct response from the gods, but the publicity of my rites have assisted me to advantageous relations with those who manufacture the paper."

Miss Helquist's Biology class is studying the subject of "Alcohol." After studying all the pamphlets and reference work in our library, the class wrote plays, essays, stories, or poems. Five plays were submitted. Of these, Flora Schroeder's play was chosen the best. Members of the class will enact the play on Friday.

Mr. Chalmer's Biology class began to study the "Nature and Effects of Alcohol" this week.

GYM GEMS

Gym "josies" may no longer be twitted about "panty-waist" color teams—"pinks and oranges," etc. They are practicing up for the harder and more spirited battles which result from loyalty to classes—be it frosh, soph, or juniors. Captains for the class tournament beginning this week are as follows: frosh—Bernadette Mulry; sophs—Mary Chommie; and juniors, Marian Green. They're good "josies," all.

Heard faint whisperings, too, that fighting seventh and eighth grade teams are being groomed for future tussle with our lowly frosh. What you say, "josies"—who we rootin' for? Shall we stick to the clan? Right! But there'll come a day for these seventh and eighth graders!

In order to give fans another good basket ball game arrangements were completed early in the week to play the Modern Woodmen team on Thursday. The high school boys were the favorites and took the game by a close score.

Last Friday night Mr. Ripple took his basket ball squad to see the first two games of the regional tournament at Bemidji. The trip was made by bus, and, since the boys did not need all the room, the faculty and a few of the more ardent fans found it possible to make the trip with them. All enjoyed the trip greatly, especially the boys for whom this was the "wind-up" of the basket ball season. —Mr. Williams who had temporarily taken Mr. Grimsrud's place returned to Montevideo the earlier part of the week. —The schoolboard met Friday afternoon in Mr. Ripple's office in regular session and transacted the regular business. In addition to this it reelected all teachers for the coming school year.

The school paper made its regular "six weekly" appearance on Wednesday of last week. It had a plain but attractive cover, which was worked out by Margaret Saum, one of the art editors. In addition to this it carried the usual snappy gossipy personal item, which only the student body and those "in the know" can enjoy. Walter Longerian, the regular columnist, added to this interest by writing of this and that. The paper as is customary at this time featured the basket ball tournaments. In a special write-up by Jack Ripple the whole basket ball season was revived. —The senior class play "Campus Quarantine" is in rehearsal. That will be a comedy the community can enjoy. Watch for the date. —Since Mr. Ohnstad is sophomore class adviser and also band leader the first appearance of the band in assembly was on the sophomore program. Mr. Ohnstad has done well with the band and they all performed very creditably. The band is entitled to all co-operation the student body can give it.

WPA WORKERS TO BE SHIFTED TO OTHER AGENCIES

Rolls to be Reduced Between Now and June 30, Says Christgau

Transfer of approximately 18,000 WPA workers to work projects of other federal agencies beginning operations in the state this spring is ordered in a letter from Harry L. Hopkins to Victor Christgau, state WPA administrator.

Mr. Christgau said the reduction in the WPA rolls will be made gradually between now and June 30. The WPA employment figure at present is approximately 65,000. It will be reduced to 46,600 under the order from Washington.

In establishing the reduced quota for Minnesota, which is in line with the 700,000 nation-wide slash in WPA employment, consideration was given to such factors as seasonal employment, the opening of Spring farm work and jobs available in other phases of the work program, the letter from Mr. Hopkins states.

The reduced quotas for each of the nine WPA districts in Minnesota are now being prepared, Mr. Christgau said, and will be made on a basis of efficiency and relative need of the individual workers. Discrimination on any basis—personal, political or otherwise—will not be tolerated, he declared.

BACK TAXES MAY BE PAID UNDER TEN YEAR PLAN

State Taxpayers Group Explains Provisions of New State Law

Delinquent taxpayers who had given up hope of being able to redeem their property will find in the new "installment payment plan", passed at the recent special legislative session, a "lifeline" that might save them, according to a statement from the Minnesota Taxpayers association.

Under the new law, the taxpayer can enter into a contract with the state to refinance his old taxes for a period of ten years, under the following plan:

Pay one-tenth of the back taxes each year for ten years.

Pay all current taxes each year during that period.

The delinquent must make a contract for this kind of settlement before November 1, 1937, but not thereafter.

The agreement, if strictly adhered for ten years, would cancel all penalties and accumulated interest now due on back taxes. This would cancel the confessed judgment and original judgments.

The purpose of the new law is to bring in these outstanding delinquencies, and to encourage the taxpayer to pay up his old account. The delinquent can regain title to his land; he can clean up all these back taxes by systematically dividing the payments over a long period, and he will have a smaller amount to pay because of the cancellation of all accumulated penalties.

Should a large percentage of taxpayers take advantage of the leniency offered in this law is conceivably would help to bring down current tax levies, since the total normal delinquency would be materially reduced in the state, the Minnesota Taxpayers Association points out.

If the law is not a success, it likely will be because no provision was made to acquaint the public with the provisions of the law, and thus delinquents might not be informed of the matter. Public officials, the press, and county taxpayers' associations have an opportunity here to assist in bringing the matter to the attention of the public, to help the delinquents and to get the benefit that would come if all these old bills were paid up, the state association points out.

Helping Mothers to Cut Down On Family's Colds

Unique Formula for Nose and Throat Helps to Prevent Colds—And to Throw Off Head Colds at the Start.

SOON CLEARS "STUFFY HEAD"

Mothers are so often worried about their families' colds that they find special comfort in this unique aid for preventing colds —Vicks Va-tro-nol.

Especially designed for nose and upper throat, where most colds start, Va-tro-nol stimulates the functions provided by Nature—in the nose—to prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in the early stages.

Used in time—at the first sniffle, sneeze or nasal irritation—just a few drops up each nostril—Va-tro-nol helps to avoid many colds.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh) Va-tro-nol spreads through the nasal passages—reduces swollen membranes—clears clogging mucus—brings comforting relief.

A Practical Guide for Mothers

Each year, more and more families are being helped to fewer colds, shorter colds and milder colds by following Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. Vicks Plan has been clinically tested by practicing physicians, and further proved in everyday home use throughout the country. Full details of the Plan come in each package of Vicks Va-tro-nol.

600 PRESENT AT DISTRICT F.[illegible] MEET MONDAY

Biennial Farm-Labor Convention at Erskine Is Harmonious

P. HARRIS ON STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Resolution Criticizes Present Minnesota Old-Age Pension Law

The biennial ninth district Farmer-Labor convention at Erskine Monday was attended by upwards of 600 party members from 14 of the 15 counties in the congressional district, and was one of the most harmonious in spirit which the party has had. Lake of the Woods county was the only county not represented.

The Rev. John Flint of Underwood was elected district chairman and George Hagen of Crookston was elected district secretary succeeding H. A. Bridgeman of Bemidji and H. O. Berve of this city, respectively. Paul Harris of Thief River Falls and Frank Higgins of Clay county were elected to the state central committee succeeding A. N. Landby and Martin Dunn.

Dissatisfaction with the present old age pension law in the state; opposition to the sales tax and demands for election of state legislators with party designation were among the convention sentiments expressed in a series of resolutions, according to the Crookston Times.

The convention commended the public service records of Senator Shipstead, Senator Benson, Congressman Buckler, Governor Olson, Attorney General Peterson, Lt. Governor Peterson, Charles Mann, and Knud Wefald.

Governmental control of munitions manufacture was recommended, as was Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota for the munitions investigation.

Retention of the free school textbook plank in the 1936 platform of the party was urged. The convention memorialized congress to pass adequate federal old age pension legislation. It advocated that state departments patronize cooperatives wherever possible.

The convention opposed passage of the Guffey-Dockweiler bill providing for the repeal of the existing federal taxes on cocoanut oil; passed a resolution of appreciation and confidence for Congressman Buckler, and a resolution of thanks to the people of Erskine for the use of the high school auditorium.

Congress was urged to pass the Frazier-Lemke farm finance bill; organization of producer-consumer cooperatives was urged and increased activity throughout the district to insure successful elections was asked.

The resolution opposing the present old-age pension system said: "We express our dissatisfaction with the old age pension law as passed by the reactionary controlled Minnesota legislature at the special session as not being based upon humanitarian principles and inadequate to care for the indigent aged in a respectable manner.

LOCAL CREAMERY SHOWS BIG GAIN FOR TWO MONTHS

Output of Butter Increases More Than 50 Per Cent for Period

An increase of more than fifty per cent in the amount of butter manufactured by the Thief River Falls cooperative creamery was recorded for the first two months of the year compared to the corresponding period of 1935, G. S. Bergland, manager, announced today.

For January last year and this year the figures on output were respectively 25,246 and 37,070 pounds, while the figures for February were 27,317 and 43,859 pounds, making a total for the two months in 1935 of 52,563 pounds and for the corresponding period this year 80,929 pounds. The sharp gain is particularly impressive in view of the extremely severe weather that prevailed during the period this winter.

The monthly settlement price for butterfat in January and February was 37 and 32 cents, Mr. Bergland reported.

MERCURY SLUMPS TO 8 ABOVE AFTER BELATED BLIZZARD

Highways Blocked by Heavy Snowfall Arriving Tuesday

This section was treated to a return of winter weather Tuesday when a veritable blizzard brought a substantial layer of wet snow that was heaped into drifts by a stiff wind, tieing up highway traffic for the day. Trunk routes were opened again Wednesday, but most other roads are blocked. Despite the storm that raged in North Dakota, the Soo Wheat Line trains Tuesday and Wednesday managed to complete their runs, local train dispatchers reported.

Following the storm the mercury dropped yesterday morning to a low point of 8 above zero. The high mark for the week was set Sunday afternoon when the temperature mounted to 45 above, the bright sun making heavy inroads on the snow.

With a heavy blanket still covering the fields, indications are that seeding operations in this area will be delayed to a date substantially later than in average years.

TOWNSEND CLUB WILL MEET FRIDAY EVENING

A meeting of the Townsend old-age revolving pension club will be held Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the Civic and Commerce association rooms in the Auditorium, Frank Dudley, president, announced today.

Warns Motorists Not to Park in Middle of Street

Police Chief A. B. Stenberg today issued a warning to local motorists not to park their cars near the middle of the street and thus block traffic so that passing cars will get stalled in the deep snow. While only warnings have been issued to date, Chief Stenberg indicated that arrests will be in order if the practice is continued.

More Than 1,500 Attend Dedication and 25th Anniversary Event

The three-day joint observance by C. Gustafson & Son of the completion of a quarter of a century in business here and the dedication of the new building completed last fall reached a climax Saturday when more than 1,500 persons attended the elaborate program prepared for the occasion and inspected the building during the afternoon.

Following a group of selections by the high school band under the direction of S. P. Orwoll, Chairman Morris Bye introduced C. D. Gustafson, who welcomed the large gathering seated in the commodious show room, after which brief dedicatory addresses were given by Rev. George Peterson, Rev. J. B. Smith and Rev. E. A. Cooke. In his talk Reverend Cooke extended greetings to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gustafson, to whom he paid tribute as pioneers, and to their son Dave who, he said, is following in their tradition. He added that the institution founded by them is properly dedicated to the service of the community.

C. H. Moore, assistant manager of the Grand Forks branch of the International Harvester company, brought greetings from his organization. Mayor W. W. Prichard had just begun speaking in tribute to the Gustafsons when the program was interrupted by the influx of a large delegation of local businessmen headed by a German band, and, under the leadership of Paul Lundgren, the visitors took over the program for a few minutes to contribute their bit of the day's festivities, including selections by the Land O'Lakes quartet and brief remarks by W. L. Carlisle, president of the Civic and Commerce association; Gorman Thompson, president of the Junior C. and C. group; Frank Rinkel, representing local automobile dealers; B. O. Norby, speaking for the cooperative institutions; and Probate Judge Andrew Bottelson, speaking in behalf of old friends of the Gustafson family. Dave Gustafson responded with an expression of appreciation.

Representing the farmer patrons of the company, Hans Anton, V. C. Noper and Gust Hillyer spoke briefly, following which Senator E. L. Tungseth gave a brief address, citing the high offices held by C. D. Gustafson in state and national organizations of implement dealers. Mr. Gustafson closed the program by introducing his parents, his sister Miss Hannah and members of the large staff of employes, after which lunch was served to the large gathering.

Meyer Bernstein, sales manager of the Minnesota state prison industries, was the principal speaker on the Thursday afternoon program at which W. E. Dahlquist, presided. Mr. Bernstein spoke of the close relationship that has existed between his organization and Gustafsons since 1911, when the local firm first became a patron. After paying his respects to the proprietors of the company here, he described the operation of the state prison industries and explained some of the problems those at the head of the institution have had to contend with.

In addition to the showing of entertaining and instructive talking motion pictures, the Thursday and Friday afternoon programs included talks by Lee Bryant, sales promotion manager of the Chrysler corporation; Mr. Anderson of Fargo, representing the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company; O. F. Olson, fieldman for the American Agricultural Chemical company, and a group of representatives of the Grand Forks branch of the International Harvester company, including C. H. Moore, assistant manager, and Sig Quammen, Fred Bjornson and W. C. Carroll.

V. C. Noper Supplies Another Record Egg to Times Window Display

V. C. Noper, well-known local farmer-auctioneer, is the owner of a pullet concerning which he said Saturday that when she cackles he doesn't know whether she is laying or lying. He said that if her cackle is uttered to announce the arrival of an egg, she was guilty of at least a half-truth one day last week. In proof of his statement he brought in a tiny egg laid by her which weighs only half an ounce and measures but one and one-fourth inches in length. While Mr. Noper admitted that his contribution wasn't as imposing as the four-ounce White Leghorn egg included in the Times "Can You Beat It" display, he insists that his pullet made as loud a cackle as the Leghorns when she laid it.

Capacity Audience is Present at Style Show

Eight Stores Present Styles That Will be Popular This Spring

Forty attractive models representing eight local stores displayed the latest in spring fashions to a capacity audience at the style show Thursday evening in connection with the spring exposition in the Auditorium. Musical background was furnished by Abbie Andrews and his orchestra of Fargo and Ben Smith of Minneapolis acted as master of ceremonies. The pages were Roberta Dailey and Lorraine Haken.

An effective acrobatic dance number was given by Miss Elaine Wenner, local dancing instructor, and a toe dance was given by Lois Ann Peterson, while Connie Nelson, lyric soprano of Minneapolis sang several popular songs. The orchestra played from the stage in front of which was a picket fence covered with an abundance of spring flowers. The models entered through a gate in the center and walked around a triangular runway built out from the stage.

A wide variety of women's suits were shown, with full length swagger coats, the very mannish coat or the finger-tip length swagger. Grey and brown were the predominating colors, with blue and brighter shades also being shown. The dresses modeled included silks and crepes in plain colors and prints. A number of the ever-popular knit dresses for travel and street wear were shown by several of the stores. No evening dresses were modeled this year. Both dresses and suits were shorter in length as is the prevailing style this season.

The very young juveniles modeled crisp cotton frocks, very short, with matching anklets, while the older girls wore youthful silk dresses. Among the coats worn was a Shirley Temple model with hat to match.

The latest spring styles in dress and business suits and top coats were modeled by the men. The stores represented in the show were: B and B Style Shop, Lelos Popular Price store, Montgomery Ward and company, Oen Mercantile company, J. C. Penney company, Lieberman's, Wingers and the Hosterie.

CITY OFFICIALS WILL MEET WITH SERA IN ST. PAUL

To Seek to Dispose of Bills Dating Back to CCC Camp in 1934

A group of bills which have been frequently presented to the city council for payment in connection with the construction of the camp on the Red Lake reservation near Red Lake river in 1934 for the use of the Civilian Conservation Corps were again brought up for consideration at an adjourned meeting of the council Friday evening.

In order to dispose finally of the claims, which council members maintain were not properly authorized by the city authorities, it was decided to arrange a conference late this month in St. Paul with state emergency relief administration officials, under whose auspices the work of deepening the river channel was carried out by the CCC workers. Designated to go to St. Paul were Mayor W. W. Prichard; Carl Christofferson, chairman of the council finance committee; City Attorney Theodore Quale; and State Senator E. L. Tungseth.

The council at its session also took action to call for bids on materials needed for completion of the enclosed skating rink, including lumber, roofing, flooring and heating equipment. The official notice appears elsewhere in this issue of the Times. A permit also was granted to William Gilbertson to remodel the store building on Main av. Eighth st. into a service station and living quarters.

APPLICATIONS FOR U. S. SEED LOANS BEING TAKEN HERE

County Agent's Office Designated to Receive Loan Requests

The County Agent's Office has been designated to receive federal seed loan applications again this year, it was announced this week. Loans may be obtained for the purchase of the following seed: Ceres and Marquis wheat, durum wheat, barley, flax and potatoes. Seed loan funds are not available for the purchase of alfalfa, sweet clover, corn or other forage crop seeds. The maximum amount available to one applicant is $200.

In order to save time, an applicant should have a list of the seed he will need to plant his crop acres, and the correct legal description of all the land he will farm in 1936. Waivers are required from all tenants. Tenants should have with them at the time of making the application the name and address of their landlords so that waivers can be sent out without delay, County Agent R. M. Douglass said.

Filing fees for individuals receiving seed loans will be paid by them directly to the register of deeds in the county where the land on which the seed is to be planted is located.

A county committee has been appointed to approve or disapprove all applications. All approved applications will be submitted by the district fieldman, O. T. Johnson of Warren, to the state office.

VAUDEVILLE PROGRAM WAS OF HIGH QUALITY

Many Visitors Inspect New Cars and Household Appliances

Acclaimed as one of the most successful events of its kind on record, the ninth annual automobile show and spring exposition came to an end at the Auditorium Saturday night after attracting large crowds each of the three days it was in progress. While, owing to the blocked condition of the side roads the attendance did not reach the record set last year, Ward W. Long, general chairman, indicated that the local Legion post, which sponsored the event, would net a substantial profit.

A capacity audience witnessed the style show staged by eight local stores Thursday, the opening night, and enjoyed the presentation by forty attractive models of the latest spring modes for women, men and children. Details of the program are given elsewhere in this issue.

The vaudeville program Friday and Saturday evening was acclaimed by those who witnessed it as the best in recent years. Outstanding numbers were those presented by Marie Early and her troupe of juvenile dancers of Fargo, and Lester Bodie, an unusually skillful juggler.

The automobile exhibits on the main floor of the Auditorium and the displays of household appliances and other items in the basement were well attended during the three days the exposition was in progress.

H. R. Searles, University Farm extension specialist, discussed dairy feeding and breeding problems at meetings held at Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire on March 17th and 18th.

Mr. Searles pointed out that in the future, dairymen will have to pay closer attention to their cost of production. Cost of production may be decreased by higher individual production which is based on better feeding and breeding practices.

The need of using high quality roughage and more of it, was emphasized. To meet the pasture needs of late July and August, Mr. Searles suggested early cutting of sweet clover and pasturing of second growth, and planting of special crops, such as, sudan grass.

The need of using proven sires and the function of the Bull Association in producing them was discussed at length. For the benefit of some that were interested, Mr. Searles discussed principles of genetics involved in breeding for milk production.

W. C. T. U. News Notes

In some places there seems to be the impression that the effects of alcoholic drinks is a "controversial" subject,—that is, that there is a difference of opinion as to the "effects", and also as to whether the subject should come into the schools. These facts are presented for your consideration:

Between 1882 and 1902 all states passed laws making mandatory in schools instruction showing the effects of alcohol upon the human mind and body. This includes private and parochial schools as well as those schools supported wholly or in part by public money. The United States Department of Justice says: "Education as to the effects of all narcotics is essential to the welfare of the future citizens."

In 1918 the resolutions of the American Medical Association contained: "Whereas, We believe that the use of alcohol is detrimental to the human economy; and its use in therapeutics as a tonic or a stimulant or for food has no scientific value; Therefore Be It Resolved, That the American Medical Association is opposed to the use of alcohol as a beverage; and Be It further Resolved, That the use of alcohol as a therapeutic agent should be further discouraged."

Education Leaders Urge Study

In 1925 a Memorial to Educators, signed by more than 300 national and state leaders interested in the education of youth to sobriety, included these words: "Both the alcohol and the drug problems are primarily youth problems. Youth has a right to knowledge of these modern facts, especially as they affect questions of modern industry and transportation, physical fitness, social hygiene, and public welfare with which the youth of today will soon be concerned."

The National Congress of Parents and Teachers "urges the study of the effects of alcohol and narcotics based upon the scientific facts."

Up to as late as 1930 the National Education Association included in its resolutions: "The National Education Association urges all teachers to emphasize the evil effects of alcoholic drinks, tobacco and other narcotics upon the human organism . . . and pledges its support to an active educational campaign in the schools" and urges "complete and specific instruction in schools regarding the effects of alcohol and other narcotics on the human body and on the social organization."

In 1930 the White House Conference stated: "Every child leaving high school should have knowledge of the effects of alcohol, tobacco and other narcotics . . . upon the human organism and upon society.

IS IT TO BE WONDERED AT?

President Roosevelt seems to be trying to shift the blame for unemployment to industry. He says industry will have to take up the slack in employment before there can be recovery. That being the case, it would seem fitting and proper that business should be encouraged. A few years ago he stated that one of the fundamentals of recovery was sound government and a balanced budget. Perhaps if he would try balancing the budget and give business some assurance that it will not be taxed out of existence he might get the results we all hope for.

The history of the present administration, while tragic now, will make interesting reading for the next generation. They were going to straighten things out in a hurry by "priming the pump." The President now admits his pump priming experiment failed to produce a steady flow of business. Then we were going to drink ourselves rich and for a while we had long stories about the millions who had gone back to work in order that we might have beer and later hard liquor. But the number of unemployed still remains about the same. Monkeying with the gold standard was another sure cure. And then we went out to find prosperity by boosting the price of silver. And now they don't seem to want to talk about gold and silver. They are quiet, too, about the forests on the prairies, although this great venture didn't get out of the classrooms and so it cost only a few millions.

These are only a few of the absurdities. When you consider all that has happened during these three years, is it to be wondered at that business lacks confidence and private initiative in many fields of commercial activity is paralized?

STRENGTHEN THE OPPOSITION

We can see no good reason for worrying about who the Republican candidate for President is going to be. Unless something unforeseen happens, he isn't even going to come close to being elected no matter who he may be. Too many votes, bought and paid for, are already stacked against him to give him more than an outside chance. And furthermore, from a strictly party standpoint, it would be a mistake to elect a Republican this year. For one thing, a Republican president would still have a Democratic congress to contend with and would be just as ineffective as Wilson and Hoover were in the last two years of their administrations. And for another thing the next president will have to be more of a tax collector than a tax spender, and collectors are never as popular as spenders.

It seems to us that the most that can be hoped for in the coming election is the election of a sufficient number of Republican congressmen and senators to at least provide reasonable restraint to the party in power. It isn't a healthy condition of government when the dominating party is so strong that the minority group is completely muzzled. That is the condition that prevails at the present time and the result is that American Democracy already has degenerated into a dictatorship. We now have government by a bureaucracy that has so firmly intrenched itself through public spending that it cannot be and will not be displaced until the inevitable day of reckoning can no longer be postponed.

The American people already pay out more money for taxes than they do for food. Just how much more of a burden they will accept before they begin to realize they have been duped is hard to say. The revolt will not come this year because the additional burden of taxes necessary to meet the steadily increasing debt will be postponed until after election day. In the meantime the only thing that can be accomplished is to strengthen the opposition in congress and at least provide a reasonable restraint on the spenders who are now wasting the public funds.

The Townsend plan would provide $200 a month for those who have passed the sixty mark. Down in Wisconsin they are talking up an idea that the government should issue a $20,000 twenty year bond to each new born baby on the theory that each individual should have that amount of money to start out in life with when they reach the age of twenty. Another plan, said to have its origin in the fertile mind of a Minnesota politician, would give all young people between the ages of eighteen and twenty-five a present of fifteen dollars a week from the government. Now if someone will figure out an easy way for those who are not yet sixty, but are older than twenty-five, to pay for their pork chops, everyone should be happy. The prize scheme however, in this era of dizzy ideas, comes from the newly organized Veterans of Future Wars, who are asking for immediate payment of the bonus they might have coming in 1965 providing there is a war between now and then.

Those who are discouraged by the backwardness of the season should remember that just a little over a month ago thirty degrees below zero was balmy weather. If we make as much progress toward summer in the next thirty days as we have in the thirty that have passed, there will be little reason to complain about the cold.

While it is too early to start complaining about a late Spring, the next week or ten days will have to work a rapid transformation of the scenery hereabouts if early April is to classify as normal. Old timers expect the ice to go out of the river here about the tenth of the month. Under normal conditions it thaws out. This year, with the rush of water that is expected, it may wash out before that date but it will take a lot of hot weather to melt the more than three feet of ice that still covers the pond. And if it does wash out there is some danger of damage being done. Under normal conditions the bridges above the dam hold the ice back. But conditions this year probably will not be normal and during the next two weeks it will be interesting to observe the actions of the river.

We haven't heard any great amount of grumbling because of the heavy taxes people have had to pay on the income derived from the chain letters which were so popular a year ago.

It does seem rather strange that after three years of close contact with the problem President Roosevelt does not even now know how many people are unemployed in the country.

Several busy business men of the city are being urged to lay aside their regular chores and devote their time to digging up material for a history of this community to be written by a group of WPA writers. Which causes one to wonder just who was supposed to be put to work by this project.

NEED A "LIBERAL" SHOW IT?
(Owatonna Journal Chronicle)

There seems to be two kinds of liberalism, that type which is liberal in that it gives room to the opinions and demands of others and grants progressivism in government and economics and that kind whose chief claim to liberalism is that it is liberal with the people's money. And too many of the latter are fully convinced that they are the former, or at least are trying to "put over" that idea. Too many of the latter are liberals only for the purpose of getting votes and that liberalism is really only liberality in squandering and wasting, for the benefit of a few, that which belongs to the many, the public treasury.

Definite ideas on that subject are held by Governor Alf Landon, of Kansas, the state which is rapidly acquiring wider fame because it has balanced its budget; because, it makes the least demands on its taxpayers of any state in the union and yet has been able to establish a real record of liberalism despite the failure of its leaders to show the liberality with the people's money that has been shown in other states. Minnesota in particular, and in Washington. And they seem to be sound, reasonable ideas, with their foundation based firmly on common sense. Says Landon:

"Unfortunately, now as always, there are people today calling themselves liberal who regard any suggestion of economy as reactionary. They seem to think willingness to throw people's money around without any consideration of value received is a peculiar sign of a pure heart. They show too little consideration for the toil which millions of American men and women will have to undergo in order to pay off the debt so gaily incurred. Already the average family spends one-fourth of its income for taxes—whether the family knows it or not. It will take much more than that to pay the bill which political wasters have contracted in the American people's name. Those in power responsible for this reckless extravagance are not liberals. They are more nearly the most benighted reactionaries."

OVERPAID MANY TIMES
(Lakefield Clarion)

There are still no bargain prices offered on war. To date the Ethiopian mess has cost the Italian government well nigh onto $500,000,000 and thousands of lives. If they succeeded in capturing and holding the whole of the little African country, they have overpaid for it many times already.

THE ANSWER RUNS
(Milan Standard)

Let us admit that the old and oft repeated claim that prosperity will not return before confidence has been restored sounds out of tune with the times. It has been repeated so often that it has lost its appeal. The new deal is doing things differently now. Still, it seems funny that there should be an abundance of idle money in the banks waiting for borrowers. Why don't they hire some of that money and start the wheels of business going? The answer runs something like this: unbalanced budget, enormous government expenditures, high taxes, tax free bonds, government competition in business, fear of inflation, etc.

FREE SPEECH—SPRING COMING
(Monticello Times)

One of the first things that goes out when a dictator comes in is free speech and a free press. It is strange that a dictator who comes into being obviously to combat tyranny is often the most tyrannical type of ruler. This same rule applies not only to national affairs but also to affairs of the state, county and the small units. It is not confined to political organizations either but often is found in local organizations that are considered non-political.

Whether Roosevelt is to be defeated or not is in the lap of the Gods. But the sympathy of the nation should go to the man who succeeds him. That man, whoever he is, is going to have a tough job. Devising the taxes to pay the bills, firing the hundreds of thousands of coffee coolers who bog down the pay rolls, getting the government out of business, driving out the brain trusters and the visionaries who like barnacles have attached themselves to the ship of state, and in general putting the brakes on the national joy ride of the past three years, is going to call for something more than a statesman. He will pretty nearly have to qualify as a second Messiah.—Long Prairie Leader.

Those people who are worrying about how the World war veterans will spend their bonuses should remember that veterans are now business men, doctors, dentists, lawyers, farmers, clerks, laborers, and there is no reason to believe that they are different from any other group of people. As such, they will spend their money like any other people would—in paying off debts, buying clothes, improving homes, buying cars, and a thousand and one ways that people usually invest money.—Dassel Dispatch.

Congress votes appropriations by the billion, with a lavish hand and with beautiful unanimity, but when even the President begins to get scared at the mountainous debt that is being piled up and suggests that some taxes be levied to partly meet the expenditures, then congress starts to squeal and buck. They fear to vote taxes in an election year, which is a sad commentary on the opinion which congressmen must hold regarding the intelligence of the electorate. Doesn't congress know that the people know that the spending spree will have to be paid for?—Morris Tribune.

State Conservation Body to Collect Fees From Users of Parks

The Minnesota conservation commission at its regular meeting last week passed a resolution authorizing small fees to be charged for the use of state parks.

The Commission is authorized to charge fees by a law passed in 1935. The action was taken because members of the Commission felt that tax funds should not be expended for maintaining such "special privileges".

A charge of 25 cents per day for parking on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays from May 17 to October 1 will be made in the following state parks: Itasca, Scenic, Jay Cooke, Sibley, Alexander Ramsey, Interstate, Gooseberry Falls, Camden, Whitewater, Fort Ridgely.

A further charge of 25 cents per day for camping privileges and for the use of privately-owned boats used on lakes within state parks may also be made, but no person will be charged more than a total of 25 cents per day.

Overnight cabins will be rented by the state at Itasca and Scenic parks for not to exceed two days continuous stay at a minimum charge of $2.50 per day for one or two persons, $3.50 for three persons, and $4 per day for four or more persons. Cabins at Interstate park will be rented at $2 per day.

All fees collected will be used for the maintenance and operation of state parks. The commission adopted a comprehensive game management policy submitted by Gustav Swanson, biologist of the division of game and fish.

Funeral Services Tuesday for Miss Minnie Ortloff

Funeral services will be held Tuesday, March 31, at 1:30 at the Erickson and Lund Funeral Home for Miss Minnie Ortloff who passed away at the home of her brother, Herman Ortloff, at St. Hilaire. The services will be conducted by Rev. R. M. Cory.

Minnie Ortloff was born in 1891 in Sibley county and the following year with her family moved to Sanders township in Pennington county. In 1912 she moved to St. Hilaire where she had since lived.

Surviving are two sisters and five brothers; Mrs. Albert Severson of this city and Mrs. Fred Steinhauer of Holt; Herman, Paul and Andrew of St. Hilaire; Harry of Red Lake Falls and Otto of Paynesville. Her parents and one sister and two brothers preceded her in death.

Farm Tax Attachments in Marshall Dismissed

Attachment proceedings for the collections of rent in payment of delinquent taxes on all rural lands in Marshall county will be dismissed before April 1 as a result of a decision by the county board at its March session, according to A. A. Trost, county attorney. As a result of the action, the county will not rent delinquent tax lands this season. The attachments will continue on rented properties where collections for 1935 rentals have not been completed, said Mr. Trost. The attachment proceedings will also continue for village properties.

High School Faculty Men at Crookston Meeting

In attendance Wednesday evening at a joint meeting of schoolmasters' clubs of Districts 20 and 21 at Crookston were Supt. Morris Bye, High School Principal W. G. Claffy, C. W. Pope and Kyle Montague. The program at Hotel Crookston included an address by T. J. Berning, head of the bureau of statistics of the state department of education, and a group of numbers by the Central high school girls' glee club under the direction of E. W. Thorson.

BOTTLES RIDE ON RUNNING BOARD OF CAR 23 MILES

Starbuck.—A point for the careful driving of women was scored recently when two empty oil bottles rode on the running board of a car a distance of 23 miles without falling off, the driver being Miss Louise Tharaldson. S. O. Koland filled the crank case of her car at Starbuck, forgetting to take off the two empty bottles from the running board. Miss Tharaldson also did not notice the bottles and drove to Hancock, 23 miles away, the bottles falling to the ground when she opened the door to get out.

GAME VIOLATOR FINED $250, GIVEN 90 DAYS

One of the most severe penalties for game law violation on record was imposed last week when Fred Kershaw of Ely was fined $250 and sentenced to 90 days in jail for illegal possession of beaver pelts. When Warden F. E. Peil and Byron Carlson arrested Kershaw on December 2, 1935, hides of 17 beaver, nine muskrats, three skunks, two weasels, one mink, and one crossfox were found in his possession. Kershaw appealed his case to district court and a jury found him guilty.

An hysterical member of Congress last week introduced a bill providing a round billion dollars for flood relief. Somebody ought to remind those boys that there are smaller fractions than a billion.

What's in a name? John Poor is a relief worker in Benton county.

Short skirts are coming back. The girls evidently want freedom of the knees, comments Billy Noonan. And the men, Billy, will get freedom of the sees.

In its search for new things to tax, the administration is overlooking the income of federal employes.

Now the state game wardens have formed a union, and if they go on strike when the next hunting season opens it will be a break for the game hogs.

Isn't it odd how well Minnesota has got along so far this year without a governor to attend to its affairs?

The New Deal has chloroformed the depression, says the editor of a Democratic weekly. And when the fumes wear off, presumably, the public will be left with a dizzy feeling.

A Polk county township has set a minimum license fee of $1,000 for barn dances. Evidently barn dances aren't in good standing down that way.

Geese are heading north already. That must be why they are called geese.

The city of Fergus Falls is playing an April Fools day trick on its relief clients, having ordered them to stop driving their cars on that day.

They call them baby bonds, says the Minneota Mascot, because the babies of the present generation some day will have to pay for them.

Applications for Local Truck Lines Are Denied

Two applications for motor freight transport routes between Crookston and Thief River Falls were denied Wednesday of last week by the state railroad and warehouse commission in St. Paul. It was held that adequate service in this territory is being given by the Great Northern and Soo Line railways, and by other trucking companies. The applications denied were those submitted by the Janke Transfer line and the Elsholtz Transportation company.

NO LOSS IN CHIMNEY FIRE TUESDAY EVENING

The fire department was summoned Tuesday evening to the Clarence Erickson residence at 114 LaBree av. S., where a chimney fire developed. No damage resulted from the blaze.

Looking Backward

TEN YEARS AGO
From the Times of April 1, 1926

Morris Bye, for three years principal of Lincoln high school, was advanced by the board of education to the post of superintendent of schools succeeding I. T. Simley, who next fall will head the South St. Paul school system.—Ole Tharaldson of Erie won first prize in an old-time fiddlers' contest conducted at the Lyceum theatre.—President Lotus D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota addressed the Commercial club at its luncheon Thursday.—City bonded indebtedness was reduced $36,509 in 1925, it was revealed in the annual report of City Clerk P. TWENTY YEARS AGO
From the Times of March 30, 1916

Losing a hard battle, the Lincoln high school basketball team was eliminated by Fergus Falls in the first round of the state tournament.—Members of the school board were deadlocked this week over the selection of an architect for a proposed new school building.—The Peterson-Biddick company Saturday will engage in the farm produce business in this city. Robert G. Lane left for Easton, Illinois, to visit with relatives and friends.—Paul Engelstad is a member of this year's graduating class at Northwest School, Crookston.—Dr. O. F. INDIANS TRY TO DOUBLE UP WOLF HIDE BOUNTY

Roseau.—County officials at Roseau are having quite a time with Indians from Warroad who are trying to double up on the bounty for wolf hides. The redskins had fixed over the pelts so the changes had escaped the detection of the town clerk. However, he became suspicious and immediately afterwards called O. A. Brager to examine the pelts and question the Indians. The Red Men were a little leary about trying to collect the money themselves, and sent a youngster to collect. Brager, acting on the suggestion of the town clerk, examined the pelts. He found that the wily Indians had sewed new skin on the ears where the pelts skin on the ears where the punches had been made. They were brought before the sheriff and county attorney for questioning, and after a good scare and lecture they were let go.

Ellsworth.—Two baby boys arrived in an Ellsworth home on the same day, and one couple became parents and grandparents at the same time. Mother and daughter are doing well, with their sons, uncle and nephew, making a good start in life from the same birth date. Mrs. Chris Tesler, living at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meester, gave birth to a son shortly after noon, and five hours later a son was born to Mrs. Meester herself.

PUBLIC OPINION

Expressions of opinion on timely subjects are invited and welcomed to this department of The Times. Letters should be of reasonable length, and the name should be signed, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Letters duplicated to other local newspapers are not desired.

Editor the Times:

It is too bad that we old folks are making so much lost sleep and worrying for that so-called Taxpayer. He doesn't say if it is the $15 pension or the old-age pension he is talking about.

It will be good advice for Mr. Taxpayer to be a candidate at the next election for a job as county commissioner, and we will all vote for him and we can be sure that we old jiggers won't get so much help that it will hurt us. Every taxpayer should be careful about voting for anything that will make bigger taxes.

The taxpayers should have voted against that good-paying investment behind the Auditorium, as that may raise the taxes a little, and also when town and county were voted dry, and the customers slip across the line and get the goods, and the bootleggers bring the booze into the dry zone and the money goes out of the town and county.

I have paid taxes for more than 30 years, from $65 to $97 a year, and I should like to have some reward for it; but if Mr. Taxpayer has anything to say about it, I am out of luck. It is a fine thing, just the same, that someone is thinking of us old fellows that are ready for the dumping ground.

An Old Taxpayer.

We are sorry indeed, for they are truly entitled to much credit for their very satisfactory work and splendid workmanship in the construction of our new building. We want Nils G. Olson and Peter A. Koller to have special recognition and credit for their splendid work. Their honesty is unquestionable. They are able and well-qualified construction men. We wish for them a continued success and this our endorsement, they can be trusted at any job that they may undertake.

Weevils May be Cause of Heating in Grain, "U" Farm Man Asserts

The respiration of insects, which in their breathing give off both a certain amount of heat and a certain amount of water may be responsible for a phenomenon not hitherto understood, namely, the fact that grain stored in a wet condition will heat and spoil. Studies by David L. Lindgren of the department of entomology and economic zoology at University Farm indicate that the respiration of weevils and beetles plays a large part in the deterioration of moist grain.

In carefully controlled experiments he determined that for each 2.9 grams of carbon dioxide respired by infesting beetles and weevils, one gram of water is produced, or that for each milligram of carbon dioxide produced there was produced 31 per cent that much water.

Mr. Lindgren based his conclusions on the fact that insect infested wheat increases in temperature very much faster than uninfested wheat does. Thus at a moisture content of 15.2 per cent, from 60 to 120 days would be required for the temperature of one gram of wheat to rise one degree, but with wheat at a temperature of 27 degrees centigrade, but five weevils or 70 granary weevils would raise the temperature of a gram of wheat one degree in five days.

You are not forgotten dear Rose, nor ever shall you be, as long as life and memory last, we will remember thee. No one knows the silent heartaches, only those who have lost can tell of the grief that's borne in silence for the one we loved so well. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vakoch, sisters and brother. 12p

Federal Art Project Is Seeking Data on Costumes and Household Articles

Assistance in compiling an "index" of American design is sought from readers of the Times by the federal art project of the Works Progress administration.

The purpose of the index, according to Clement Haupers, state director of the art project, is to build an authentic record for future generations of the manner in which Americans of the past and present day lived and dressed. By means of photographic drawings, colored paintings and written descriptions, an accurate record will be made of costumes, furniture, textiles and floor coverings, wood and stone carving and architecture.

Readers are urged to communicate with the director of the project, Works Progress Administration, Minnesota Building, St. Paul, if they have in their possession any work produced in Minnesota prior to 1900 in any of the above fields. Particular emphasis is being placed upon original design in cabinet making, textiles and pottery. A written description will be sufficient but in the event photographs are available, they will be gratefully received, Mr. Haupers said.

TAX COMMISSION MEMBER AGREES SALE TAX NEEDED

George Wallace Disagrees With Farmer-Labor Party Stand

Some form of sales tax is apparently the only way to solve the problem of raising money the state must have, George E. Wallace, member of the state tax commission, told the legislative interim committee on taxation Friday in St. Paul.

Mr. Wallace, an appointee of Governor Floyd B. Olson, took this position despite the well known opposition of the Farmer-Labor party to a sales tax. He also disagreed with Farmer-Labor leaders in stating that the state income tax should be limited to a maximum of 10 per cent. Farmer-Labor legislators have urged that the income tax maximum be raised to 15 per cent.

Mr. Wallace agreed with members of the commission that the tax burden on property is too high. He said too much money obviously is being spent for public service, but that there seems little prospect of reducing the cost of state and local government.

"Therefore," he said, "I don't see any way left except some form of sales tax."

The committee discussed the constitutional amendment to eliminate the tax levy for state purposes which is to be voted on at the November election.

The amendment would mean loss of revenue of between 10 and 15 million dollars which would have to be raised through some other taxes.

"We have two jobs to do, to determine how this money is to be raised if the state votes for the amendment, and by what means we can reduce the cost of state government, so there will not be a need of so much money to be raised," Senator Charles Orr of St. Paul said.

The five house and senate members of the committee reported that they will oppose any future policy of bargain tax settlements. They moved to stand on a principle voted at the last session of the legislature which provided for payment of back taxes on the instalment plan over a period of 10 years.

Miss Dahl's "A Toast We Can Drink," won first place for her over Donna Dubeau of Alexandria, with "Mary, Queen of Scotland," in the dramatic division.

"Good-bye Helen", was Miss Siebern's winning selection in the humorous division. Second place was won by Ervin Trisko of Melrose, with "For the Love O' Mike."

Second place winners were awarded silver medals. A silver trophy was given the schools represented by the winners. Eight regions participated in the contest and there were 12 entries.

Reemployment Office Places Men on Road Jobs

Persons interested in obtaining work on state highway construction projects this spring should apply to the National Reemployment Service, according to a bulletin from the highway department. "The state highway department has nothing to do with hiring men for construction jobs handled by contract", the bulletin explains. "Each contractor will hire his own men from the lists of the National Re-employment Service, which has offices in the various counties. Applicants for road work should apply directly to their county re-employment office and not to the highway department."

Zimmerman Explains Relief Aid to Counties

Minnesota has $7,211,000 relief funds available for expenditure in 1936, beginning January 1, L. P. Zimmerman, SERA administrator, said last week. Whether a county handles its own relief or not, it is entitled to a share of the state relief fund, he stated following a conference with Blue Earth representatives who had raised the question. However, every county must have some kind of set-up to report to the state, he explained. The state agency is not dictating definite procedure but is asking compliance with certain regulations in order that it may regulate county allotments.

BEMIDJI QUINTET WINS STATE CAGE TITLE SATURDAY

Title Again Comes to Region Eight; Prowlers Won It in 1932

For the first time since 1932, when the Lincoln high school basketball team won the state championship, the title again came to this region, No. 8, Saturday evening in Minneapolis when the Bemidji quintet defeated Wadena in the final game of the state tourney by a score of 26 to 20.

The rangy Bemidji team, its members averaging better than six feet in height, won the first round of the tournament Thursday afternoon, defeating Albert Lea 36 to 32 after trailing in the first half. Following up their initial victory, Bemidji won the semi-final round from Red Wing Friday evening by the decisive score of 34 to 23.

Wadena, which defeated Buhl in the semi-finals, gave Bemidji a hard struggle, the champions leading 7-4 at the quarter, 13 to 6 at the half and 14 to 8 at the end of the third period.

Norman Galloway, Bemidji captain and all-state center for the past two years, scored 16 points for the victors, including six field goals and four free throws.

An estimated 25,000 persons attended the tournament during the three days it was in progress, including a crowd of 9,500 that packed the Minneapolis auditorium Saturday evening for the championship contest.

Much Canadian Wheat Passing Thru This City

That there is a considerable movement of Canadian wheat across the border this spring is indicated in the report by local grain inspectors that during the ten-day period from March 10 to 20 they sampled more than 100,000 bushels of Canadian wheat consigned to Minneapolis and Duluth buyers. Lower tariffs under the recently enacted United States-Canadian reciprocal trade treaty is held accountable for the increased movement.

WARREN MAN TO HANDLE LOANS FOR 15 FARM GROUPS

J. W. Sands Takes Charge in Three Northwest Counties

Organization of the new group plan for servicing Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commissioner loans in Marshall, Kittson, and Pennington counties was completed last week, according to J. W. Sands, secretary-treasurer for the fifteen national farm loan associations which form the group, says the Warren Sheaf.

Besides the ten associations in Marshall county for which Mr. Sands has been secretary-treasurer for some time, the group will include the Northwest National Farm Loan Association of Hallock; the Hallock NFLA, also of Hallock; the Kittson County NFLA of Bronson; and the Pennington and Valhall NFLA's of Thief River Falls, Peter Engelstad, former secretary-treasurer.

Borrowers from both the Federal Land Bank and land bank commissioner are asked to direct their inquiries and correspondence to Mr. Sands, at Warren, as business for the three counties will be conducted through the joint office located in the Peoples State Bank building in that city.

Young Men Under Thirty Buying Most Insurance

Another fact to bolster the statement that "it is a young man's world" is brought to light in a survey that shows that young men under 30 are the largest single class of life insurance buyers by age groups. This was announced here today by Ma. E. M. Bennes, Thief River Falls, Minnesota, representative of The Lincoln National Life Insurance Company, who quoted the report just received from his home office in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

FARM PRODUCTION KEPT IN BALANCE BY 1936 PROGRAM

State Farm Bureau Seeking Wholehearted Support of Project

The new farm bill, replacing the AAA, unquestionably affords an opportunity to hold the progress made in keeping farm production in balance with marketing demands and in sustaining farm prices, says J. S. Jones, secretary-treasurer of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation.

"While not as spectacular and possibly lacking the immediate appeal to farmers, as the AAA program," Mr. Jones declared, "I firmly believe that the new legislation, if practically administered and given the whole-hearted support of farmers will not only conserve soil fertility, our greatest natural resource, but also will prevent the accumulation of burdensome crop surpluses.

"Soil conservation is of unquestioned material interest not only to the present and future generations of farmers but to all our people. The future welfare and prosperity of the country is inseparably linked with the fertility of our soil," Mr. Jones declared.

The greatest handicap to the success of the new program this year is the slowness with which Washington is proceeding in appropriating the necessary funds to get the work under way. It appeared on March 17 that funds finally had been allotted, and as soon as the financial setup is completed the program will get under way. In Minnesota the College of Agriculture, working through County Farm Bureaus and other groups, will take the lead in administering the program.

Governor Returns from Tucson, Arizona, With Health Much Improved

Governor Olson returned from a three-week stay in Tucson, Ariz., Sunday, his health greatly improved and his plans for the forthcoming senatorial campaign practically completed, but a serious party rift demanding his attention.

He asserted himself fit for "any kind of fight" and indicated he will step into the situation, which is the outgrowth of clashing governorship ambitions of Senator Elmer A. Benson and Lieutenant Governor Hjalmer Peterson.

The governor, who was operated on during the Christmas holidays for an abdominal disorder, appeared convalescing rapidly. He said he gained some weight and viewed the campaign prospects enthusiastically.

"They're going to hear plenty from me during this campaign," he said. "I'm ready for the fight, whatever it will be. During my stay in Tucson I had an opportunity to study conditions and look at my own state from a distance."

The governor indicated he will wait until after the party convention this week before filing for the senatorship.

BEMIDJI WINS FIRST PLACE IN STATE TOURNEY

Lumberjacks Defeat Albert Lea, Red Wing, Wadena in Three Rounds

In last week's state tournament the Region Eight representative, Bemidji, came through with flying colors to win its first championship.

Playing consistent ball through the meet, Bemidji came through against an exceptionally strong field including Wadena, Buhl, Red Wing, Edison (Minneapolis), Albert Lea, Laverne, and Sleepy Eye. In the first round game, the Lumberjacks defeated Albert Lea. In the semi-finals, they defeated Red Wing 34 to 23. In the finals, they defeated Wadena 36 to 20.

Buhl beat Red Wing 33 to 16 for third place. Edison won the consolation prize from Alberta Lea 36 to 24. Red Wing was awarded the Sportsmanship Trophy.

This trip marked the fourth time Bemidji has made the trip to the state tournament. Three of these four trips were made under the present coach, "Buck" Robbins.

Johnson and Galloway were awarded places on the official all state team along with Dick and Pianovick of Buhl and DeLapp of Laverne.

Freshmen Themes

Below is printed the second of the freshmen themes on the novel "Ivanhoe." These themes were part of contract work in English I.

Disinherited

Rowena and Ivanhoe were seated on the balcony. Ivanhoe, who was very much in love with her, broke the silence by expressing his love for her. "I love you, fair Rowena. I will give you everything your heart desires if you will but give me your hand!"

"Sir Ivanhoe, I must have the consent of your father, Cedric. I will gladly go with you and share alike. Let us go and hurry to dinner now."

They entered a large room. Cedric was seated at the head of a table, which was laden with wine and fruits.

"Ah, children, I have been waiting for you. Be seated," Cedric announced.

Rowena and Ivanhoe immediately took their places beside the table.

"I have had a most interesting talk with Athelstane, and we have come to the conclusion that Rowena . . . ." Cedric began.

"But, father, I have something of importance to ask you," Ivanhoe said.

"Don't interrupt me. As I was saying, Athelstane wants Rowena to become his bride!"

Ivanhoe rose at hearing this, saying, "I would rather die by the sword of Athelstane than to give up Rowena. We have already made plans for the future. I shall go anywhere to win the hand of Rowena!"

"Enough! You have disobeyed my orders and made love to Rowena! You must leave my house never to return again. You shall be disinherited," Cedric, red with rage, answered.

Ivanhoe got up and walked to Rowena. He lifted her lily-white hands to his lips and said, "Though my father and miles may stand between us, I shall never cease loving you!"

Rowena, with tears in her eyes, watched Ivanhoe depart. Ivanhoe left his father flushed with anger. Astonished by his rash words, Cedric muttered, "Outrageous! Disobedient swine!"

Ivanhoe went out into the world where new adventures were awaiting him.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

Below is a list of important events for the following weeks:

March 31, Tuesday—Program at City Auditorium.

April 20, Monday — Schools open.

April 25, Saturday—Music contest at Crookston.

Right now is the time to seriously plan on purchasing one of this year's forty-eight page school annuals. Within a short time, Prowler salesmen will approach you with the query of signing your name as a prospect. Be prepared when the time comes. Either dig out the sock or the penny bank, but buy a 1936 Prowler!

PROGRAM TO BE HELD TUESDAY

Group of Musicians Will Present Croatian Pieces

Another in a series of Northwest Assembly programs will be presented on Tuesday, March 31, at eight o'clock in the City Auditorium. The entertainers this time will be the Elias Tamburitz Serenaders presenting "A Night in Croatia."

The Elias Serenaders will introduce to you the music of Croatia played on their strange native instruments. It is from the shepherds of the Croatian plains that comes the most plaintive of all stringed instruments, the tamburitza. They sing the native songs, wear their homeland costumes, and dance their beautiful dances. Mr. Elias, who is their director, is a graduate of Leipzig Conservatory of Music.

Students will be admitted upon presentation of their activity tickets. The general price of admission is twenty cents.

MAKING THE ROUNDS

Miss Greenland's Latin II class has completed the second book of Caesar. Her Algebra classes are well on their way in completing their course. Miss Greenland plans to spend all the time after Easter vacation on review.

Miss Lunder's advanced clothing classes are giving special reports on up-to-date kitchen equipment. The home economics I classes have begun their cotton dresses.

Miss Dahlen's General Science classes are studying the digestive systems of the body. The eighth grade classes taught by Miss Dahlen are planning adequate menus to meet a day's food requirements.

Miss Tandberg's English III classes are reading plays and essays for their outside reading.

Miss Wise's Shorthand II classes are taking dictation at the rate of ninety to ninety-five words a minute.

Mr. Lanning wants us to compliment Marjorie Matheson on writing sixty words a minute in a ten-minute speed test in his Typing I class.

The high school band, under the direction of Mr. Orwell, played several selections at the Gustafson and Son's Twenty-Fifth Anniversary Celebration on Saturday, March 21. The program was given in the basement of the new Gustafson garage. The marches played were "Flyer" by Weber; "Vanguard" by Hollingsworth; "Trombone Toboggan" by Weber; "Prelude" from "L' Arlesienne Suite" by Bizet; and "Coast Guards" by Davis.

Coach George E. Lee, Principal W. G. Claffy, Gilbert Mickelson, basketball captain, and Victor Jung attended the state tournament held at Minneapolis last week. Bemidji was awarded the championship.

MAKE UP FOR SCHOOL ANNUAL IS ANNOUNCED

Staff Will Choose One of Several Cover Designs Later

The 1936 Prowler staff has started work on this year's school annual. With the completion of the make-up by Jack Booren and Malcolm Magnuson, activity writers have been handed their assignments. These writers, Edna Lee, Lois Engen, and Francis Engle, have completed some of their articles.

A Prowler staff meeting was held in Room 110 last Wednesday after school. On Thursday evening a group picture of the staff was taken at Salveson's Studio.

Flora Schroeder, Philip Prichard, and Oscar Bickley, feature writers, are busily engaged in finding sayings which will be attached to all senior pictures. The members of the art department, June Rolland, Rochelle Kielty, and Ardella Gjernes, submitted several cover designs which will be chosen by the staff at a later date.

On Thursday several members of the staff selected committees to aid in distributing and compiling this year's annual. Adrian Lorentson was named Circulation manager. His assistants are Anna Hermanson and Annette Simonson. Seven salesmen were chosen to stimulate interest in this year's publication. This group includes the following: Lois Nelson, Thomas Fruts, Dayton Silk, Vivian Ward, Douglass Hess, Helen Granum, and Morris Engelstad. Three students were selected to help in checking senior activities. They include Margaret Larson, Helen Berg, and Dorothy Blanchard.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NEWS

Northrup School

The sixth grade gave a farewell party last Friday for John Dahlow, who is leaving for Detroit Lakes where he will complete the school term. After lunch was served, an amateur program was given. The pupils took part, some singing, some giving poems, and some playing in the band.

Betty Jean Oseid is expected to return to the kindergarten after an absence of six weeks, due to a trip to California.

Washington School

The grade school basketball season is over with the Washington school coming out on top and winning a cup.

Those on the team are as follows: Oren Peterson, Luther Fjelstad, Frederick Orwell, Orland Gjernes, Gordon Froseth, Morris Stokke and Homer Matheson.

Knox School

The sixth grade is studying the lives and accomplishments of the great artists and musicians. The making of booklets and biographies are included in this study.

Charles and Genevieve Erickson, formerly of the Knox School, are now attending the Northrup School.

In the third grade, Holland is the main study in art and language. The pupils have been reading many stories and making art booklets about this country.

The following are two rhymes made up in the third grade:

Snowflakes

See the soft and fluffy snowflake
Dancing in the wind,
Making drifts so deep and white
Like frosting on my mother's cakes.

Dancing Snowflakes

See the soft feathery flakes of snow
Fluttering and whirling through the air,
Where they come from I don't know
But they are here and there and everywhere.

FLOOD SITUATION

From the New England states came news of floods. Appeals were sent out for aid. The public responded! Now Southern Minnesota is in the grip of floods from the Minnesota river. More and more families are, and will be, homeless for every inch the water rises.

With our own state in danger, the citizens of Minnesota are more willing to help. We appreciate our own comparative safety from floods in Northern Minnesota. Along with this feeling of safety come calls for more aid.

In time of disasters such as this, sectional lives are better off in the geography books and not in practice. The stricken areas need aid, and need it badly. Just keep this in mind—maybe Northern Minnesota may need aid from the Red Cross and other sources sometime and then aid from others will be welcome. "It's better to give than to recieve, much better!"

Temperance Play Given Before Biology Class

Friday, March 13, was the date on which Flora Schroeder's temperance play "The Toll" was presented in the first period biology class taught by Miss Helquist. The cast included the following: Katherine Jacobson, the girl of seventeen; Selmer Christofferson, the boy who refused to drink any alcoholic beverage; and Donald Houfek, the boy who was just seventeen, celebrating his birthday. The supporting cast included Vernon Erickson, Wallace Olson, and Ruby Gunderson.

The first scene of "The Toll" was laid in a restaurant where Arthur was going to celebrate his seventeenth birthday. He and his friends all ordered some alcoholic beverage but were severely criticized by Len, Arthur's cousin. Arthur's girl friend (Katherine Jacobson) then arrived on the scene, to everyone's surprise, she supported Len in his accusation.

The second scene takes place seven years later. Len and his former sweetheart had been married. Arthur had married some girl while on a drunken party. The scene contrasted the happy home and fortunes of the non-drinking family to the misfortunes of the drinking family.

All students of the first period class enjoyed the play. Flora Schroeder and the members of the cast are to be complimented on its fine presentation.

LINCOLN HIGH TIMES

Well, from all weather signs, sulpher and molasses will soon be in order. Also, the old saying "In spring a young man's fancy rightly turns to thoughts of love." And judging from L. H. S. it doesn't only take spring.

And if anyone wants to know if time is valuable, just ask Oscar and Jack.

Speaking of Alma Mater, Walt Mann and Helen Hemanson seem to enjoy coming back to see the old place.

Who's theme song to Vivian W. on Saturday night was "May I?" Of course, it couldn't have been Vernon E.

And Vernon W.'s old flame is back. How goes it, Vernon?

At a recent banquet Art N. seemed to doubly appreciate Helen R.

Did Jim N. ever show dads at a recent banquet just how he felt!

Most perfect couple—Fae B. and Pomeroy H.

Speaking of Alumnae, Bud B. seems to have fallen for Miss Wenner in a big way, too.

LOCAL JEWELRY STORE SPONSORS ESSAY CONTEST

Two High School Seniors Win Prizes Given by Wangenstein

The winners in the local Gruen watch contest were announced Monday. This contest had as its basis the importance of time, and an essay was to be written on this subject "The Importance of Time." Local winners were—first prize, Oscar Bickley; and second—Jack Booren. The contest extended from February 20 to March 15.

This local contest was sponsored by Wangenstein and Son, local jewelry company. Although many secured the blanks, only eighteen contestants submitted actual entries. The prizes were two Gruen watches, which made especially appropriate gifts for school students. Mr. Wangenstein said that the entries submitted were excellent.

Those in the local contest could enter their themes in the national contest, which ended March 15, if duplicates were made. The entire school extends congratulations to Oscar Bickley and Jack Booren.

SHOP NEWS

Through the courtesy of the Thief River Pharmacy, who relinquished its exhibit space at the City Auditorium to the high school, the Industrial Department was able to have an exhibit at the auto show. Seventh grade, eight grade, Shop I, and Shop II students showed both projects that have been completed and those under completion. The projects were in woodworking and metal working. Mr. Pope, Mr. Johnson, the shop students, and the Thief River Pharmacy made this exhibit possible and must be complimented on their fine work.

Seventh grade shop students have been studying belt lacing while the members of the eighth grade class have been uncovering the mysteries of electricity in a brief study. Mr. Johnson is their teacher.

Grade School Skate Meet Is Postponed

Due to the severe cold and consequent inability to make use of the rink, then the sudden thaw, the skating meet scheduled for March 12 had to be postponed until the year 1937.

The winners of last year—Northrup School—have the trophy in their possession at present, but it is certain that the other schools would have provided spirited competition, had the meet been possible.

In this year's skating meet, pupils from the third to sixth grade of Washington, Knox, and Northrup schools were scheduled to compete. Washington School's representatives were the following: Third grade—Billy Bye and Wanda Ryersgard; fourth grade—Myles Weflin and Mae Swanson; fifth grade—Marvin Stephenson and Esther Tungseth; sixth grade—Roman Paulson and Lorinda Ryersgard; boy's relay — Robert Paulson, Fredrick Orwell, Donald Wagg, Marvin Stephenson; and mixed relay—Lorinda Ryersgard, Esther Tungseth, Robert Paulson, Lloyd Johnson, and Fredrick Orwell.

Knox school would have been represented by the following groups: Third grade—Dean Redlund and Jean Effinger; fourth grade—Robert Love and Lois Melby; fifth grade—Lloyd Johnson and Carmen Green; sixth grade—Dale Hostvedt and Cleo Monson; boys' relay—Dale Hostvedt, George Effinger, Lloyd Johnson, Douglas Snelling, Nolan Ness; and mixed relay—Cleo Monson, Ruby Haugen, Dale Hostvedt, Douglas Snelling, George Effinger.

The following groups of Northrup School were prepared to keep the trophy in their possession: Third grade—James Steen and Lois Ann Lund; fourth grade—Calvin Travers and Betty Woolhouse; fifth grade—Perry Olson and Louise Olson; sixth grade—Leonard Lorentson and Alice Buringrud; boys' relay—Leonard Lorentson, Jack Melby, Perry Olson, Philip Hess, Nicky Christo; and mixed relay—Alice Buringrud, Maxine Hanson, Leonard Lorentson, Nicky Christo, and Perry Olson.

ETIQUETTE

Now that spring is officially here and thawing has definitely set in, a person finds that many people are very thoughtless and inconsiderate of him; and because it is he who is the victim these things are noticed much more by him. Yet this person thinks nothing (or is it revenge?) of hitting another with a hard snowball or of running through a puddle of water, splashing all over the other person.

Perhaps, at sometime or other, this may have happened to you or you may have been this person. All this may have been in fun on your part, but did you ever stop to look at the other side of the matter?

Hitting others with snowballs or driving helter-skelter down the street splashing all over everything and everyone is unnecessary and only puts the other person in an uncomfortable position.

Judging from over at Joyce O.'s, Gordon C. believes in double trouble. How about it, Marion O. and Joyce B.?

CLAFFY ATTENDS LEAGUE MEETING IN MINNEAPOLIS

High School Principal Represents District 31 at Meet

Mr. Claffy attended the Minnesota State High School League meeting in Minneapolis Friday, March 20. Mr. Claffy was the representative from district number thirty-one.

During the main business meeting of the Minnesota State High School League, fourteen or sixteen amendments were proposed. Two of these plans passed. One of these is enlarging the Board of Control of the Minnesota State High School League from five to eight members. These members, prior to the passage of this amendment, were elected during the meeting, but since the passage, eight will be elected, one from each region. The second amendment that passed was making the debate teams for the coming school year two-man teams. The members of the team will be given ten minutes for their constructive argument speech and seven minutes for rebuttal.

An amendment for dividing all the high schools into two sections for the basketball tournaments, according to the size, failed to be passed.

This convention didn't occupy all of Mr. Claffy's time. He was able to see all the Friday and Saturday games of the basketball tournament. He saw our former coach, Mr. Hayes, who is now coaching at Blue Earth.

BALLY-WHO

Nothing like being optimistic when spring is "bowling" around the corners, and thinking of all the unfamiliar faces which adorn assembly seats every hour of the day.

Probably won't be only in the comic sections that boys will be sporting black eyes with their boxing tournament coming up. None of you boys need have any fond ambition because "Bones" is signed up for both wrestling and boxing.

Seems as though all parties are contraband gossip this week because of the participants.

The "Cat Palace on the Rind" of Don L. and Lynn was increasingly popular last Sunday when J. O. and L. A. frequented it. Don't you say anything, "Bum" or Gordon, you're just jealous.

As hard as the physics test Mr. Harrison didn't know he was giving.

The boys at the auto show dance didn't lack etiquette but common sense.

Some of those little dancers ought to give some of you aspirants inspiration. At least one gave Lowell N. and Wally T. ideas.

With all the new mania for writing poetry one of the physics students got this symbolic verse called

Ode to Physics Class
By Ima Poet

From Prichard's corner comes a sneeze,
It stirs the air like a gentle breeze
From Engle comes "I don't know",
While Buck is gazing at the snow
Nesse his knowledge is professing
And Erickson, the blushing, is confessing
That he hadn't heard a word.

The Sahara Desert

BEARS COMMON IN MANY CCC CAMPS

Cook.—The cook at the Portage River CCC camp in the Superior National forest received the shock of his life last week when he opened the ice box door and saw a bear staring him in the face! The enrollee left so fast he didn't even close the door, and when he came back with reinforcements Bruin was gone. Contrary to common belief, bears frequently become very tame, especially during the fall when they frequent human habitation in search of sufficient food fat for the winter. A number of these black animals adopted the Portage River camp recently and became the pets of the enrollees. Another of the cooks at this camp was standing over the stove when he felt a slap on his back. Turning around he looked full into the face of a black bear, which apparently wanted something to eat. One of the older bears became almost as tame as a dog, and followed the night watchman when he made the rounds of the camp. Deer at this camp also show a decided preference for human friends, and frequently are fed by hand.

SQUIRREL SWIPES LIGHTED CIGAR FROM SMOKER'S HAND

Lake Crystal—John Pritchard is disillusioned. For months he has fed the squirrels aroun his home in Lake Crystal when "eats" were rather hard to find, only to have one of the little fellows turn around and swipe his cigar. John was engaged in shoveling snow the other morning, stopping a moment to rest and laying his cigar down beside him. Master Squirrel, who had been scampering about the roof, spied said cigar, and when John's back was turned he captured the weed and beat it for a nearby tree. That was the last seen of cigar or squirrel for the remainder of the day. Now John is wondering whether squirrels in the neighborhood are taking up the habit of smoking, or whether one particular squirrel is gifted with a mean nature.

MEN APPRECIATE SAVORY DISHES

Cheese, Cold Cuts and Sea Foods Are Tempting.

By EDITH M. BARBER

FOR evening refreshments for a group of men choose savory foods, cheese, cold cuts, chicken, tongue, ham, olives—ripe and stuffed, pickles of various kinds, sardines or kippered herring, buttered rye and white bread, hard and crisp crackers, plenty of hot fresh coffee, and cold drinks for those who prefer them, potato salad, well seasoned with onion and minced bacon. A supply like this is usually served buffet style for each man to help himself as often as he likes. Sometimes all kinds of materials for sandwiches are provided and the guests make up their own to suit themselves. Pie is the most satisfactory dessert for such a meal as it can also be put on the table with the other dishes. If you wish to plan a simple menu, sandwiches may be made up beforehand and served with pickles, cheese and coffee.

If you know the taste of your group you may plan to serve a Dutch supper with frankfurters and sauerkraut as the main dish. Add your bread and cheese with perhaps kucken for dessert and you have a meal in itself.

Scalloped oysters are also unusually favored at a supper of this sort. Even creamed oysters are not scorned if a brown sauce is used, or if diced celery is added.

If you are in a section where good sea food is obtainable there is nothing better for a supper. It may be served either hot or cold. With cold lobster or crab, Hartford sauce, for which I am giving the recipe, is delicious. It is also good with cold meat.

Let me whisper just one more word. Most women like foods such as are suggested today just as well as men, and you will find yourself a popular hostess if you offer them to both sexes.

Hartford Sauce.

1 cup mayonnaise
⅓ cup chili sauce
⅛ teaspoon or more curry powder

Stir the chili sauce into the mayonnaise and sprinkle in the curry powder as generously as your taste allows. More curry rather than less is desirable.

Scalloped Oysters.

5 tablespoons butter
4 cups soft bread crumbs
Pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 pint oysters

Melt the butter, add crumbs and seasoning and mix well. Drain oysters and arrange in alternate layers with the buttered crumbs in a greased baking dish. Bake twenty minutes in a hot oven, 450 degrees Fahrenheit.

Oysters on Horseback.

Wrap slices of bacon around oysters which have been cleaned. Broil under a hot broiling flame until the bacon is crisp and the oysters begin to curl.

Clam Bisque.

1 pint clams
⅔ cup clam juice
1 tablespoon butter
Pepper, salt
½ teaspoon worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon minced parsley

Wash the clams and remove the hard portion. Cook them until the edges curl and chop them very fine. Melt the butter, add flour and when well blended add the milk, stirring constantly. Cook one minute. Add seasonings, clams, clam juice and celery. Strain and serve with minced parsley sprinkled on top.

Shrimp Cocktail.

1 pint whole, cooked, shelled shrimps
1 cup sour cream
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground peppercorns
⅛ teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar

Arrange shrimps in a cocktail glass or on a plate. Cover with sliced lemon. To make sauce—whip cream slightly, add the other ingredients, and more curry powder to taste may be used.

Tall Tales

As told to: FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Pale as Paste

HIS personal physician, Doctor Ramsey, once concocted a sticking substance of unparalleled strength, asserts Henry W. Ewert of the Chicago Board of Trade.

"Doc kept the ingredients of his great invention secret," Ewert says, "But I can tell you it was composed of a mixture of [illegible] fishhooks, mustard plaster and worn out Scotch pocketbooks.

"My friend's only difficulty was in obtaining capital necessary for its manufacture in bulk. So he proved its holding qualities.

"The doctor wheeled out his small stunt plane one day and hired an aviator to fly it. He dropped a small line approximately the dimensions of a human hair, from the plane and grabbed ahold of it. Then he clung tightly while the aviator made a perfect takeoff.

"Doctor Ramsey rode through the air with the greatest of ease for more than two hours, dangling from the hairline, which was fastened to the plane by the sticky liquid.

"When they alighted it was necessary to burn away three and three-quarters of the plane's surface with an acetylene torch in order to detach the hair.

"The doc was pale as paste after his adventure, but the demonstration proved a boon to everyone, including the manufacturer who sold doc a new plane."

Nail Biting Sign of Nervous Exhaustion, State Medics Report

Children need more than an application of bitter paint to their finger tips to cure them of nail biting. Nail biting is a sign of physical or nervous exhaustion, members of the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association point out in a bulletin issued today.

Bitter medicine will not cure fatigue, according to the doctors. Neither will scolding or attempting to shame the child.

The only sensible and effective treatment for any of these nervous bad habits of children is relief from the fatigue, and improvement in the general condition and routine of the child.

Some of these nervous children are allowed to play too long and too hard without a sufficient amount of sleep and rest. Others are pushed too hard at home or at school or both. Others are given too much attention by adults and so are constantly over-stimulated.

The first thing to do, according to the physicians, is to provide for more hours of sleep and rest and to make these hours regular. The second is to examine the whole program of the child, his food, his general health, his hours of play and his school. See that his general health is good and that his school work is not heavy.

Then the entire adult family should ignore the bad habit. Complete disregard and an attitude of unconcern is worth any amount of anxious instruction, especially for young children. Older children may respond well to a casual suggestion about the desirability of attractive hands— if attractive tools for manicuring are provided, too. In either case nagging is useless and brings its own unhappy result for both the naggers and the nagged.

Snow never fails on approximately a third of the earth's surface.

Peanut Cookies

One-half cup shortening (mixed butter and lard or other shortening), 1 cup dark brown sugar (packed solid), 1 egg, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1½ cups flour, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon soda, ⅓ cup crushed or chopped peanuts. Chilling time: Overnight or longer. Oven temperature: 375 degrees Fahrenheit. Baking time: Twelve minutes (about). Yield: Four dozen (2-inch square).

Roasted peanuts that have not been salted are wanted for the cookies; the skins should be removed and the nut meats chopped very fine or crushed upon a board with a rolling pin. Any other nut meat may replace the peanuts.

Cream the shortening — one-third butter to two-thirds lard or other shortening—in the mixing bowl; incorporate the sugar, packed firm in the measuring cup; add the egg and vanilla; beat well.

Add the flour, mixed with the salt and soda, from the sifter in three installments; then add the crushed nut meats.

Press the dough firmly in a small mold (2x2x8 inches); cover with waxed paper; secure with an elastic band. Chill.

When cookies are wanted, unmold dough upon a board; slice very thin with a sharp knife. The mold should make four dozen thin slices.

Lay the slices half an inch apart upon a lightly buttered cooky sheet. Bake in a moderately hot oven until puffy and a light brown. Remove from oven; transfer to a rack with a spatula. Serve when almost cool, or let become cold and pack in a covered container between layers of waxed paper.

Prune-Apricot Pudding

Three tablespoons butter, three-fourths cup brown sugar, one cup cooked apricots, one cup cooked prunes. Melt the butter in a heavy skillet, add the sugar and spread the drained fruit over the top. Make a batter of the following: One-fourth cup butter, one-half cup brown sugar, one egg, one-half cup sour milk, one-fourth cup molasses, one cup flour, one-half teaspoon soda, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon ginger. Pour this batter over the fruit and bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes. Serve warm with whipped cream.

Right Way to Fry Bacon

As with many foods, there is a right way to fry bacon, if you would have evenly browned, crisp slices. The right way is the easy way in this case. Simply place a single layer of bacon slices in a cool skillet, and let them cook slowly, turning frequently, to insure even cooking. It is especially important that bacon be cooked slowly, as a high temperature causes bacon fat to smoke, which is undesirable, since smoking fat is burning fat. It is also advisable to pour off the fat as it accumulates.

After bacon is removed from the frying pan, part of the fat is frequently used in preparing scrambled eggs, since they make such a desirable combination with bacon.

Savage Birds

Birds which are savage toward other birds are the kingbird, which will attack anything that flies; the blue jay, which chases song birds and raids nests, killing nestlings; all the falcons, and the humming bird. The mocking bird attacks cats and dogs. The butcher bird is a deadly fighter, but doesn't go out of its way to find trouble.

Concordia Debaters to Join in Houston, Texas, Contest

MARGARET HAUGSETH
DOROTHY HOLM
RALPH FJELSTAD
BURTON SMITH
G. S. HAUGE, COACH

Ralph Fjelstad, Thief River Falls, is a member of this group of debaters and orators from Concordia college, Moorhead, which left Wednesday, March 25, for Houston, Texas. The object of the trip which will take them through nine states and cover 3,000 miles, is the national convention of Pi Kappa Delta forensic fraternity to be held March 29 through April 3.

The Concordia delegation represents its chapter, Minnesota Zeta, of Pi Kappa Delta. Besides pairing with Smith on the debate team, Fjelstad is men's extempore representative. The general topic for men is, "The International Relations of the United States."

This year the two teams have already participated in two tournaments besides a number of intercollegiate debates. On February 7 and 8, the Minnesota Zeta chapter was host to the Third Annual Red River Valley Debate Tournament at Concordia college, where twenty colleges and universities took part.

During the first week in March the teams participated in the Annual Northwest Debate Tournament held at the Colleges of St. Thomas and St. Catherine in St. Paul. The Concordia men's team with Fjelstad participating was eliminated in the eighth round, when only ten teams survived.

Fjelstad, who is a junior at Concordia, has been a member of the debate squad there all three years of college. He also heads the junior class and is a member of the Mondamin literary society.

Red River Valley History

Milestones in Local Progress

It is probable that spring is more eagerly welcomed and means much more in a clime where a thick carpet of snow forms a background for evergreen trees. If there were not other evidence lacking, this winter's experience would be sufficient to convince anyone that it gets cold in this country in the winter. But we are concerned chiefly here with the promise of spring. The best part of it is that each period and, in fact, each year has its own prospects and promises. Way back in 1889 the Thief River Falls Press said:

"Away to the eastward, up the river, lies the famous Red Lake where are the great pine forests soon to be thrown open to settlement by the opening of the reservation. Between the Lake and Thief River Falls the river is unbroken by rapids and steamboats, of which there are two in Thief River Falls, can ply the whole distance, conveying supplies to the lake and timber country, and towing down logs to be manufactured into lumber to supply the western country."

In those days this was a wonderful future. The vast tracts of virgin pine awaited the lumberjack's ax and saw and the timber barons were busy with plans to steal this pine from the state. It was a wonderful prospect and, although in its actual accomplishment the spring was a time of harvest in logging, the promise was very much in evidence nevertheless; for the log drives in spring meant humming sawmills, great stacks of lumber and the revenues that accrued from its sale.

In 1899, a decade later the scene had changed and the prospect was different, with activities associated with sound development serving to accelerate the rate of progress. In that year the Wisconsin capitalists began paying employes in cash instead of due bills as had been the practice here. Another event of 1899 was the construction by the Northwest Telephone company of a long distance line from Crookston to Thief River Falls. In that year, too, the first automobile was seen here, according to newspaper files. This event took place on July 19 and the owner and driver was a patent medicine vendor.

Two years earlier important events had taken place. The first mail route out of the city to Germantown was established, Nov. 19, 1897. December 1 the Great Northern established daily train service. These moves meant much more than may appear on the surface because they indicated growth and future business.

Of course, there had been other activities paving the way for these later steps. For instance, we know that the opening of the 50 townships to settlement in 1896 was a really big event, which influenced much later progress. This move was significant particularly because the area concerned was agricultural land, made available to settlement under the homestead laws.

To get back to later events, we find that the first motion picture was shown in Thief River Falls March 8, 1898. How many still living in the city and community attended this showing? The cultural phase of local life is represented by the organization of the original public library association in 1900. This association apparently was composed entirely of women, who, except for $500 raised by public subscription, provided the funds themselves for maintenance of the library they established until May, 1906, when it was taken over by the city. Readers may recall that its first home was in a small building near the postoffice. In 1902 the city built an addition to the city hall which served as a library until space was provided in the city auditorium in 1909. Then, May 12, 1915, a Carnegie library was opened, the cost being $18,000 including the site, $12,500 of which was donated by Andrew Carnegie.

Time wrought change. For example, citizens dreaded the day when the supply of pine logs should dwindle and cause closing of the saw mills, but, the newspapers reveal, when the time came, was not seriously felt. The Press said:

"On August 21 an event occurred which had been looked forward to with dread for a number of years by the citizens—the permanent closing down of the saw mills. It had always been believed that when this event transpired the city would go to wrack and ruin, but when it finally happened there was no noticeable change in the financial condition of the city. Other industries had been established and the change from one to the other had been so slight as to be scarcely noticeable."

How different city business life today is from that of the earlier periods. Motor vehicle sales form an important item in the annual business volume. Power farm machinery is another big entry and the business of filling stations also is important in the total. It may be difficult to visualize changes as great as those which had occurred in the same space of time in the future, but it is not improbable that the future changes will be even more marked. And all change of this sort means progress.

CANDIDATES IN STATE CONTEST PICKED BY F.-L.

PAUL HARRIS HEADS F.-L. ASSOCIATION

Herve Aids in Drafting Platform for the 1936 Campaign

Pennington county members of the Farmer-Labor party played a prominent role in the party's state convention which closed in St. Paul early Sunday morning after a two-day session in which candidates for state offices and the United States senate were endorsed and a platform adopted for the coming campaign.

Paul A. Harris of this city Saturday was elected chairman of the state central committee of the Farmer-Labor association for a two-year term, succeeding A. C. Welch of Glencoe. The vote was: Harris, 325 votes; Welch, 24; Representative Hagen of Milan, 228; Sam Prestegaard of Owatonna, 33. Mr. Harris, who will direct the activities of the state organization, is a pioneer party worker in this community.

H. O. Herve, also a delegate to the convention from this county, served on the important platform committee and assisted in drafting the planks on which the 1936 campaign will be based. Other delegates from this county were Otto Rehm, Einar Jensen and BJ. Bjornaran.

The slate of candidates endorsed by the convention follows:

United States Senator—Governor Floyd B. Olson.

Governor—United States Senator Elmer Benson.

Lieutenant Governor—G. G. Lindsten, railroad brotherhood representative.

Secretary of State—Dr. Paul Hartig, Minneapolis.

Treasurer—State Representative C. A. Halvorson, Revere.

Attorney General H. H. Peterson, incumbent.

Railroad and Warehouse commissioner—Lieut. Gov Hjalmer Peterson.

Associate Justice of the Supreme Court—Joseph Poirier, assistant attorney general, and Charles Derus, Marshall.

Lieutenant-Governor Petersen withdrew from the gubernatorial race and seconded the nomination of Benson for that office. His supporters then wrote his name on the ticket in place of the nominating committee's choice, John Bernard, Eveleth. The vote was 373 to 230.

The Farmer-Labor party wants an ultimate new social order, with public ownership by the federal government, it declares in its platform submitted to the convention late Saturday by its platform committee, and later approved. The complete text is published elsewhere in this issue.

The platform, differing from the 1934 program which caused heated controversy, suggests the objectives sought to be attained by federal constitutional amendment, as proposed by Governor Floyd B. Olson.

With similar care, the convention declared qualified support of a

First federal funds for old age pensions in Minnesota were released late Monday in Washington. In a telegram, Governor Olson was notified Minnesota will receive $100,000 for pensions plus $5,000 for administrative expenses in March.

Assurance also was given that federal funds for the entire quarter that began March 1, and for the second quarter will be allotted immediately. A total of $4,300,000 of federal funds will be received by the state for old age pension assistance for the period from March 1, 1936 to June 30, 1937.

Release of funds to the state will be made on formal certification of quarterly expenditures by the counties, as approved by the state agency.

In Pennington county a total of 347 applications for pensions had been filed in the office of County Auditor A. M. Senstad. Owing to the fact that hearings on the applications have been delayed pending definite action in Washington, payments under the plan cannot be inaugurated immediately. In the meantime the former $5 monthly pensions were to be paid for the month of March.

The county board will hold its first hearings Friday, Saturday and Monday. Auditor Senstad emphasized the fact that an official notice will be sent from his office by mail to each applicant giving the time when the hearing on his application will be conducted. All applicants, he stated, must wait for this formal notice and it will be useless for them to come in earlier than the time set.

Approval of the Minnesota old age pension set-up and the first release of funds by the federal social security board Monday came after a long delay occasioned by the federal board's objections to some features in the Minnesota legislation. Chief among these was the provision limiting to $75,000 the administrative expenditures.

Other objections were removed, but the $75,000 limitation, which the federal board held was insufficient, remained a stumbling block until Monday. Indications were that the federal board accepted a ruling by Attorney General Harry H. Peterson that the $75,000 could be used up within the next nine months if necessary. Peterson held that the next legislature, meeting in January, 1937, could provide any needed additional funds.

Acceptance of the Minnesota plan was announced late Monday by the federal board in Washington in a formal statement, which said:

"The social security board announced approval of the old-age assistance plan of Minnesota, bringing to a total of 23 the number of states with approved plans for old age assistance. This approval means that the federal government will match, dollar for dollar, Minnesota's state and local expenditures for assistance to the needy aged up to a combined total of $30 per month per person.

"Minnesota will also receive an additional 5 per cent federal grant to help cover the cost of administering its plan.

"Approval of the plan makes Minnesota eligible to receive federal funds for the month of March, since the plan as approved today has been in operation in the state since March 1.

"Old-age assistance in Minnesota is administered by county boards of public welfare under the supervision of the state board of control. According to estimates submitted to the social security board by the Minnesota authorities, 10,000 aged men and women in the state will receive cash payments at an average rate of $20 per month to each individual.

"During 1934, under the old-age assistance system formerly in effect in the state, Minnesota gave assistance to 4,425 persons. The average amount granted was $10.07 per month."

Mr Quale stated that owing to the blocked condition of the roads it was impossible to hold caucuses in some of the precincts, and urged Republicans from these districts to come in and attend the convention Saturday so that all sections of the county may be represented.

The principal business to come before the convention will be the selection of delegates to the state Republican convention in St. Paul, which has been postponed from April 11 to 18, and to the district convention scheduled to be held in the Crookston city hall Wednesday, April 8. Coloring Easter Eggs

IN HOMES where there are small children, it usually is the task of the mother to prepare colored eggs for an Easter egg hunt. This is an important occasion, and the eggs should be cooked and colored so they may be eaten afterward, observes Edith Shuck in the Chicago Daily News.

It doesn't detract from the fun of the occasion or beauty of the eggs to prepare them according to the correct cooking rules. Put them on to cook in plenty of cold water. Place the pan over a low flame and bring the water to the simmering temperature slowly.

When the eggs are partially cooled, place them on a soft towel and dry them so they will not have water circles on them. Keep the eggs away from any grease. Most commercial dyes are best dissolved in hot water, but follow whatever directions are given on the package of dye you use. Stir the dye until it is dissolved, with a well-polished silver spoon, so the dye is not discolored. Dip the warm eggs into the hot dye and then drain them on cake racks. When they are cool, rub them with a buttered cloth to add a high gloss.

Fancy eggs for Easter placecards may be made if you paint initials on eggs. Give the eggs a very light tint, and have a different colored egg for each guest if possible. Do not polish the eggs. Put the names or initials on the eggs with a fine paint brush, dipped into the liquid vegetable coloring that is used for coloring foods. If you are very ambitious you can draw an Easter lily or daffodils on the eggs. Use egg yolk coloring for the flowers and grape green coloring for the leaves.

When Eggs Are Cool Rub With a Buttered Cloth.

A number of customs and superstitions have been woven round the festival of Easter. One old custom, that of Pace-egging, is still carried out in Germany and in parts of the eastern countries. Children go round to the houses asking for "pace-eggs," as Easter eggs are sometimes called. These are boiled hard, and then painted with bright colors and the names of children, according to London Tit-Bits Magazine.

Another ancient custom is "Bottle Kicking," observed at the Hallaton Hare Pie Festival every Easter Monday. After the bottles—ironbound kegs filled with ale—have been kicked, pieces of pie are distributed. Owing to a scarcity of hare, this delicacy is now composed largely of beefsteak.

BIG ROCK WEIGHS 43 TONS WORTH $1,200

Isle.—A huge block of gray granite, weighing approximately 45 tons and valued at $1,200 in its rough stage was wheeled into Isle the other day for shipment by railroad to the polishing plant at Cold Spring. The big rock measured about 15 feet by 6 feet by 7 feet for a total cubic content of some 600 feet. Approximately 20 gallons of gasoline were used in bringing the "pebble" five miles into Isle. Elmer Anderson, Isle contractor who specializes in heavy moving, brought in the stone with an arrangement of a truck, semi-trailer and a pusher truck. To the casual on-looker it appeared that the truck was mostly wheels, as there were seven axles supporting the load, exclusive of the pusher truck. There seems to be a good demand for the product of the Isle quarry, with 10 men having been employed all winter.

IRISH-SWEDE IS REAL FISHERMAN

Truman. — A valuable addition has been made to the Truman community in the person of the world's most truthful man, Leonard Anderson, who hails from Brainerd. As he stepped off the train he told the following story. Fishing on Mille Lacs, he was kept 24 hours by a huge muskie on his line which towed him all over the lake at express train speed. Cold, hungry, and exhausted, Anderson finally decided that the only way out was to cut the line. As the muskie was traveling in circles several miles wide, Anderson figured to hold on until the big fish had brought him around to the nearest point to his home dock. At exactly the right moment, he lopped the line. The boat was pointed straight towards Anderson's port, and the momentum carried it to shore, a distance of slightly more than four miles. Of Swedish-Irish descent, Anderson has a number of truthful stories along the same line. All that has to be done is to wind him up.

BARKING DOG SAVES LIVES IN NIGHT FIRE

Perham.—A barking dog undoubtedly saved the lives of Mrs. Alois Morgenroth and her daughter, Madrine, the other morning when the animal became alarmed at the noise of a fire which was freely burning on the second floor of their home in Perham. The fire is believed to have started from a pipe which lead through the floor of an upper store room. Apparently it was at work for some time before it broke forth and aroused the dog. During the evening the lights in the house suddenly went out, and Mrs. Morgenroth, thinking it was an interruption which affected the entire village, decided to retire for the night. They went to sleep without being alarmed, and were only aroused when the faithful dog set up a clamor. The house was burned to the ground, but articles of furniture on the first floor were saved.

Ninth District Conference

An educational, interesting, and inspiring District Conference of Ninth North was held on Sunday, March 29th at Warren, Minnesota with a goodly number present and every Union in the District represented. The meeting was opened Mrs. Bertha Harris of Warren, which was followed by a hearty welcome to members of the conference from Mrs. Minnie Styrlund, president of the local Union and Vice President of the District. Mrs. Alice Mae Stuart, District President of Ten Strike, Minnesota responded in her pleasing manner and introduced the District treasurer, Mrs. Crystal Horne of Bemidji and the secretary, Mrs. Edith Jung of Thief River Falls. The corresponding secretary Mrs. Grace Lee Oberg of Blackduck was unable to attend the conference.

In outlining the district work, Mrs. Stuart stressed the three important essentials; namely, education regarding the harmful effects of alcohol, membership, and Evangelistic. Tentative plans were made for institutes in every union in the district with the district president and state director of institutes in charge. Invitations for district convention in June were extended from Bemidji and Crookston. Medal contest are planned and finals to be held at state convention at Brainerd Minnesota in September.

BUYS OLD CAN FOR 10c; FINDS $69 IN BOTTOM

Cokato.—The boom days of 1929 are with us again. An investment of 10 cents by a Cokato man brought a return of $69 last week. It isn't often in ordinary life that an investment of a few pennies cast upon the waters come back in the form of more than half a hundred dollars, but that is just what happened to Emory Davidson when he purchased an old cream can at the Leo York auction sale, and found on returning home that he had $69. The money was found in an old tin pail in the bottom of a pile of assorted bolts, nuts, chains and things which had been thrown into the cream can. However, the investment profits were not long-lived. The money was promptly returned to the bank, to be credited to Mr. York, although there seems to be no reason in law why the money did not belong to the man who purchased the cream can.

LAW VIOLATORS GIVEN HEAVY JAIL SENTENCES

Jail sentences totalling 225 days in addition to fines of $185 were among game violations reported last week to the division of game and fish. Henry Hage, Detroit Lakes was sentenced to 30 days in jail for shooting prairie chickens in the closed season. He was arrested by Warden Emil Frank.

KIDS JUMP INTO SNOW DRIFT; CAN'T GET OUT

Fosston.—Children at play nearly lost their lives in the deep snow drifts at Fosston last week. A four-foot snow bank made soft lighting for Brent Stolpestad, son of Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Stolpestad, and Lydia Nord, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Nord. They climbed on a six-foot pile of cordwood and jumped off, sinking into snow up to their hips. They were unable to get out, and their efforts, as well as those of a companion, Lydia's brother Elmer, succeeded in packing them even tighter in their snow shackles. "Help, we're freezing to death!" the two cried in unison. Elmer ran for aid, and eventually a couple of men arrived with shovels to dig the youngsters out. But for the presence of Elmer, the two might have really frozen to death or at least suffered exposure, for it would have been impossible for them to get out of the drift alone.

Gutenberg Born About 1400

Johann Gutenberg, inventor of typography, was born at Mainz about 1400 and died in the same city in 1467 or 1468.

Origin of Words "Cow," "Bull"

The words "cow" and "bull" are probably imitative, the root idea of "bull" being a suggestion of its bellowing, while "cow," which in early English and Scotch is pronounced "coo," is imitative of the lowing call to the calf.

$45,000 PROFIT

A profit of $45,000 to the city from the light and power department on it's last year's operations is something to think about. From the standpoint of the financial condition of the city itself, this large net return is an encouraging thing. Without this revenue the city would face a difficult financial problem. Tax levies would have been stepped up. It probably would have been necessary to finance relief expenditures by borrowing. As it is, the city is in a fairly strong cash position with all of its obligations under control. Instead of being confronted with a threat of higher city levies, taxpayers get comfort out of the possibility of a debt free city in the course of the next decade.

But from another standpoint this large net profit is not so desirable. It is the result of high light and power rates. Compared to the rates charged for light and power in other cities of this size, the local rates are far out of line and need to be revised. Perhaps it is well that this revision has been delayed. Earlier revision would have reduced the city's revenue at a time when that revenue was very much needed. It has proven to be an effective, and comparatively painless, method of taxation. But an excessive light and power rate is a retarding influence in the city's development and should not be continued longer than necessary.

And it is possible that a series of moderate rate reductions over a period of time will not materially reduce the city's income from this department. Our power equipment is now ample to handle a greatly increased volume. Lower rates should stimulate demand and the additional power necessary to supply the increased demand can be generated at a lower per kilowat cost. So there is good reason to believe that the city's net revenue will not decrease in direct ratio to the rate reduction. It is high time, therefore, that rates be revised, bringing them gradually into line with the rates of other cities of this size, and so arranged as to encourage greater consumption.

THE GOVERNOR SEES THE LIGHT

In his address before the Farmer-Labor state convention at St. Paul last week, Governor Olson devoted most of his time to the Supreme Court, saying again what critics of the court have been saying for the past hundred years. The only surprising thing about this part of his speech was his justification for majority rule in the decisions of the court. Instead of supporting those who seek to curb the power of the court by requiring a seven to two vote to set aside an act of Congress, or by giving to Congress the right to overrule an adverse decision by the court, he argued, strange as it may seem, that the court should retain its present powers. He said:

> Some desire a check through a constitutional provision which shall require the votes of at least seven of the nine members of the Supreme Court in order to set aside an Act of Congress. Some groups advocate a constitutional amendment which will provide that the decisions of the Supreme Court declaring an Act of Congress unconstitutional, may be overruled or vetoed by a vote of two-thirds of the members of Congress.
> As a means of checking autocratic power these proposals are worthy of great consideration, but one must not overlook the fact that with the potential growth of Fascism in this nation, we could conceivably have a Fascist-minded Congress which would pass sedition laws and other laws interfering with our civil liberties, and that it would be impossible to obtain seven votes on the Supreme Court to set aside those laws. Or if the other possible check be instituted, the sedition laws set aside by the Supreme Court might be re-enacted by a two-thirds vote of a Fascist Congress.

In other words he now recognizes the wisdom of the arrangement as it exists at the present time, the only change he suggests being the appointment of the judges for a period of ten years instead of for life. The rest of his objectives in governmental reform would be brought about through constitutional amendments as they have in the past. We are glad to have the Governor join the ranks of those of us who have defended the Supreme Court as an important safeguard to liberty. A few more weeks away from the city, out in the bucolic peace and quiet of the hinterland, would probably enable him to get straightened out on several other matters on which his opinions have been somewhat confused.

It is expected that the Red River north of Grand Forks will stage an old fashioned flood this month. According to reports the natives are overhauling their boats and making whatever other preparations they can for the looked-forward-to high water. It seems strange that the politicians have not already started agitating to have the Red River's direction of flow changed from north to south so that the channel would thaw open in time to drain off the Spring water. We are sure this would be a simple problem to the New Deal engineers.

We are not so sure that wrecking the old building next to the court house is going to result in increased civic pride. As long as the old building was there the court house looked pretty good by comparison. Now, we will all agree, the most unsightly building in the block is the court house itself.

Railroad engineers and firemen are not sorry the season of snow drifts is coming to an end. It takes cold courage to hit a snow filled cut at high speed. Riding in a cab under ordinary conditions is thrilling enough to suit us. From the cab to the bottom of the ditch on the sides is a long way down and the engines do sway. We feel more secure in a plane. And while our experience is limited, it is still sufficiently broad to enable us to appreciate what it must be like to throw her wide open and plunge blindly into the drifts hoping, and probably praying a little too, that she'll be right side up when she comes through. We take a lot of things for granted and one of them is that train service will be maintained no matter what the operating conditions may be. It might be well for us to pause occasionally and consider the many factors that enter into the maintaining of such service. And when we consider the task of those who, day and night, in all kinds of weather, bring the trains through, we must realize that one of the elements of the human factor is courage.

It is possible that we overlooked it, but after carefully reading the Governor's speech and the platform adopted by the Farmer-Labor convention no less than three times we concluded that in neither the speech nor the platform was anything said about the need for economy and efficiency in the administration of our state and national governments. If there is one single word of encouragement for the taxpayers in either document we failed to find it.

Compared to the platform adopted two years ago, this year's Farmer-Labor platform is a reactionary document. The co-operative commonwealth idea seems to have been laid on the shelf for the time being.

WHO OWNS THE UNITED STATES?

(Ford News)

Recently we described as mischievous the assertion that the rich 2% of the people own 80 to 90% of the nation's wealth. Forced upon popular credulity by systematic repetition, it is time it were challenged. Who owns the United States? Who owns the homes and farms and personal property, the stores and factories, the money stock and the debts of the United States? Use 1929 or 1933 statistics, it doesn't matter. There are the same number of homes and farms and productive facilities and people, the same amount of land, whether the national wealth is 160 billion dollars, the estimate for 1929, or 329 billions, the estimate for 1933. Who gets the income of the United States? Who controls the productive and distributive process? Tonight we deal with ownership.

In 1929 the largest single block of wealth, 22% of the whole, was dwellings, the homes of the people, valued at 102 billion dollars. Who owns them? Next in volume of wealth were the farms at 58 billion dollars, or 12% of the whole. Who owns these farms? Next comes personal property—clothing, household furnishings, jewelry, automobiles amounting to 49½ billion dollars, or 11% of the national wealth. All of us recognize the ownership of these is almost entirely with individuals.

Of the 23 million houses and lots in this country, 17 million are owned by their occupants, most of the others are the small investments of the same individuals. In cities, 50% of this property is free of mortgage, and banks hold only one 20th of such mortgages as exist. Of the 6 million farms, 3½ million are owned by the men who operate them, and 600,000 of these owners rented additional land. Almost two-thirds of our crop land is owned by the farmers who harvest it. But what about the farm mortgage? In 1930 the mortgaged farms were worth 21 billion dollars and the mortgages less than 7 billion dollars. About 30% of the farm mortgage claim was held by farmers themselves, active and retired; 32% by farmers' local financial institutions and insurance companies, and 12% by government agencies. The 1932 turnover in farm ownership was 8%, only half of that being due to bankruptcy. As a source of disaster the farm mortgage seems comparatively small. The farmers' debt in 1933 was in better shape than the government or corporation debt. Again: personal property of nearly 50 billion dollars' value is almost completely owned by its users. Take the 23,000,000 automobiles for example. About 33% of them are paid for when bought; 96½% of installment purchases result in full ownership. From facts like these it is impossible to create a creditor class lording it over a debtor class.

Add to these the 2% of the national wealth represented by a million and a half retail stores, you know that nine tenths of the stores are little stores, the property of business or both of individuals. Add another 6% for local business buildings, offices, warehouses, repair shops, etc., and we have accounted for over 50% of the national wealth. Add to this the wealth we own collectively, the churches, schools, colleges, libraries, museums, parks, government property, and it grows to 58%.

Then we come to what is called corporate wealth. Take public utilities and transportation, together they account for 14% of the wealth, normally 64 billion dollars. Their ownership is distributed among 12 million people, 40% of them women, so widely distributed that Government has based a policy on that fact. Manufacturing constitutes 9% of the nation's wealth, or 42 billion dollars. It consists normally of 200,000 factories with their equipment. Most of the factories are small places owned by one or several persons; 175,000 factories, or 72%, produce each less than $100,000 worth of goods a year. The rest are the big industries. The Ford Motor Company alone deals with 6,000 other concerns, more than half of which are capitalized for less than $75,000. Conservatively computing the private individual share in all these things, we have this—about 72% of the nation's wealth is held by ordinary individual owners.

That disposes of the falsehood that while our people were working and rearing their families and running their own business, this country was stolen from them. It has been worth while to clear up that point. If you live in long settled parts you can confirm this by personal observation in your own street or town or countryside. But it doesn't really change anything. The wealth of the country is not owned by a handful of people, but that does not solve our difficulty. It only brings us up against the fact that, divided rightly or divided wrongly, there is not enough wealth anyway—not enough, under any division, to permit every American family the standard of life we desire. Rich as our country is, and as rich as it is ... [illegible] ... all the wealth to an exact equality, and even then our economic requirement. That is a bitter pill to national pride, but it is a bone medicine if we will swallow it. Our immediate pressing job is to create more and produce more and ... [illegible] ... distribution.

Looking Backward

TEN YEARS AGO

From the Times of April 8, 1926

With continued warm weather, local farmers will be able to commence field work in a few days.—A. J. McGuire of Minneapolis, general manager of Land O'Lakes Creameries, was a visitor in this city. Before a packed Auditorium the Lutheran Choral society presented the cantata "The Seven Last Words of Christ" under the direction of Dr. P. L. Vistaunet.—Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Long returned to Thief River Falls after having spent the past three years in St. Louis, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Marnuson arrived from Waterloo, Iowa, to visit at the O. D. Oatly home. Miss Maude Johnson, music supervisor in the local schools, is leaving for Detroit, Michigan, to attend a convention of supervisors.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

From the Times of April 6, 1916

Rev. George Larson of Nymore has accepted a call to take charge of Zion Lutheran church in this city beginning June 1. He will succeed Rev. A. L. Larson, who served here eight years. The Thief River Falls Business College opened in the Citizens bank block under the direction of G. M. Langum, president. Charles Lieberman, local clothier, transacted business in the Twin Cities this week. Fred Golder, assistant postmaster, left for Rice Lake, Wisconsin, to visit with relatives. Deputy City Clerk Pederson spent Sunday at his parental home in Fosston.

FUNERAL SERVICES MONDAY FOR MRS. A. O. ASPELIN

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 o'clock at the Augustana Lutheran church, Rev. Herman Larson officiating, for Mrs. A. O. Aspelin who passed away this morning at a local hospital.

Karoline Andreason Aspelin was born at Klinaven, Vermland, Sweden, January 31, 1859. October 1, 1893, she was united in marriage to August O. Aspelin at Crookston. Later they moved to Gatzke where they resided until October 19[illegible], when they moved to Holt.

Surviving are her husband and one daughter, Caroline, two sisters in Sweden, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Hendrickson at Moorhead.

SLEEPS WHILE CHAIR IN WHICH HE SITS BURNS

Isle.—The world's champion sleeper was discovered in the Mille Lacs district recently. An unnamed resident was dozing, sleep in a comfortable rocker in an Isle living room. Between his lips drooped a lighted cigarette. As he lapsed into the arms of Morpheus, the cigarette slid out of his mouth and fell into the upholstery of the chair. The upholstery caught fire and the blaze spread to the drapes on the nearby window. But our hero slept on, undisturbed by the conflagration around him. He was still asleep when another occupant of the building, awakened by the smoke, dragged him out of the chair. A large hole was burned in the back of the sleeper's shirt. The damage to the chair and other furnishings was considerable. A subscription list is being drawn up to buy him a new chair, some wish to hold the honors, a medal to identify him as the world's champion sleeper.

News and Comment

By R. W. Hitchcock

In 1931, contrary to the spirit of the law and in violence of long established American opinion that the judicial office should be divorced as completely as possible from partisan politics, the farmer-labor party in Minnesota put forth farmer-labor candidates for the supreme court in this state. It endorsed two sitting judges and offered for the third candidate an attorney holding a political position with the state under farmer-labor appointment.

The farmer-labor party by this action made partisan candidates of the three candidates, willy-nilly so far as the sitting judges were concerned, and Emil Regnier, state chairman of the farmer-labor party, further attempted to put the farmer-labor brand upon all three by issuing the following appeal to loyal members of the farmer-labor party:

"We, no doubt, will have control of the executive and legislative branch of our government, but that is not enough; we must have men who are liberal minded to interpret our laws."

This bold appeal makes no bones of the desire of farmer-labor leaders to control the courts for partisan political purposes.

Corruption of the courts to partisan political uses is openly sought by the farmer-labor party in other ways, for instance:

1. The Hennepin county convention of the farmer-labor party a few days ago named a committee to select farmer-labor candidates in opposition to sitting judges in Hennepin county.

2. Governor Floyd B. Olson announced late in February that one of the issues upon which he will campaign for election to the Federal Senate is a constitutional amendment to require concurrence of seven of the nine judges of the supreme court in order to make an act of Congress invalid.

3. Congressman Ernest Lundeen, farmer-labor, is proposing a federal act to enlarge the supreme court from nine to eleven judges.

In the case of the 1934 state supreme court justices and in the case of the Hennepin judges the purpose to corrupt the courts for political purposes is openly announced. Chairman Regnier urges upon his party "we" must control the supreme court and the purpose of control in Hennepin county is apparent to everyone and denied by no one.

Governor Olson and Congressman Lundeen might deny any intention to control the court. But what do you think? Back of the plausible explanation which these clever politicians may offer what is their natural interest? Does not all that they have said clearly show that their purpose is to control the court in the interest of their political theories? What is the purpose of a court? To render justice, or to enforce a partisan political theory?

When Charles Munn, then Speaker of the House by grace of farmer-labor votes, and farmer-labor candidate for railroad and warehouse commissioner, in a speech at Weston, October 8, 1934, with Governor Olson sitting on the platform, demanded, "a supreme court that will render decisions we ask for", what did he mean?

The Olson proposal aims at minority control of the supreme court, contrary to fundamental American principle that the majority can have no possible purpose except control of the court for partisan purposes by the appointment of additional judges.

We hear a great deal about security. What security would there be for anyone if a great partisan organization should control, to even influence, the judiciary?

Public opinion of the moment is not necessarily right or just. We often change our minds. The fury of the people against the [illegible] national banking laws approached the point of unanimity. They wanted to impeach Justice Marshall and they did hang him in effigy. But today no one questions the rightness of his decision and it would be difficult today to find a citizen of the United States who holds with the well nigh unanimous popular opinion of that day.

There has been a great hubbub today because of certain supreme court decisions. Among others, Minnesota's governor has said that the chief danger to the American people has been from usurpation by the courts. The records make that statement of the governor look silly. Since the beginning of the United States of America its Congress has enacted 24,500 laws, of which 62 have been set aside by the supreme court as unconstitutional. Figure it out for yourself. That's about 2½ one-hundredths of one per cent. A usurping court that can put over only one usurpation in 150 years out of every 400 chances is doing a bum job of usurping. Besides, it is just possible that some of those 62 decisions overturning Congress were sound judgment. Off hand, we would say that any lawmaking body that ever existed has averaged more, many more, than one rotten law to every 400 enacted.

Total of $44,000,000 Is Spent for Relief in Minnesota During '35

Minnesota has incurred obligations for emergency relief totaling $44,141,649 from January through December 1935, according to an announcement made by Anna Dickie Olesen, State Director for the National Emergency Council. Of this sum, $31,[illegible] or [illegible]% represent a charge against Federal funds, and $6,178,223 or 14.0% against local funds.

These figures include obligations for relief extended under the general relief program, under all special programs, and for administration; purchases of materials, supplies and equipment, rentals of equipment (such as team and truck hire), earnings of non-relief persons employed and other expenses incident to the emergency work relief program.

The sum total of relief obligations incurred by every state in the Union, including the District of Columbia, during the year 1935 is $1,826,930,212. Of this amount, $1,392,978,166 or 71.4% arise from Federal sources, $221,166,217 or 12.3% from State sources, and $212,786,229 or 13.3% from local sources.

Middle River Creamery to Erect New Building

The institution, of which Walter P. [illegible] is buttermaker produced 459,000 pounds of butter in 1935. Work on the new structure will get under way as early as possible this spring, Mr. Jager stated that stockholders of the creamery at Leonard also voted recently to erect a new home.

Cheap Feeds are not Cheap
When Final Results Are Considered
A feed selling at a low cost will not produce sturdy chicks or rapid and uniform growth. You must have a mash so balanced as to get the maximum growth in the shortest time possible. A feed "so" balanced should produce one pound of flesh for every three pounds of feed consumed. A broiler nine weeks old fed a properly balanced ration should weigh from 1½ to 1¾ pounds. This growth can never be obtained by feeding a mixture largely of mill feeds and lacking in vitamins and digestible protein. For maximum growth feed
Land O' Lakes Starting and Growing Mashes
The final results will prove them to be the lowest cost feed per pound of poultry produced.

PUBLIC OPINION

Thief River Falls Times,
Dear Editor:

I wish to assure the old taxpayer that I am not against helping the old and needy people but I am against paying poor relief called pension to those not in need of it and to those who use it for booze. I have been trying to help the old and needy people both those living close by and farther away. Haven't there been any old people in this world before now? Well, I just ask. I have paid taxes for over 40 years and have been paying quite a lot more than what the old taxpayer says he has paid, but I do not expect any rebate on taxes paid. According to God's word it wasn't any more than my duty. If I hadn't paid my share someone else would have to make it up. It sounds like the old taxpayer has lost more sleep because booze wasn't voted into Thief River Falls than I have lost on account of helping the poor. I am glad to hear that the old taxpayer wouldn't need to ask for poor relief called pension. Paying that much taxes as he states he must consequently have quite a lot of property. The federal, state and county pension is based on need the same as the $5.00 county pension. It's no different in that respect. I am always thankful to extend my thanks to the old taxpayer for his good will toward me in regard to getting an office as county commissioner but I am too old for any office of that kind and I like to see the younger ones have a chance so they won't have to live on somebody else's work. I may be much older than the old taxpayer but I do not like to be called an old jigger, so I am only

A Taxpayer.

As told to: FRANK E. HAGAN — ELMO SCOTT WATSON

The Good Ship "Wobble"

THE first stories about the good ship "Wobble" were written by Frank Ward O'Malley and printed in the New York Sun, but other newspaper men have added details to its history. It was O'Malley of course, however, who first introduced its master, Capt. Heinie Hassenpfeffer, and discovered that he wasn't quite sane. Captain Heinie had been a second story man in New York. When he sought new fields for his talents in Africa and found that the houses there were only one story high, the disappointment unbalanced his mind.

The "Wobble" was unbalanced also. It had only one paddle wheel, and when it started out on a voyage with its cargo of subways and artesian wells, it just steamed around and around in a circle.

To correct this defect Captain Heinie junked the engine and paddle wheel, installed masts and sails and set out across the Atlantic. Four and a half days out, the ship ran into what seemed to be a dense black cloud. But the captain soon found that it was a flock of mosquitoes. By the time the "Wobble" had passed through them, the insects had eaten off every scrap of sail and tarred rope from the ship.

For a month the ship drifted with the tide. Again it ran into a cloud of mosquitoes. By a queer coincidence it was the very same flock that had stripped the ship. Captain Heinie knew they were the same because every mosquito wore a pair of canvas overalls, made from his sails, held up by tarred rope suspenders!

GRYGLA

"Look Out Lizzie"

On Friday evening our good neighbors from Goodridge will put on a home talent play, "Look Out Lizzie" at the RNW Hall. This play is sponsored by the Goodridge Community Club and reports coming from that community after the first presentation were to the effect that it was very enjoyable, well rendered and well worth spending a few hours of pleasure. A number of premiums will be given away to holders of lucky tickets and after the show a free dance to patrons. Let's make it a good turnout and help our neighbors along.

"Power on Parade"

A spectacular drama of the modern tractor industry was portrayed on Monday afternoon at the RNA hall, when the Minneapolis-Moline put on their show "Power on Parade".

"Power was the theme of the story all throughout the action packed first reel the onlooker has a "front seat" on an exciting trip through a maze of fire, gears, machinery and gigantic factories, with all this exciting action set to specially written music and played by a thirty piece orchestra.

Sandberg and Bjertness are the local dealers and to them is due a lot of credit in bringing this picture locally. A number of prizes were given to holders of lucky tickets after which the nearly 300 present departed for their homes feeling that their time had been well spent.

Come to the RNW hall Friday evening when the Goodridge Community Club gives the play "Look Out Lizzie" and see how it feels to get $15,000 at one crack.

Mrs. Harry Ristau and daughter from Mavie have been visiting at the H. T. Peterson home the past two weeks. Mrs. Ristau is recuperating from recent illness.

Miss Ingeborg Tapen who has been employed at the O. J. Peterson home for a month, departed for her home near Jelle on Tuesday.—Due to the snow blocked road Chris Rinkle, Roy Brown and Maj. Risberg were forced to spend a pleasant evening in town Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Davidson operators of the movie machine at the local hall were unable to go back home last Monday due to the snow blocked roads. Due to the efficiency of Mr. Davidson the show "Power on Parade" given at the hall in the afternoon was much enjoyed.

Our former buttermaker and manager of the creamery E. O. Berg has secured the management of the creamery at Olga, near Gully and left Monday to begin his new duties. Mrs. Berg is busily packing and will depart the latter part of the week.—Miss Harriet Holbrook who has been attending school at Greenbush is visiting at home. Due to a snow storm and the blocked roads the Easter vacation is somewhat premature, altho much enjoyed.

Oakfield Bucholz and Matt Wick who have been sojourning the major part of the winter in the woods near Northome recently returned and will start getting machinery etc. in shape for the spring operations.—On Saturday evening April 4th our good friends, The Borgen Players, will give a show which was postponed a couple of weeks ago account of the snow blocked roads. After the show a dance will be given free to all patrons.

COP SHOOTS SELF; RUSHED TO HOSPITAL IN MILK WAGON

Eveleth.—Men are men up on the Range and in Eveleth the glory of the police department is second only to that of the milk wagon drivers. A cop who accidently shot himself in that town the other day had the double ignominy of being rushed to the hospital in a milk wagon. Laying aside his cat and revolver while eating lunch, Officer Anthony J. Strlekar, member of the Eveleth police force, dropped the gun on the floor and to his great chagrin shot himself. The cartridge discharged as the gun hit the floor, and the bullet entered Officer Strlekar's left trouser leg, traveling through the fleshy part of his right rear hip and lodging itself in the ceiling. Milk Wagon Driver George Ahlfors, delivering the usual quart at the back door, saw his chance to be a hero, and seating the stricken police officer in his arms, he deposited the wounded one among the milk bottles, whipped up his noble chargers and dashed off to the hospital. Officer Strlekar is recovering from his wounded hip, but his pride may not be mended for some time.

Capitol News Review

By A. I. Harris

With its snow trouble barely behind it, the State Highway Department is now battling against floods and all the difficulties of an unusually bad spring break-up. The quick rise of flood waters in hilly sections of the state is a constant threat to bridges, culverts and roadways. Maintenance crews must be constantly on the alert and the department must be prepared to spend large sums of money to make quick repairs. Surely no motorist who has driven on the highways this winter can fail to realize the necessity for an adequate automobile license fee to supply funds for highway upkeep. This is one instance in which the tax-payer has no difficulty in seeing that he gets value recieved many times over for what he pays.

Any authoritative sociologist will declare that nothing like a crime or vice wave exists. And he will produce figures to substantiate his contention.

What we know as crime or vice waves are merely campaigns brought on by newspapers or political parties for the purpose of attaining some equally mercenary end.

Thus an intelligent reader of newspapers will discount the lurid headlines in the daily press which suddenly appear one claiming the city is filled with vice or that crime has suddenly become rampant. Vice and crime may be rampant at that time, it is true, but any investigation will reveal that vice and crime was equally rampant a week before, a month before, or a year before the newspaper suddenly decided it had an axe to grind. Crime and vice do increase in periods of economic stress, it is granted, but this increase is gradual and does not suddenly flare such as the press would have one believe.

So discount the "play" the Minneapolis press is giving to vice conditions in Minneapolis at present. Vice may exist there and crime as well, but not to any greater extent perhaps than it did two years ago, or than it did 15 years ago.

Department of Justice figures for 1935, incidently, give Minneapolis a crime record which is cleaner than that of any other city outside that staid and established section, New England.

The state convention of the Farmer Labor association is of more than usual interest this year. Governor Olson will step out to make the race for the United States Senate, and a new man will have to be found capable of bringing victory to the Farmer Labor cause on the state ticket.

Political observers of the daily press are now freely admitting that the pre-convention edge lies with Senator Elmer A. Benson, although it is certain that lieutenant Governor Hjalmar Peterson will have many friends and supporters at the convention.

Both liberals and conservatives of the entire nation are watching the farmer labor movement of Minnesota. Reactionaries are determined to break it up at all costs, because it presents to them a dangerous threat against the type of government they believe in. Liberals realize that defeat of the movement in Minnesota at this time is a setback for the entire liberal movement of the nation.

The opposition to the Farmer Labor movement in Minnesota has never dared to present the issues and principles involved honestly and squarely before the voters of this state. They have called names, manufactured "red" scares, and even helped along, in a material way, any Judas which a movement such as this is bound to develop.

At the present time, they are staking everything to develop dissension within the party, encouraging personal differences and petty squabbles. Their big business-controlled newspapers are lending a helping hand in this regard.

It is safe to say at this time that personal differences are certain to disappear and the party will present a united front at the coming campaign. In fact, all leaders are already showing a disposition to unite for a common cause. People who have ideals know how to make personal sacrifices, something which reactionaries do not quite understand. The party again will come out with a definite program for curing the social and economic ills of today, and again will challenge their opponents to a contest on the merits.

HAUPTMANN GETS ANOTHER REPRIEVE TUESDAY EVENING

Execution of Convicted Kidnapper Now Set for Friday Night

Bruno Richard Hauptmann Tuesday night received a dramatic 48-hour extension of life even in the hour he had resigned himself to death in the electric chair.

As the clock struck the hour for his execution as the Lindbergh baby killer, Warden Mark O. Kimberling of state prison announced a two-day delay to afford the county grand jury additional time in which to investigate what he called "some interesting new angles in the case." The execution date was set Wednesday for Friday evening.

While Hauptmann remained in his death house cell the grand jury pressed ahead with its independent inquiry into the repudiated "confession" of Paul H. Wendel, a former Trenton attorney.

The delay in carrying out the execution mandate was made by the warden himself on the authority he held, even as the executioner waited for Hauptmann.

Warden Kimberling, authorized under the terms of Hauptmann's sentence to inflict the death penalty any time he chooses "during the week of March 30," said he acted at the request of the grand jury.

With a crowd of several hundred persons waiting outside the prison walls for word that Executioner Robert Elliott had performed his duty, Warden Kimberling faced the group of men who had gathered in his office to act as official witnesses and said:

"There are some interesting new angles in the case they wish to investigate."

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, weepingly confident that "something" would happen to save her husband, received the news with "hysterical joy."

Four Subzero Mornings Deny Spring's Arrival

Temperatures much below zero for the spring season prevailed locally during the past week, and little of the winter's accumulation of snow has disappeared. April was ushered in Wednesday with a minimum temperature of zero, while the reading this morning was three below. Subzero temperatures also were recorded Friday, Monday and Tuesday. The lowest point reached during the week was seven below zero Tuesday.

$3,000 IN LIQUOR FOR R. L. FALLS IS TAKEN ON MONDAY

Hi-Jackers Make Big Haul Near Mentor Monday Evening

Red Lake and Polk county sheriff's officers were in Grand Forks Tuesday seeking clues to the identity of hi-jackers who stole a $3,000 load of liquor Monday night while it was en route to Red Lake Falls.

In the group were Sheriff Carl Kankel of Red Lake Falls, and Oscar Holstad and Ed Kelly, Polk county deputies.

The load was stolen near Mentor, Minn., according to Sheriff Julius Spokeley of Polk county. The Red Lake Falls truck was reported to have been held up and the liquor transferred to the hi-jacker's truck which then proceeded on to a point near Mallory where it became stalled and was pulled back into the highway by a wrecker called out from Grand Forks. The theft was said to have occurred about 11 P. M. and the Grand Forks wrecker was called to Mallory between 1 and 2 a. m. Tuesday.

The Red Lake and Polk county officers were in Grand Forks and East Grand Forks for some time Tuesday afternoon but did not reveal whether they had found a trace of the hi-jackers.

FIRST BONUS BOND SHIPMENT COMES TO MINNEAPOLIS

Bonds Will be Delivered to Former Service Men After June 15

The northwest's first soldier bonus bonds, $10,000,000 worth of them, arrived Monday at the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis and were locked up in its vault, in readiness for payment to veterans next June. No bonds will be paid out mailed or delivered before June 15, Governor John N. Peyton of the reserve bank said.

This first shipment, which left Washington Saturday, represents about one-eighth of the total of some $83,000,000 that will be needed to pay bonuses to the estimated 167,000 former World war service men who are eligible for compensation in the ninth federal reserve district. They will receive an average of about $500 each—10 of the bonds.

Detailed plans for handling the payment of bonds to service men will not be worked out until final instructions come from Washington. It is expected that veterans in Minneapolis will have to come to the Federal Reserve bank to exchange their approved compensation certificates or other documents proving ownership, for the bonus bonds.

The bonds will be mailed to service men in other northwest cities on receipt of certificates, according to present tentative plans. They bear interest at 3 per cent annually and run nine years, maturing in 1945.

In Minnesota, slightly over 100,000 veterans will receive about $50,000,000 of the bonds.

CCC Enrollment Will be Conducted in Thief River Falls Shortly

An enrollment of prospective CCC camp members will be held in Thief River Falls on some date between April 6 and 14, County Auditor A. M. Senstad was advised late last week in a communication from C. S. Rondestvedt, supervisor of CCC enrollments in St. Paul.

The enrollment will be made in the court room in the court house, and the quota to be enrolled here was not announced up to last night. Young men over the age of 17 and under 29 and representing families on relief are eligible, including boys who have served at least four months previously in a CCC camp, provided they have an honorable discharge.

Further details of the enrollment are expected to reach the auditor's office by the end of the week.

Michigan Man States Democratic Hen Must Have Laid Noper's Egg

Last week the Times reported the entry in its "Can you beat it?" department by V. C. Noper of a hen's egg weighing one-half ounce. In a letter to this paper F. P. Greene of Escanaba, Michigan, a former resident of Thief River Falls, comments as follows.

"I see by the Times, which I consider to be a very reliable paper, where V. C. Noper, a farmer living near your city is raising pullets which are producing eggs weighing only one half ounce each, but as he claims his pullets have as loud a cackle as the one who laid the golden egg this leads me to believe that his pullets must belong to the Democratic party. Now if Mr. Noper were residing in the state of Michigan where eggs are sold by the pound, it should not take him long to be convinced that his pullets are any thing but profitable; so my advice to you, old top, would be to wring their necks, and do your mite toward bringing the country back to prosperity."

Howard Grow of Dawson Takes Norum's Place in County Agent's Office

Howard Grow of Dawson, Minnesota, arrived in the city Tuesday to assume the post of assistant to County Agent R. M. Douglass, succeeding E. B. Norum of Hallock, who left last week to begin work on a soil survey in Missouri for the federal government. Mr. Grow is a graduate of the University of Minnesota school of agriculture, and this spring completed the course at the state college of agriculture, in addition to which he has had practical farming experience.

national third party, authorizing a committee to explore the subject of a national ticket this year. Even that brought on an argument, but it was approved 368½ to 260½.

Governor Floyd B. Olson firmly restated the principles of the "co-operative common-wealth" and attacked the federal supreme court Friday in his keynote address to the convention.

Speaking for two hours and 15 minutes the governor detailed to his party the record of past accomplishments, stressing the farm mortgage moratorium law of Minnesota.

Proclaimed his brief for believing the federal supreme court has exceeded its authority in "deciding cases, not upon the law, but upon the economic beliefs of its members."

Outlined a program of "stop-gap" federal legislation to relieve farmers and workers until a new order is established.

Gave the text of a proposed constitutional amendment to pave the way for a new economic order based on "production for use" and the "economy of abundance."

C. Gustafson & Son are starting on their twenty-sixth year as representatives in the Thief River Falls territory for the products of the Minnesota State Prison Industries.

We have been reminded that when this firm started doing business twenty-five years ago, the first agency contract signed by them was for the sale of our products.

We appreciate very much the high standard of service they have maintained in this community for us. During this period our relations with them have been very pleasant.

And we wish in this way to extend our earnest and sincere congratulations to them on the fine record of their progress during this quarter of a century. Such a record could be achieved only through sound business practices and honest dealing.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

HIGHER ANGLING FEES NECESSARY, WILLARD STATES

Says Present Fees Fail to Provide for Needs of Department

An increase of present fishing license fees to provide a higher revenue for law enforcement, research, and propagation was urged in a statement made last week by E. V. Willard, commissioner of conservation.

Annual funds of $10,000 for educational work, $10,000 for wildlife research in cooperation with the United States biological survey, and a permanent warden force with reasonable assurance of tenure" are recommended in the statement.

"Present revenues simply cannot be made to embrace some of the most needed activities," Mr. Willard stated "After the cost of a modest fish propagation program [illegible] law enforcement [illegible] the remainder of the [illegible] with an emergency lay-off facing the game wardens each winter when revenues are at their lowest ebb."

"If the sportsmen of the state concerned with perpetuating angling in the future believe that the license fee of 50 cents now paid by resident anglers is sufficient, and that an increase to add to the revenues of the department is not necessary or will be inimical to the best interests of the conservation of fish life, the conservation commission, I am sure, is not going to press for an increase.

"All that the commission desires is that sportsmen recognize the limitations which confront the department and the commission in their effort to maintain an adequate supply of game fish."

HEN PUTS INITIAL ON EGG

Howard Lake.—A hen on the C. W. Birkholz farm southwest of Howard Lake laid an egg recently which had a perfect letter "B" near one end. The letter is raised and is made of shell material, being about an inch long and perfectly proportioned. The initial is presumed to stand for "Biddy". The hen evidently didn't want any possibility of error as to who was responsible for the egg.

Taxation of automobiles in the United States in 1935 reached the new high of approximately $1,300,000,000 or about $50 per car registered.

$1,100,000 in Highway Jobs Includes Paving on Trunk Highway 75

Bids on highway jobs estimated to cost approximately $1,100,000 have been called for April 17 by the Minnesota Highway department. Four paving, four grading and two heavy grading and stabilized base projects are divided among the following 9 counties: Aitkin, Big Stone, Kittson, Murray, Nobles, Rock, Wabasha, Wilkin and Wright. Included in the jobs for which bids are asked are:

T. H. No. 75 between Doran and Breckenridge; length 6.9 miles; 93,857 cu. yds. of excavation, 20,149 cu. yds. of aggregate base and 82,181 square yards of concrete paving.

T. H. No. 75 between Hallock and 1 mile north; length 1.6 miles; 10,751 cubic yards of excavation and 18,196 square yards of concrete paving.

Hamline A Capella Choir to Appear at Crookston

Hamline university's famed a capella choir will be heard in concert in Crookston, April 22, under the sponsorship of the First M. E. Church. The choir is well known in music circles in the Twin Cities and the state. A recent annual concert sponsored by the Schubert Club of St. Paul was the subject of much praise by Twin City music critics. Intensive training is a regular part of the choir's routine. The group trains five hours a week under Professor John Marinum Kuypers, while individual members are required to take vocal training. Voice tests are the sole determination of membership. Many of the members are majoring in fields other than music.

CATTLE SLAUGHTER INCREASE THIS YEAR

Indication of why the cattle market has been showing weakness is shown in the large number of cattle that have been slaughtered at federally inspected packing plants of the United States, says the Livestock Market Digest published by the Central Co-Operative Association, farmer-owned livestock selling agency at South St. Paul. February slaughter was 741,000 head or the largest for the month since 1918, the record year. For the first two months this year, cattle slaughter has been heavy in spite of the weather conditions, which have greatly hampered the marketward movement of livestock.

NO EXCEPTIONS TO RESTRICTIONS ON HIGHWAY LOADS

Rules Will be Strictly Enforced During Spring Breakup Period

Load restrictions placed on trunk highways during the spring break-up must be enforced against school buses and all other vehicles without exception, according to an announcement by W. F. Rosenwald, chief maintenance engineer of the Minnesota highway department.

"We are besieged with requests to exempt certain vehicles from the posted load limits on restricted highways", Mr. Rosenwald said. "This we cannot do. Load limits are put in effect at this season to prevent roads from becoming absolutely impassable and to guard against tremendous damage to the highway system.

"A few weeks inconvenience results for trucks and busses, but this is necessary in the public interest. Hundreds of thousands of dollars damage to our highways would result without the restrictions. We make the load limits as high as possible without sacrificing protection of the road. Since no exceptions can be made to the restrictions, we ask the co-operation of everyone in this effort to protect the highways."

TAKES TAME DEER FOR RIDE IN CAR

Hallock.—S. G. Foss had an unusual experience the other evening while returning from Lancaster, when a yearling buck deer was apparently claiming the right of way on the highway. In order to protect the animal from possible injury, Foss got out of his car and tried to remove the buck from the road, which proved unsuccessful, as the animal showed no fear on being approached and refused to leave the road. Foss loaded the deer into his car and brought it to Hallock, where he notified Game Warden Blid, who immediately solved the mystery. Blid had turned the fawn into the game refuge last fall after having had the little fellow at his home for several months while a fractured leg was being cared for. Reports are to the effect that this young deer had frequented various farm yards in Hazelton township ever since he was turned out last summer, and has even at times tagged along with school children going to school, and spent the day around the grounds.

F.-L. Platform Asks for 'Planned Plenty'

Complete Platform Is Given Below as Drafted at Convention

Following is a text of the platform as adopted by the state Farmer-Labor convention in St. Paul last week-end.

The Farmer-Labor association in convention assembled in March, 1936, hereby renews its pledge to use its every effort to bring about an economic system in both state and nation that will function for the general welfare of the entire people, enabling all to be assured of the fullest opportunities to provide for their material needs during their working years and to enjoy adequate protection in sickness and old age as a right—not as charity.

The Farmer-Labor party of Minnesota recognizes that the United States has the most wonderful natural resources, great factories and machinery of production and power, with millions of capable workers and farmers ready and able to produce food, clothing and shelter in great abundance for all. At this time when all could live in prosperity and happiness we find that there are millions of working men and women in poverty, want and degradation, and hundreds of thousands of farmers, businessmen and professional people who have become poverty stricken and bankrupt.

Advocate Planned Plenty

Reforms in taxations, finance and production control can do but little in alleviating present distress, and are only justified as temporary expedients to meet an emergency. The program of the present system constitutes a planned poverty; we advocate and demand a system of planned plenty. To effect a cure for economic ills changes must be fundamental.

Natural resources and monopolized essential to our national life and well-being must ultimately be collectively owned and democratically controlled and operated, to the end that democracy shall prevail in our industrial as well as in our political life.

No lasting recovery from the depression and no permanent prosperity can be achieved unless the homes and property of the farmers, the wage earners and the professional people and small businessmen are fully protected, and the opportunity to own homes and property is restored to the masses by production of plenty.

Urge Government Banks

To achieve these ends we propose and recommend:

1—An amendment to the constitution of the United States empowering the congress to pass laws eliminating child labor, regulating working conditions in industry, regulating agricultural and industrial production, providing security against old age, unemployment and sickness and providing for government ownership of banking and monopolistic industries except independent banks locally owned and not affiliated with chain banks and which are financing independent merchants and farmers.

2—An amendment to the constitution of the United States reducing the term of office of federal judges from life to a term of not more than 10 years.

3—Legislation by Congress:

(A) Insuring individual ownership of farms and farm homes by refinancing the farmer at a low rate of interest. (Frazier-Lemke bill.)

(B) Extending government credits to farmers' and workers' co-operatives for the purchase of plants for the processing and sale of their products at a fair price based upon the cost of production.

(C) Providing for the governmental operation of idle productive industrial units by the unemployed for the production of goods for the use of the unemployed.

(D) Insuring the neutrality of the United States in any foreign war by prohibiting the sale and delivery of goods to nations engaged in warfare.

(E) Making illegal the granting of price rebates and advertising credits by manufacturers to chain stores in discrimination against independent merchants and asking for further appropriations for the investigation of these and other unfair trades practices against independent merchants.

(F) Providing adequate sums for a youth program designed to give our youth an opportunity for education and work. (Benson-Amlie bill.)

(G) Providing for government ownership and operation of plants for the manufacture of armaments and munitions of war.

(H) As a further means of preventing war we demand the conscription of wealth in the event of war.

(I) Providing pensions for the widows and orphans of war veterans.

(J) Ratifying a treaty with Canada for the building of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes waterway.

(K) Giving the American market to the American farmer.

(L) We favor immediate establishment by the federal or state government, or both, of a housing program providing adequate and helpful housing at reasonable rents and employing union building tradesmen at union scales.

(M) That congress exercise exclusive and constitutional power to coin money and regulate the value thereof.

(N) That we fight for passage of the Frazier-Lundeen bill.

Oppose Dictatorship

The Farmer-Labor association being strongly opposed to dictatorship, calls upon the people of the United States to fight against the activities of those who advocate the establishment of a despotic dictatorship and tyranny in the United States and it is the duty of the people to protect and fight for our democratic form of government and for the freedom of speech, freedom of the press and lawful assemblage.

Legislation by the state:

We favor conservation of soil and forests; reforestation of depleted reserves; conservation of water supplies.

We advocate a reduction of the legal and contract rate of interest. We advocate an adequate and effective license tax on oleomargarine and all butter substitutes sold and used in the state of Minnesota.

We advocate an extension of the mortgage moratorium law.

We advocate a just and adequate unemployed insurance law.

Demand Generous Pension

We advocate a generous old age pension law.

We advocate an amendment to the state constitution giving the state the right to establish minimum wages in industries and maximum hours of employment.

We advocate a law providing for state fund workman's compensation.

We advocate substantial increased benefits under the workmen's compensation act for permanent partial disability.

We pledge our support to all workers in their struggle for higher wages and better working conditions. We are against importation or use of thugs and strike breakers in labor disputes.

We reaffirm our beliefs in equality of educational opportunities and therefore propose the use of income taxes to decrease local school levies, payment of all special state aid in full, uniform budgetry procedure as opposed to strait-jacket expenditure control legislation, creation of a more extensive program for youth between the ages of 16 and 21.

Military Training Opposed

We oppose compulsory military training at all educational institutions supported wholly or in part by state funds.

We recommend that all candidates for the state legislature be elected by party designation.

We oppose the adoption of proposed constitutional amendment number one.

We are unalterably opposed to a general sales tax.

We favor an improved chain store tax for the benefit of the independent merchant and the consumer.

We favor amending the corporate excess tax law to a flat 20 mill rate on all corporate excess.

We favor an increase on money and credits tax to five mills.

We favor an increase of the gross earnings tax on telephone companies, farmers' co-operative lines excepted.

We favor an increase of the railroads gross earnings tax, of the occupations and royalty taxes on iron ore.

We favor an increase on graduated net income taxes and on inheritance and gift taxes in the higher bracket, all of which would bring an addition of millions of dollars into the state treasury to relieve the unfair tax now carried by property.

We favor the formation of consumer's co-operatives, credit unions, co-operative banking and service organizations, including co-operative enterprises for health, housing and rural electrification.

We favor a civil service law.

Realizing the importance of power in modern industry and home life, we propose the adoption of the power plan of the state planning board, providing for the creation of a state advisory power commission to make a survey of the actual and potential power capacity and need of the state, determining the cost of generating and distribution of power setting up economic power districts into which municipally owned plants and rural electric co-operatives may form into leagues of municipalities for the generation and distribution of power, and urging the removal of all legislative restrictions to the formation of such leagues of municipalities and co-operatives.

We recognize the duty of the state to the unemployed and pledge the full resources and power of the state to the end that suffering and destitution among the unemployed and needy shall be eliminated.

LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL PROGRESS

FORMER STUDENT OF LINCOLN HIGH DEBATES IN TEXAS

G. S. Hauge, Recently of L. H. S. Faculty, Coaches the Concordia Team

Lincoln High school is especially proud of one of its alumni, Ralph Fjelstad '34, who this week represented Concordia College at the Pi Kappa Delta forensic tournament in Houston, Texas. Ralph, with Burton Smith of Kennedy, competed in the men's debate tourney. He also entered the extemporaneous speaking contest, speaking on "The International Churches in the City". Over 140 Pi Kappa Delta chapters were represented by more than 500 speakers at the tourney.

Gabriel S. Hauge, former English teacher and debate coach here, and at present debate coach at Concordia college, accompanied Ralph Fjelstad, Burton Smith, Margaret Haugseth and Dorothy Holm. Both Miss Haugseth and Miss Holm represented Concordia in the women's debate contest. Mr. Hauge also served on the committee for the extempore speaking contest.

Extempore speeches were limited to eight minutes. At the conclusion of his speech, the speaker was permitted to answer one question. In the oratorical division, all speeches would be no longer than 1500 words.

Ralph Fjelstad has participated in debate work during his three years in college. While in high school, he was a member of the Lincoln squad which entered the regional tournament. His achievement is certainly one that we may well recognize.

LINCOLN HIGH TIMES

Did Peggy G. and Ardelia G. have a gay time Saturday P. M.? New experience in quick removal, eh?

Whose excuse was it to go see Erling M. when Bob R was in town Sunday? Not Mona M., Ardelia G., and Jean G.

The seniors' big worry at present is—will I get in the Class Play? They'll have to be pretty swellegant to surpass the juniors' one last fall.

What was James N. thinking about in Physics class when he said he was standing near the radiator to get hot?

From present indications we'll all be getting new winter coats (fur appropriate) for Easter.

Joyce O., Don. L., Lorraine A., and Lynn H. were over at Olson's supposedly playing checkers. We bet More likely Monopoly, taken literally.

Too bad the pharmacy boys haven't a home, isn't it? No sarcasm intended.

Seems kind of queer the way a certain freshman girl goes visiting every night, or is it?

What's happening to a certain supposedly devoted couple, both seniors? For goodness sakes, don't let the class play interfere.

What's the matter with the appeal of the T. R. F. girls? Evidently, it is not so good as far as Warren is concerned.

Heard the latest? It's too bad, too. Lynn and Jack are aunts, they have a niece.

Babe Nesse seems quite infatuated with Iryne A. during biology. It used to be sharpening her pencils, now it's offering her candy.

What's so fascinating about Cliff H's spats to Audrey A?

RALLY-WHO

Just in case you don't know—Marion Dillon is the baby of the family and likes the name.

Adrian better watch himself so that he doesn't get the mumps after Friday night.

To be popular—own a "Monopoly" game.

All calls, telephone and otherwise, by the "men-around-town" seem to end at a beauty shoppe.

Hardest thing in the world to do—get in the class play.

Surely can tell this is Leap Year by the way some of the girls are working overtime.

Poor Eric came late to Physics class. When asked why he was late, he said somebody hid his shoes. Must have been a pretty big place in which to hide them. I guess Lennie H. was the culprit.

The romance that started in the school bus coming back from Crookston seems to be still nearing the climax.

AMONG THE 400

Mr. Johnson, Junior Business instructor, has submitted the following theme written by a student in his class, Helen Olson. The title of this theme is "How to Develop a Personality".

"What is personality? It is you. You identified as a person, an individual. Chemically we are all pretty much alike, so much iron, so much calcium, and so much water. But in personality we are not alike. Each one is different. You are essentially you.

The very definition of personality sets up one of the basic rules for developing personality. You cannot imitate. You can't pick out some person whom you admire and duplicate her. You may try, but the result would be dismal failure, imitation— affection—not developing your own personality.

The first step in developing any personality is—Dare to be yourself! There are really three kinds of personality—mental, spiritual, and physical. Physical personality is regarded as a vital outpouring of energy, a radiant bubbling over of vitality. Cultivate a sense of humor.

In order to have physical personality, then you must have health. Most of us live in a sort of "in-between" state—neither sick nor well. We could all capture the amount of health that we were to have if we would but follow the simple health rules that we were taught. Such ones are plenty of sleep, exercise, and eating wholesome foods each day.

After we have gained health the rest follows naturally. For who, when in perfect health, could be anything but cheerful, tactful, enthusiastic, and full of pep?

You can discipline your mind to helpful thinking just as you developed your muscles to correct carriage. Read books that are really worth reading and require some thought. Don't fill your thoughts with jealousy, envy, and dislike for people.

Of course, you can develop your spiritual personality by taking an active interest in church activities.

I think the poise, serenity, and the suave character of sophistication are exemplified by Norma Shearer. But, as I said before, You must develop your own personality.

The modern idea of roughing it is to do without a heater in the limousine.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Spring Athletic Show!

Lincoln High will present a new and different athletic show tomorrow evening at the Auditorium. Different, that is, as far as local high school athletics are concerned. Now, with respect to the participants. A boxing, wrestling, and gymnastic show all in one evening is scheduled to be performed before the local townspeople.

For the last three weeks the "pugs" and "grunt and groan" artists have been preparing for the exhibitions. The tumblers have probably done more hard work and practiced longer than the other stellar attractions, but in fist-cuffs and man-handling, the others will fill the air with gloves and flying arms and legs, and the evening with plenty of excitement!

Begun as a hold-over between basketball and the spring sports, track and spring football, the Spring Athletic Show may in time come to be a part of Lincoln High School, as the Mardi Gras is part of New Orleans, and the Carnival of Roses is part of Pasadena.

Students in French Class Get Letters

Four pupils in Miss Olson's French I class have received letters from students in France. These French students are being taught the essentials of the English language. The letters tell interesting stories and facts about French habits and customs.

On Monday, part of the regular class was devoted to the reading of these letters. In addition to provided information about the schools of France, the letters greatly amused the students. All of the letters were received from a private school in Civray, France. Part of the letters were written in English, part in French.

At a later date the French I students will answer these French pupils. All of this correspondence is supervised by the International Correspondence Scolaire. This organization has as its primary objective the promoting of friendship between all nations of the world. It works for no profit but hopes to encourage good fellowship.

FRESHMEN THEMES

Below is printed the last of the freshmen themes on the novel "Ivanhoe." All of these themes were selected by Miss Helen Margaret Olson, English I instructor.

The Knights' Arms and Armor

The chief weapons used by knights in the Middle Ages were the lance and the sword, and for protection against these a helmet was used. It was sometimes a tightly shaped hood covering the back of the head but leaving the face unprotected. Some were cone shaped with a visor that could be moved up or down, while many others were like broad rimmed hats. Some had a piece of iron called a nasal which came down over the forehead and the nose. It was often ornamented in silver and gold and sometimes there was the crest of an eagle or a lion on it.

The warrior always had a plate of iron to guard his heart as well as his head. Sometimes a jacket of leather heavily padded and sometimes ornaments were used. These were called a Hauberk. It occurred to someone that if rings of mental were sewed upon it, it would be much stronger. Finally the metal rings became interlocked, which made it much stronger. These could be rolled into a small bundle and carried, were far less clumsy, and were not very heavy.

However, two other weapons could still break into them. They were the battle ax and the heavy battle hammer. The head of the hammer sometimes weighed twenty pounds and when well wielded was a terrible weapon. Priests and Bishops were sometimes called to lead an army and to pray for them. They were forbidden to take the sword by the Church rules, so they used a hammer.

The next thing to do was to fasten plates of steel at the most exposed places. Every piece had its name. The chest and back were protected by a cuirass; the throat, by a gorget; the thighs, by a cuisses; the arms and shoulders, by brassarts and ailettes; and the hands, by gauntlets, while a chausses protected the feet. The Knight wore golden spurs which were forbidden to those of lower rank.

As a protection from the heat of the sun, the knight also wore a sleeveless tunic called a tabard. The knight also had a design on his breastplate or shield by which he might be recognized.

The sword was more than a weapon, as it formed a cross at the blade and hilt. Not only the sword had significance but most of the other weapons as well. The straightness of the spear symbolized strength. The helmet suggested modesty while the spurs suggested allegiance. The shield reminded the knight that by its use he saved his body, so he ought to use his body to protect his lord.

The knights favored steeds from Spain but even more, those of Arabia. Arabian horses were treated as one of the family. If a knight was thrown from his horse, the horse did not run away but stood quietly beside him. The horse also was protected by armor, as well as the knight. Its head, chest, and flanks were safe from spear thrusts. The saddle clothes were also of rich material highly decorated. On the horse's head there was the bridle that was highly ornamented with gold and silver and sometimes with precious stones. After a battle the horse was not forgotten, and he was well fed in his master's tent close to the knight's table.

ELIAS TAMBURITZ SERENADERS GIVE PROGRAM TUESDAY

Jugoslavian Musicians Entertain Students at City Auditorium

On Tuesday evening at eight o'clock at the City Auditorium the students and teachers were entertained by the "Elias Tamburitza Serenaders" from Jugoslavia. There were four in the group—Mr. Elias, and his two daughters, Martha and Ann, and his son, Charles Elias, Jr.

Jugoslavia is a country composed of Southern Slavs. It was here in the province of Croatia that Mr. Elias was born. Farming is the chief occupation but in the large cities there are a few factories. The people dress in native costumes: the women wear full side, blouse and bolero jacket: the side blouse and bolero jacket: the men wear knee boots, full trousers, sash, shirt and a jacket of the same type as that of the women. Years ago the shepherds who could neither read nor write invented an instrument which they named "tamburitza" which translated means "passing the day." When it was first made it had only two strings, then two more were added, and on one of the kinds of tamburitzas, Mr. Elias added another two strings making a complete G chord. The tamburitza is claimed to be one of the oldest instruments of the world, and it was from this that our guitars were made.

The serenaders played a variety of types of music—one number from the operetta, "The Chocolate Soldier," a group of native folk songs, American folk songs familiar to everyone, and a few popular selections, then an aria from an opera and finally a song that told of the events of the day in Jugoslavia. All these effects were secured by the tamburitzas, and tambourines, and bells and whistles.

As the closing number, a native dance was performed. This dance, called "Kolo" is danced only three times a year at festivals corresponding to our May Day, Thanksgiving, and Homecoming.

Girls' Basketball Starts Wednesday

The girls' basketball tournament started last Wednesday. The classes will play each other twice. The first game, perhaps one of the best, was played in the gymnasium Wednesday night after school when the sophomores challenged the juniors.

The girls were favored by having Victor Jung and Adrian Lorentson as referees. They probably should have had sirens rather than whistles as the girls screeched, hollered, and yelled so much of the time that the whistles could hardly be heard. For instance—when the game ended there was a tie. It was decided that the first team making a basket would win. The sophomores made a basket, although about two minutes before the whistle had blown. There was so much noise the girls were unaware of the fact. The basket, naturally, didn't count.

After playing six minutes overtime, one of the juniors made a basket which did count. The final score was 14 to 12 in favor of the junior girls.

All games in the tournament promise to be very exciting. Each team is bound to practice up to try to defeat the others. Now, which will win?

FARM DEBT LOAD NOW TAKES LESS HOGS, CORN, BEEF

Lower Interest Rates and Higher Prices Reduce Farmers' Costs

Higher prices for farm products, and lower interest rates brought about through the Farm Credit Administration enable Minnesota farmers now to carry a farm debt load for about one-third the cost of a similar load 3 years ago.

Some figures supporting this proposition have just been released by the Farm Credit Administration of St. Paul. The figures show that the average debt load in December 1932 cost the farmer almost 6 per cent, including unsecured as well as mortgage debts, while a land bank loan made at the present regular rate is only 4 per cent, and such a loan is available to pay agricultural indebtedness, secured or unsecured.

However, it is in the matter of prices that the most striking comparisons are shown. For instance it required 6,400 pounds of beef cattle in December 1932 to pay the interest on a loan of $3,000, the average size land bank loan in Minnesota. Exactly 3 years later it required only 2,000 pounds because of lower interest rates and higher prices for cattle. The reduction in this instance is 63 per cent.

To pay the same interest with hogs in 1932 took 7,200 pounds as against 1,300 pounds in 1935. The dairy farmer had to sell 818 lbs. of butterfat at prevailing prices in 1932 to carry the same debt load he could carry in 1935 with 357 pounds.

It required 1,286 bushels of Minnesota corn to pay the same interest in 1932, but in 1935 the farmer could keep the 1000 bushels for himself, and pay the annual interest charge with the 286 bushels!

The percentage of saving of farm products to the farmer is 62 per cent in the case of hogs, 60 per cent in butterfat, and 77 per cent in the case of corn.

Early T. B. Diagnosis Campaign Instituted by Public Health Group

Endorsed by health authorities, medical societies, and leaders in industry, health and education, the annual "Early Diagnosis Campaign," sponsored throughout Minnesota by the Minnesota Public Health Association will get under way the first week in April. Under the slogan "Fight Tuberculosis With Modern Weapons" two phases of the tuberculosis problem will be emphasized:

(a) Anticipating tuberculosis among youth of high school and college age by examination with the tuberculin test and X-rays.

(b) The discovery of tuberculosis in its early stages and the need for going to the doctor promptly when symptoms are first apparent.

"In contrast to the association's annual Christmas Seal appeal for funds, the Early Diagnosis Campaign is a strictly educational effort," explained the bulletin from the Minnesota Public Health Association.

"In this campaign, we are urging that boys and girls of high school and college age be examined routinely for tuberculosis with the tuberculin test and the X-ray, which are the modern weapons referred to in the slogan. By means of these two diagnostic aids it is possible to discover not only whether the germs of tuberculosis are in a person's body but, if so, how much damage, if any, has been done to the lungs."

FARMER SMOTHERED AS SILAGE FALLS ON HIM

Milaca. —Jerry Keefe, well known farmer of Benton county, was killed recently by being smothered to death in his silo. Accompanied by a young man in the neighborhood, William Messenson, Keefe entered the silo to try and dislodge a lot of frozen silage that was clinging to the upper part of the structure. A large amount of the silage suddenly fell, burying both men under it, but Messenson managed to crawl out from under the mass. Keefe was unable to get out, and was smothered to death. Messenson is confined to his bed as a result of his injuries. It took 15 minutes to dig Keefe's body out from under the silage, about eight feet of the silage having piled down on him.

'U' Committee Studies Health Science Fields

The relationships between medicine, dentistry and pharmacy, together with the likelihood, or wisdom of bringing about closer cooperation in teaching these three branches of health science are being considered by a special committee at the University of Minnesota, recently appointed by President L. D. Coffman.

When he appointed the committee Dr. Coffman pointed out that at one time specialization made it desirable for each group to work along its own lines, but that the development of science has now brought about a situation in which the knowledge possessed by each group is necessary to all the others. A much greater interdependence exists than did formerly.

No definite policy for the future has been decided upon, but the committee has been asked to inspect possibilities and see how far further cooperation among the health sciences can be carried.

Low Seed Cost Favors Sowing of Reed Canary Grass, U Farm Man Says

With reed canary grass seed selling for 50 cents or less per pound, compared with 75 cents or more per pound previously, farmers have an unusually good opportunity this year to begin growing this remarkable hay and pasture crop, says A. C. Arny, agronomist at University Farm, St. Paul.

When grown on moist rich peat or muck soils, this grass yields from 3 to 4 tons of hay per acre. Dairy cattle eat it as readily as timothy. It is also excellent for pasture, producing heavily all season long, and bearing heavy animals without hummocking. Unlike timothy and other tame grasses, it can stand considerable flooding without smothering.

Although it is best to plow the land, if possible, in preparation for the crop, good stands have been obtained on land merely disked. Disking of course is the only method of preparation that can be undertaken on land so wet as to bear horses only when partially frozen. Such places should be disked as soon as the surface thaws to a depth of 3 or 4 inches. The crop may be seeded either in the spring or fall, as conditions permit.

Before reed canary is planted, the land should be carefully studied as to fertilizer needs and the requisite materials applied. Peats very frequently require phosphate and potash, available either in barnyard manure or commercial materials.

Four pounds of seed per acre will make a fairly good stand, which will thicken considerably after the roots have become established. With the seed as cheap as it is, however, the seeding of 6 to 8 pounds per acre is justified. Peat land should be packed with a heavy roller after planting.

UNINTENTIONALLY BECOMES PICKPOCKET IN BIG CROWD

Mountain Lake. —The ease with which pickpockets work in a crowd was forcibly demonstrated to Jake D. Dick, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dick of Mountain Lake, when he caught himself "red handed" with the "goods" after the basketball tournament in that village recently. For a time he hardly knew whether to throw himself into jail or petition a plea for clemency. Young Dick, attending the basketball games, found himself in the center of the crowd which surged through the door after the last whistle. When he emerged, he found a watch hanging to his coat button. While pressing through the crowd, the chain of the watch had caught young Dick's coat button, and the watch was pulled from its owner's vest pocket. Dick later discovered the watch belonged to C. O. Castledine of Windom, who prized it very highly in that he had won it in a salesmanship contest. Dick made the trip to Windom to return the watch, valued at $100, and received a ten dollar reward for his honesty.

RING RIDES FIVE YEARS ON FRAME OF AUTOMOBILE

Lakefield. Mrs. Lester Norstand believes in miracles now. About five years ago she lost her high school class ring. The other day Mr. A. E. Norgrant's car stopped and the battery had to be repaired. When the cover was lifted above the battery Einer Jensen found the ring, laying on the frame of the car. The ring had apparently been riding on the frame for the past five years, while its owner hunted high and low for it.

COUNTY STUDENTS WERE GRADUATED AT N. W. SCHOOL

Took Part in Many Activities at Institution in Crookston

Three Pennington County students were graduated from the advanced course at the Northwest School last week. This group included Laura Hanson, Thief River Falls; Orissa Prestegaard and Olaf Dahlen of Erie.

Laura Hanson was the highest ranking girl from the standpoint of progress and scholarship during her freshman year and again during her Junior year. She was a member of the Pepster organization throughout her school course, member of the senior class play cast, glee club, mixed chorus, Aggie Board, class basketball team, and served as an officer of the Y. W. C. A. during the past year. Laura also took part in the Red River Valley historical pageant presented during Winter Shows week one year ago.

Graduates at the regular school of agriculture course included James Weckwerth, and Stella Omundson, Hazel; Martin Hanson, Gladyce Ose and Leroy Peterson, Thief River Falls and Harold Nabben, Goodridge.

James Weckwerth served as editor-in-chief of the Aggie Board; vice president of his class, and was the highest ranking boy in scholarship during his freshman year. James also presided over the senior class exercises presented during commencement week.

Leroy Peterson was awarded a gold medal for his work on the school livestock judging team. He also served as vice president of the "A" club and his name appeared on the honor roll during the year. Gladyce Ose was a member of the class basketball team, while Stella Omundson won a high scholarship rating during the year. Martin Hanson was a member of the school cross country team during the fall of 1935, a member of the mixed chorus, boy's glee club, 4-H club, Aggie board, and class football team. He was presented with a Caleb Dorr scholarship as a result of the greatest progress in violin during the year.

Our Bird Neighbors

By C. B. Hovde

White Breasted Nuthatch

Several times this past winter I have observed this confiding little bird about the trees in thickets close to our place. Slightly larger than the chickadee with a slaty gray back, a blackish head and a tail marked with black and white, having pure white underparts this topsy turvy bird of our woods catches and holds our attention because of its peculiar habits.

Exploring crevices in the bark for spiders and other small insects it climbs about the trees with a total disregard for the laws of gravity. It does not brace itself with its tail as do the woodpeckers so cannot pound holes in the bark of trees. Its feet alone hold it in place while its slender pointed bill searches out its prey, beetles, caterpillars, moths and other insects which do harm to plants cherished by man and some waste seed and grain make it a highly desirable bird in any locality.

This year a nuthatch was seen which had a good sized leaf attached to the feathers on its back. Till the bird forced itself it presented a very amusing spectacle flying about and climbing along the bark of some large trees. It offered a view which amused everyone of the many who saw it.

Being quite tame and very curious to know what is going on, it is very easy to observe and to know our common little upside-down bird, the White Breasted Nuthatch.

Red River Valley History

By Wm E. Working

Letter from Homer Mussey

We are in receipt of a letter, through the Times office from Homer Mussey, San Gabriel, Calif. Mr. Mussey, formerly a Thief River Falls newspaperman, furnishes additional information about early teachers here.

He lists Miss Helen Wallin as the first. He writes: "Miss Wallin taught the first school in a one story, one-room building on Third street just west of Main, back of the grocery store, on a site that was occupied by the Remmen livery stable. Oldtimers will recall, not only the building, but also the effort made about 23 years ago to make that historic old structure a historic edifice as an adjunct to the public library."

Early teachers here listed as serving in the period prior to and after the school status referred to in Miss Davies' articles are Prof. Woods, Prof. Stinchfield and Mrs. Proctor, who turned her home into a class room when the old Knox school was burned in the dead of winter. Mr. Mussey says there were many others whom oldtimers may recall.

The former local man's letter reveals that Miss Wallin was killed by a streetcar in Los Angeles Feb. 22, in either 1922 or 1923. A news item appeared in the local press at the time, he says.

Mr. Mussey also furnishes the information that Miss Davies lived for some time while teaching here at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mussey. The letter reads:

"Let me remind you that much of the early history of Thief River Falls was wrapped in the career of Harvey Mussey and his fine wife —my dad and mother—who are today happily contemplating their next call at eternity."

The former Thief River Falls man is an authority on local history as he was city editor of the News-Press here when that paper published a special historical edition. He recalls spending a great deal of time going over the old files of the Press, Review and News. The News-Press certainly must have done a fine job, for Mr. Mussey says "every date was verified by calendar calculation and every fact proven." He describes the edition as a "full, complete and authentic history of the city."

He expresses the fear that the Times may not have one of these editions because its files were burned in two fires in the plant. We don't know the extent of the damage to the files, but if all were destroyed the loss certainly is irreparable.

But our correspondent also published individually a complete authentic history of the schools of Thief River Falls. He believes all issues of the Times in which this was published may be lost as a result of fire. We have not had opportunity to check the present files but will know about them later.

In the meantime we welcome Mr. Mussey to the circle of present local history fans, but, of course, concede to him a place of honor as an authority. It is a great privilege to have contact with a man like Mr. Mussey and we believe he should set down some of his own reminiscences based on his experiences while compiling the historical facts he has recorded and perhaps presenting facts or new phases and angles of known incidents and episodes. Often a person who is away from the home town, and has been absent for some time is able to present a clearer and more detailed study of its local history than those at home, although they may have lived in the home town in the same period. Perspectives are altered and in this case propinquity seems to be a handicap. It is like the old saying about one not being able to see the woods because of the trees.

Certainly Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mussey are deserving of tribute for their long years of service and it is certain, too, that they should be able to recount interesting facts about the early days. The writer hopes to be able to present in the column soon some of the experiences of this worthy couple.

Above all, the years are passing and the interesting activities are rapidly disappearing into the background. Much of this earlier life is evanescent but it is possible to recapture for the purposes of recording history. We hope to be able to save from oblivion much that might otherwise be completely forgotten. To accomplish this we require the cooperation of all readers and we urgently request that all readers who have material concerning important local facts of history contact this column. It may be possible later to publish some of these articles in book form to provide a handy, compact record. But to do so we need help and for the sake of school children who study local history in the grades and high school, all parents should be willing to cooperate.

We hope that the aid we expect to receive from Mr. Mussey may serve as an aid to others so far as the methods of assembling and presenting facts are concerned and also as an incentive.

COUNTY G. O. P. CONDUCTS ITS BIENNIAL MEET

Appoints Four Delegates to District and State Conventions

THEODORE QUALE IS RENAMED CHAIRMAN

Mrs. H. A. Pratt Vice Chairman and Alex Campbell Secretary

At the biennial Pennington county Republican convention held Saturday afternoon in the Civic and Commerce association rooms, four uninstructed delegates and alternates were selected to attend the ninth district convention at Crookston Wednesday, and a like number were named to represent this county at the state convention in St. Paul April 18.

Delegates named to the district meeting were Mrs. Tobias Reep, O. L. Ihle, Frank Hardisty and Mrs. J. N. Nesse, while alternates were Tobias Reep, Mrs. Glen Anderson, Otis Wold and Charles Lindquist.

Those named to attend the state convention include Theodore Quale, Paul Lundgren, Mrs. R. H. McDonald of Goodridge and Mrs. Theo. Jensen of St. Hilaire, the alternates being H. M. Olson, C. W. Pope, David Haugen and Mrs. Frank Peterson of Wyandotte. Mrs. Reep, who was recently named to represent the Republican national committee in Pennington county, also will attend the state meeting.

The county organization for the ensuing four years was perfected with the naming of an executive committee increased from seven members to eleven. The group is headed by Theodore Quale, chairman; Mrs. H. A. Pratt, vice chairman; and Alex Campbell, secretary; the other members including Mrs. Reep, David Haugen, Frank Hardisty, Mrs. R. H. McDonald, O. L. Ihle, Frank Rinkel, W. P. Wilson and Glenn Lindquist.

The convention adopted a series of resolutions, one of which criticized the record of the Farmer-Labor state administration during the past five years as being extravagant and machine-controlled, and pointed out the need of old-fashioned economy in government. Other resolutions demanded the elimination of politics from the state department of education; favored a graduated tax on all incomes to relieve the burden on real estate; denounced the inconsistency of crop curtailment programs with resulting increased imports of agricultural products; urged administration of relief thru local units of government; advocated administration of the old-age pension system as close to the home locality as practicable; urged completion of the St. Lawrence waterway; and recommended early liquidation of the rural credit department, giving farmers who have lost their farms a chance to repurchase them.

Serving on the resolutions committee were R. J. McKercher, Paul Lundgren, Charles Lindquist, Bernhard Knudsen and Mrs. Reep. The nominating committee included Frank Rinkel, T. P. Anderson and Mrs. J. N. Nesse. Chester Myrom, chairman of the local Young Republican league, briefly addressed the convention, offering the cooperation of his organization in conducting the coming campaign.

PAY SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED FOR NEW FARM PLAN

Farmers Will be Paid for Shifting to Soil Building Crops

APPLIES TO SEEDINGS SINCE OCT. 1, 1935

$2 Per Acre Paid for Alfalfa and $1 an Acre for Sweet Clover

Payments available to Minnesota farmers for "soil-building" practices in 1936, under the new federal soil program, have recently been approved by the Secretary of Agriculture and transmitted to the county soil conservation committee.

Farmers have been waiting this information to use in figuring their possible secondary payments, which will be in addition to the $10 per acre, more or less, according to the productivity of the soil, which they will receive for shifting from soil-depleting to soil-building and soil-conserving crops. In general, the soil-depleting crops are those which are comparatively "hard" on the land, whereas the soil-conserving and soil-building crops are those which tend to maintain or increase soil fertility.

The schedule of "soil-building" payments, in amounts per acre, is as follows:

Two dollars for alfalfa; $1.50 for medium or mammoth red clover; $1 for alsike, sweet or white clover; and $1.50 for soybeans plowed under as green manure. To qualify as "soil-building", all of the foregoing crops must be seeded on crop land between October 1, 1935 and September 30, 1936.

In addition, $2.50 per acre will be paid when crop land or pasture is limed at the rate of 2 tons per acre between January 1, and September 30, 1936.

The total of all secondary payments the farmer may receive, however, may not exceed $1 for every acre of soil building and soil conserving crops grown on his farm in 1936, Mr. R. M. Douglass explains. Thus, although the farmer might lime and seed 10 acres to red clover in 1936, he would not be eligible to receive the full secondary payment of $40 ($2.50 plus $1.50 times 10) unless he should grow on his farm this year at least 40 acres of new and old-crop tame grasses and legumes (40 acres at $1 per acre equals $40.)

Farmers wishing for a more detailed explanation of the program and how it will affect their individual farms are advised to consult the county agent, or members of the county or community committees.

In order to explain the new soil conservation program, another meeting will be held in the court rooms at the court house in Thief River Falls, on Saturday afternoon, April 11th, at 2 o'clock. This meeting has been called so those who were unable to attend the meeting held a week ago will have an opportunity to hear the program discussed.

MERCURY TOUCHES 13 BELOW TUESDAY AFTER BLIZZARD

Temperature Mounts Again to High Mark of 45 Wednesday

Pennington county and other areas in Northwestern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota early this week experienced a siege of typical midwinter weather that made it difficult to realize that the month of April has arrived.

Following a veritable blizzard Monday that brought highway traffic to a standstill, the mercury Tuesday dropped to 13 below zero, setting what is believed to be an all-time low mark for the month. The temperature Wednesday quickly recovered, however, and reached a high mark of 45 above in the afternoon, which caused a large quantity of water to collect in various parts of the city.

The storm Monday left county highways virtually impassible, and traffic was blocked for the day on Highway 1 to Goodridge, while motorists experienced difficulty in making the trip between Red Lake Falls and this city.

The mercury Sunday registered five below zero, and this morning the minimum reading was 17 above, according to the records of Fred Protz, local observer.

ALSO WILL RECEIVE U. S. SURPLUS GOODS

Commissioners Hear Many Road Delegations at April Session

The Pennington county board at its April session opening Tuesday reached an agreement with representatives of the state relief agency in St. Paul whereby the county is able to qualify for $2,700 state relief funds for the remainder of the current year, thus relieving the burden on the local communities. As another result of the arrangement, the county will receive a substantial quantity of federal surplus commodities for distribution to relief clients.

L. G. Larsen of this city, who formerly was in charge of the distribution of surplus commodities in the county under the old SEFA setup, was designated by the board to serve again in that capacity, as well as to prepare the monthly reports required by the state relief agency, and to apportion to the city, villages and townships their respective shares of the state funds received, which it was indicated will come at the rate of $300 a month for the remainder of the year.

John E. Reddy, district supervisor for the surplus commodities division, explained to the board that on requisition by the county's representative, Mr. Larsen, ample supplies of various items would be shipped here for distribution to relief clients, the commodities available at present including canned meats, apples, beans, rolled oats, canned prunes and brooms. The county, he said, will be required to pay freight from the nearest distribution point.

The board entered into the agreement with the understanding that the arrangement may be terminated at any time it sees fit if no saving to the county results as compared to the present system. Members of the board expressed the opinion that Pennington county should share in the distribution of the state funds to a larger extent than the $2,700 provided.

Allotments made this week by the state executive council to other counties in this section include Marshall, $6,680; Red Lake, $1,452; Clearwater, $22,084; Kittson, $1,500; Roseau, $11,315; and Polk, $44,474. H. Hoyme, administrator for the state relief agency in Northwestern Minnesota, told the board that the allotments of state funds are computed on the basis of local contributions as well as the financial condition of the individual counties.

The commissioners continued their session thru Wednesday, most of their time being taken up by delegations from various sections of the county asking for road work in their communities this season. Among those appearing were groups from Rocksbury, Norden, North, River Falls, Black River and Sanders. It was indicated that bids would be asked on a number of road jobs at a later meeting.

CITY OFFICIALS MEET IN ST. PAUL WITH SERA STAFF

State Body Denies Responsibility for CCC Camp Building Bills

Mayor W. W. Prichard, City Attorney Theodore Quale and Senator E. L. Tungseth, former mayor, spent last Thursday in St. Paul conferring with officials in an effort to arrange payment of remaining bills for materials incurred when the CCC camp buildings were constructed up Red Lake river in the fall of 1934.

Officials of the state emergency relief administration insisted that their organization had fulfilled its obligations under an informal agreement which it had entered into with the city, but which had not been ratified by a resolution of the city council.

The bills in question, amounting to approximately $900, are owed to local dealers, and legal action may be necessary to determine responsibility for their payment.

While in St. Paul the local delegation also conferred with Mrs. Anna Dickie Oleson, state director of the national emergency council, and H. I. Frisbie, who served as district SERA engineer at the time the bills were incurred.

Apricot Stuffing With Boned Pork Shoulder

1 cup apricots
2 cups soft bread crumbs
¼ cup melted butter
½ teaspoon celery salt
Salt and pepper
Water to moisten

Wash the apricots, and soak them until they are partially freshened. Grind them or chop them very fine. Add the other ingredients and enough water to moisten. Lightly stuff the dressing into the cavity in the pork shoulder made by removing the bone. Sew or skewer the edges together, and roast in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until done. Allow thirty to thirty-five minutes per pound for roasting.

The crown roast of pork is an especially attractive roast for the very special dinner and is convenient because it can be made in the size desired. A stuffed lamb or pork shoulder are both good choices also for the special dinner, the lamb shoulder for a small group and the pork shoulder for the larger gathering.

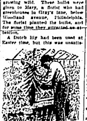
The First EASTER Lily

THE original Easter lily was developed in Philadelphia only a half century ago, according to O. B. Stichter, field inspector of the bureau of plant industry, Pennsylvania department of agriculture.

In 1879, a woman returning from Bermuda brought with her two bulbs of a lily which she found growing wild. These bulbs were given to Mary, a florist who had greenhouses in Gray's lane, below Woodland avenue, Philadelphia. The florist planted the bulbs, and for some time they attracted no attention.

A Dutch lily had been used at Easter time, but this was unsatisfactory because it was impossible to control accurately its time of blooming. Since Easter comes at varying times, it was impossible to "force" this lily in order to have it bloom at a specified time. Therefore, the Dutch lilies were not popular as Easter flowers.



Florist Was Successful in "Forcing" the Easter Lily.

The florist propagated the lily from Bermuda until in three years she had about 100 bulbs. It was then that a Philadelphia florist purchased the bulbs and experimented with "forcing" the lily, in order to have it bloom when wanted. This florist was successful in his experiments, and the lilum harrisii resulted. Since it was possible to cultivate this lily so that it would be in flower exactly at Easter time, it became the Easter flower.

The growing of Easter lilies is today a giant industry, but strangely enough the lily used now—the lilum giganteum—was propagated and improved in Japan from the lily first developed in Philadelphia. It was taken to Japan, where conditions for its cultivation were ideal, developed, and brought back to America. The present-day lily has a larger flower, with more sturdy foliage than the original Easter lily.

Bacon, Eggs, Easter Dish

According to Brand's Popular Antiquities, the custom of eating a gammon of bacon at Easter, still kept up in many parts of England, was designed to show their abhorrence to Judaism at that solemn commemoration of the resurrection. There is also mention, in the same authority, of eggs and bacon composing a usual dish on that day in the Sixteenth century.

"HUNDREDS OF STILLS IN HARLEM"

It is reported that about 50,000 gallons of corn liquor are being brewed monthly in illicit manufacture in New York tenements by hundreds of small still owners. A recent raid in the Harlem section of the city, made by Government agents, resulted in the arrest of two women and eleven men charged with failure to report sales of ingredients to the Alcohol Tax Unit of the Internal Revenue Department.

"Formerly agents would watch consignments leaving malt and sugar dealers and trail them to tenements," says the New York Times. "A raid would follow and the case would then help to clutter the heavy court calendars.

"Then it was decided that the sources of supply must be stopped too and the Alcohol Tax Unit invoked the Government regulations which compels any dealer upon whom notice is served to file a daily report of sales of sugar and other alcohol-making ingredients, no matter how small the amount."

STATE PROMOTES ATTRACTIONS TO TOURIST VISITORS

Tourist Bureau Completes Plans for Extensive Program

Newspapers advertising will constitute the bulwark of one of the most comprehensive campaigns ever undertaken by the State of Minnesota to attract tourists to the playground of 10,000-lakes, according to the program for 1936 of the Minnesota Tourist Bureau, made public at the state capitol today.

Designed to reach the eyes and ears of fourteen of the United States and one province of Canada with a combined population of 58,019,524 persons, the drive for tourists is expected to yield an income to Minnesotans in excess of $85,000,000 this year, it was estimated by George H. Bradley, bureau director. Made possible by an annual appropriation of $40,000 granted by the 1935 legislature the campaign as detailed today will include:

Purchase of advertising space to be used through May and June in 17 middle and southwestern newspapers, the first broadside of the campaign to be published May 17.

Institution of a direct mail campaign to attract back visitors who have come to Minnesota in previous years, involving approximately 25,000 individual mailings.

Participation with exhibits in six outdoor and sportsmen's shows, including the Texas Centennial at Dallas, and in Chicago where a Minnesota information headquarters will be maintained during the month of May.

Erection of eight 60-foot billboards at main entrances to the state welcoming visitors and bearing the invitation, "Stop and Play" in an effort to intrigue the business of transcontinental travellers.

Publication by the bureau of 250,000 pieces of literature on Minnesota which, with an additional supply of 750,000 resort and community folders and pamphlets, will be given nationwide distribution.

Placement of 1,000 four by seven foot window display panels bearing 18 photographs of Minnesota recreational pursuits, in co-operation with railroads, bus lines, sporting goods stores and gasoline companies, each store, ticket office or depot using the exhibit to serve as an outlet for Minnesota literature.

Use of space in seven magazines with combined circulations in excess of 2,800,000 to cover specialized fields, such as travel publications and sportsmen's groups.

Installation of Minnesota information booths at headquarters of a score of large national conventions as a vacation business lure.

Having the phrase, "Marvelous Minnesota" as its basic theme, the varied advertising drive will be so designed as to carry an appeal to followers of all outdoor sports—boating, golf, fishing, swimming and hunting—as well as to the tourists seeking scenic beauty on motor trips, and the prospective purchasers of lakeshore and farming property. Income to Minnesotans from the tourist traffic last season was $82,250,000, which it is estimated will show a material gain in 1936 on the basis of increased inquiries already received for vacation information from prospective visitors, Mr. Bradley reported.

States to be covered in the campaign are Iowa, Nebraska, Texas, Kansas, Missouri, New York, Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Oklahoma, Kentucky, North and South Dakota, together with the province of Ontario in Canada. Concentration of expenditures in the central southern United States was necessary to make the campaign effective, Mr. Bradley explained.

"HOT" WIRE KNOCKS INVESTIGATOR "COLD"

Tower—The effects of a "hot" wire left Jack Anderson quite "cold" for some time recently, and efforts to revive him were nearly given up as useless. Anderson went to the basement of the Vermillion tavern to hook up a few wires. He evidently was standing on wet ground, some other electric current conductor, or there was an abundant supply of "juice" flowing through the wires, and he got hold of them in such a manner as to make a perfect circuit. At any rate, he was knocked "cold". Not having told anyone of his intention, he was not missed for some time, bringing him back for a few minutes only to have him lapse into unconsciousness again. Although weak from his experience, he is recovering.

Red River Valley History

"Lost Arts" of Farm Folk

Recently the writer furnished a story on "lost arts" to the Associated Press dailies. Since it is intimately linked to farm life here and since so far only one paper in this state—the Sunday Pioneer Press of St. Paul—has carried the story, we decided to submit it here in greater detail.

Recently the writer made a study of the "lost arts" of the farming folk of this region. The results were astonishing. Still more recently we have encountered further facts which prove that the homely arts of pioneer days were dominant factors in maintenance of an economic system that made existence possible in the most difficult circumstances.

For instance, the pioneer women made clothes with cloth that had been converted from the wool on the backs of their sheep. The clipping, cleaning carding, spinning and weaving were all done on the farm. Of course, every farm home was not the scene of such activity but there were many. Some women, familiar with the processes of making linen from flax, learned in the old country, made fine dresses, undergarments and other wearing apparel with it.

Hides were tanned and the leather made into boots and shoes. The tanning process was better known because of the Indians' methods of preserving hides than probably would have been the case otherwise. Women and girls knit stockings, mittens, mufflers, scarfs and other dress accessories. Apparently, the knitted dresses and sweaters worn today were not popular or they would have made them. It seems strange to the writer that sweaters were not made at home.

We don't know that pioneers here had homemade brooms, but they could have had them. Settlers farther south had brooms made from broom corn they raised and Indians farther east made brooms of hickory wood cut into very thin strips something like shavings. It may be that some pioneers here were ingenious enough to devise brooms from materials at hand.

But in the matter of food the settlers were resourceful. Some of them got their "sweeting" by making maple syrup. Where there were no soft maples it was found box-elders did very well. The trees were "tapped" by drilling a slanting hole with an auger or driving in a spike. A hollow peg was driven in the hole and a small pail suspended from it. The sap was gathered every day—in the spring, of course—and it was boiled in a large kettle. These were scarce but could be borrowed from a more fortunate neighbor and in a pinch almost any fairly large receptacle would serve.

When a large kettle was used it was hung on a cross-bar placed over two posts. A fire beneath the kettle soon caused the sap to bubble and it required constant stirring. About 10 pails of sap were needed for a pail of good syrup. To make maple sugar the sap was also boiled but "boiled down" until the sap crystallized at the bottom. This was the genuine syrup and sugar and it is probable that few could distinguish the box elder kind from the soft maple.

A few farmers had learned how to make sugar from beets and this process sometimes was employed. It was commonly practiced in parts of Europe a half century ago. Long before manufacture of beet sugar in America became common it was produced in Europe, particularly in Germany.

French pioneer women seem to have had a sort of monopoly on the weaving of hats with straw. Ordinary straw was used—the best of it selected—and some of the hats were remarkable. They not only looked well but were serviceable. In some farm homes yeast was made with wild hops as the principal ingredient, the motivating force, so to speak. The other ingredients were potato water, sugar and salt.

Then, with meats raised and butchered at home, fruits preserved, vegetables, even to pepper and salt often available at beds or "licks" not far away (explorers made salt on Park river and Two Rivers) there was little lacking. In timbered areas wood for building and fuel was available. Animal bladders sometimes served as window lights.

Coffins were homemade as was furniture. It happened often in a settlement that a pioneer had been an apprentice in the old country and learned a trade. In this way there often were blacksmiths, wheelwrights to make wagons and buggies, cabinet makers, shoemakers (who really made boots and shoes) expert weavers, carpenters, watchmakers and even doctors among the settlers.

These facts prove that the settlers were far more self-reliant than we are today. They lived more simply but who can say less happily? Moreover, every home art mentioned here was practiced to some extent at least in this very community. The writer believes that knowledge of these "lost arts" is a fine thing for school children. There may come a time when descendants of these pioneers may find need of detailed knowledge of these practices.

Overfeeding Brood Sow Causes Pigs to Scour

Overfeeding the brood sow causes sucking pigs to scour, and this retards their growth, says E. F. Ferrin, swine husbandman, University Farm, St. Paul. He warns Minnesota farmers to watch their young pigs closely for symptoms of this disorder.

"On the first day after the sow farrows," he says, "she should receive nothing but warm water. Beginning on the second day with a small amount of wheat bran or oats, the amount of this feed should be gradually increased until, in two weeks, the sow is on full feed. Corn is too heating to be fed during this period.

"If the pigs begin scouring, reduce the sow's feed one-half and add a small handful of Epsom salts to the slop. Give each pig, also, a teaspoonful of mineral oil. Provide dry pens and bedding, since these help to prevent scours, especially in cold, rainy weather."

Falconing in Old Days

In the days of chivalry falconing was developed as a sport. The armored knight rode forth with his falcon on his arm, his jesses on his hand and a hood on the head of the bird. The jesses are short leather thongs held in the hand to hold the falcon. The hood is placed over the bird's head to keep it quiet while being transported.

News and Comment

By R. W. Hitchcock

In Governor Olson's review of the accomplishments of the farmer-labor movement, delivered in his address to the state farmer-labor convention, he asserted that "the tax commission has added monies and credits to the tax rolls of Minneapolis alone so as to yield a tax return of more than $1,200,000."

In the same connection the governor further declared that "the total amount of money and credits taxes to be distributed to the various counties. . . . will reach approximately $3,000,000, and the state tax commission has barely begun."

These figures look exceedingly good, but those having to do with the receipt of state taxes wonder where the money is. The $1,200,000 and the $3,000,000 have not been seen at the statehouse.

The total receipts for monies and credits taxes in Minnesota have been as follows: 1930, $1,224,929; 1931, $1,255,098; 1932, $1,205,847; 1933, $1,246,660; 1934, $1,417,308; 1935, $1,679,396. If $1,200,000 has been collected from Minneapolis alone, as the governor asserts, where is the money?

The $3,000,000 which the governor glibly added to the monies and credits receipts was an even greater mystery, until last week when the tax commission announced that it was preparing to make arbitrary assessments in each of the 87 counties of the state, which will, if paid, increase the monies and credits tax by $3,000,000. It thus becomes evident that the governor was not talking about something that had been accomplished but which is simply to be attempted.

It is to be hoped that the state tax commission will be able to make its assessments stick, but to do that the commission will have to prove that its arbitrary figures are correct, a matter of considerable difficulty.

In this same connection Governor Olson asserted that "during the last three months through the state at large the tax commission has collected and paid in cash to the various county treasuries $435,000 in escaped monies and credits taxes." Probably the $125,000 collected in Morrison county is a part of this total of $435,000. The collection of the Morrison county amount was begun by Morrison county before the present tax commission was in existence. The activity of the tax commission is commendable; it exists for that purpose; but when it merely assists the counties in efforts which they have already initiated the commission is hardly entitled to hog the whole credit.

In contrast to these mirages of green oases of financial delight are the very substantial payments in actual cash into state and county treasuries through the operation of a law suggested by State Auditor King and his first deputy, Matt Desmond, and enacted by the special session of the legislature last winter.

This act has resulted in a gratifying flow of delinquent tax money in every county in the state. The total collection of delinquent taxes for the March settlement, with only 4 counties unreported, is $1,801,222.19. Inasmuch as the March settlement is the smallest of the three tax settlements of the year—March, May and October—it seems likely that Minnesota will this year make a substantial beginning in the reduction of delinquent taxes.

Tax delinquency has been steadily increasing in Minnesota, and at a most alarming rate, for several years. The total tax delinquency in the state on January 1, 1936 has been estimated at $85,000,000. The growth of tax delinquency in Minnesota is startling shown in the following totals: 1930, 31 million; 1931, 37 million; 1932, 45 million; 1933, 60 million; 1934, 72 million; 1935, 87 million; 1936, 85 million.

There is hope in the delinquency payments in the March tax settlement that Minnesota has at last checked its mounting tax delinquency and is on the road to reducing it.

The delinquent tax collections of the March settlement are not all due to the operation of the law enacted at the special session. Some delinquent payments are being made at all times, but the increase is so marked for the March settlement as to show a strong stimulating effect by the special session law. The collections in May and October will tell the whole story and will enable the state to estimate correctly the effect of the law.

The farmer-labor state convention almost forgot about the farmer end of the party. At the eleventh hour it luckily remembered and put a farmer on its handpicked ticket.

There is one dirt farmer who has rendered loyal and effective service to the farmer-labor party. Him the party is treating rather shabbily. Perhaps the men and women of the farmer labor party who are really devoted to the principles for which it was originally formed will pay him a tribute at the primaries in June when they find the name of Magnus Johnson on the ballot as a candidate for the farmer-labor nomination for governor of Minnesota. Perhaps they will, perhaps not.

It's not that which matters so much, but it is seamy, shabby and sordid that a party, sitting in the seat of power, can do nothing for one of its members, whom the people of Minnesota have honored by making him a United States senator, than to give him a job as weighmaster at the South St. Paul stockyards.

When Christ Arose

By AMY VANCE WEEKS

In Indianapolis News

WHEN Christ arose on Easter day,
The sunbeams burst through clouds of gray;
The violets bloomed their bluest blue,
And hyacinths increased in hue
While jonquils looked a bit more gay!

The hilltop breezes stopped to play
With tulips blooming by the way;
The starry-eyed narcissus knew
When Christ arose!

As angels rolled the stone away,
A choir of lilies breathed a lay;
Wee buds were christened with the dew,
And bluebells chimed the anthems through!
Each flower rejoiced, and knelt to pray
When Christ arose.

Places Called Easter

WHY is it that there are usually some sinister associations about the word Easter when we find it on the map? It doesn't seem quite in keeping, states a writer in London Answers Magazine.

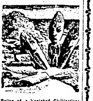
The classic example is Easter Island, in the Pacific. It got its name in quite straightforward fashion, when a Dutch admiral discovered it one Easter Sunday, over 200 years ago.

But the place itself has a forbidding, desolate air. There are few trees, and even birds, usually plentiful in these islands, seem strangely scarce. But there are great volcanic rocks and craters, and strange relics of a vanished civilization—huge platforms and mysterious statues, with features that are grim masks of cruelty and defiance, staring eerily into nothingness.

Not a pleasant place, Easter Island, apart from its famous statues, but they give it the final touch that makes it wholly sinister, a place of mystery and terror.

None of the other "Easters" quite come up to this standard, but there is a touch of the creeps about the great cavern in South Patagonia which has been named Easter Hole. Most caves have a slightly sinister air, and this is a particularly large and awe-inspiring example. And Easter Sunday canyon, in Arizona, has something of the same forbidding character.

It's a relief to come to our own Easter—Good Easter, a tiny village in Essex. But Good Easter hasn't always been good. Start delving into its past and you find that it has specialized in witches.



Relics of a Vanished Civilization; Mysterious Statues.

It's only some 60 years ago that some of the villagers threw an old woman into a pond because she was suspected of being a witch, and the "ordeal by swimming" was one of the favorite methods of the old witch-finders. If a woman was a witch she floated; if she wasn't, she sank.

More recently even than that Good Easter still had its "witches," or believed that it had them. One man, who died some years ago, had this reputation because his cabbages were always better than anyone else's, so people believed that he "bewitched" their gardens.

A strange story, too, was told about this man's wife. It was said that, meeting another woman with a handsome baby girl, she exclaimed:

"What a beautiful child! But it will never get any bigger!" And soon afterwards the baby died.

Good Easter seems a healthy place, and its people live to a ripe old age. So far as it is concerned, the sinister element belongs to the past, not to the present.

Well Proved Fact

Taking all the evidence together, it is not too much to say that there is no single historic incident better or more variously supported than the resurrection of Christ.—Westcott.

"Barber-Shop Tune"

According to an authority, in ancient days men who were temporarily denuded of their ruffles and choker stocks sat around in barber shops. In those days instead of being provided with magazines to pass the time, they were given musical instruments which naturally led to a vocal accompaniment.

Also do we wish to thank Rev. Herman A. Larson and Rev. L. M. Official Paper of Pennington County and City of Thief River Falls

Fifty below in the months of January and February didn't bother us a bit but thirteen below on the seventh day of April was almost too much for us. There is still a fair chance, however, of the ice being out of the river by the first of May.

Compared to the allotments of federal relief funds to some of our neighboring counties, Pennington and Red Lake will get little help from the government this year. But we are not going to complain about this. The allotments are evidently based on the need of the counties and their ability to handle their own problems. And while it is always pleasant to be on the receiving end when money is being passed around, the fact that our relief problem is less serious and our financial condition better than many other counties really is more gratifying. The twenty-seven hundred dollars and supplies that will be given to us this year will prove helpful. We can congratulate ourselves on the fact that our condition is so good comparatively that we are entitled to no more.

Another good argument against capital punishment is the fact that a public execution results in a reaction of public sympathy for the criminal. The only possible justification for a death penalty is the theory that it will instill fear in others who might be contemplating a similar crime and thus act as a crime deterrent. Instead of this desired effect, however, it results in martyrdom for the victim and public indignation for the agencies of justice.

Millions of acres of farm land will be taken out of production this year under the government's crop control plan to avoid surpluses and boost prices. And while this program gets under way under the direction of the Department of Agriculture, another department of our government will be spending huge sums to reclaim millions of acres of desert in order to put more acres into cultivation. And at the same time the Department of State will continue to negotiate trade treaties, lowering tariff duties and encouraging the importation of farm products from other countries. The triple A program of crop control is not without merit. If, along with that program, the American farmer were given full protection in the American market, it probably would accomplish some good. But with that program of acreage reduction being offset by another program of acreage increase, and reduced production offset by increased imports, one has a right to question the soundness of the mighty minds that now are guiding the destinies of our nation.

Pennington County Democrats will hold their county convention here next Thursday and elect delegates to the state convention of the Wolf faction of the party. Another group of Democrats held their state convention at Mankato several weeks ago but our county was not represented at that meeting. The split came through a difference of opinion as to what the Democratic party should be in the state of Minnesota. Wolf and his followers favoring reciprocal trade treaties with the Farmer-Laborites while the other group believes that the party should retain its identity in state politics as well as national. The Pennington County group seems to string along solidly with Wolf. We venture to predict that harmony will prevail at the meeting next Thursday.

Several old-timers have assured us that a late Spring does not necessarily mean a light crop. It is a fine thing that no matter how gloomy the prospects may be, there always are some people around with a word of good cheer. They make up for the sorrowful individuals who never lose an opportunity to preach the gospel of despair. At any rate we are now hopeful again that 1936 will be another good year.

The new skating rink is now beginning to take form and from now on it should move ahead toward completion quite rapidly. Competent observers tell us it is going to be a good building. They say nice things about the manner in which the work is being done. Which is a good thing. The building will represent a substantial investment by the community. It probably will be one relief project from which the community will derive good dividends in satisfaction for years to come.

Reports of the hundreds of people killed in the storms that swept through the southern states early this week helped to make more endurable the wintry weather we have experienced this Spring.

It is estimated that between now and election day in the neighborhood of four billion dollars will be distributed by the Federal government for various purposes. Half of this amount will go out as payment to veterans of the adjusted service certificates. The balance will be paid in various forms of agricultural relief, general relief and other pump priming activities. On the strength of these prospects a steady increase in business activity is expected. It is also expected that the nation will be in an appreciative mood on election day.

Our country did a whale of a big business during and after the war. Foreign countries bought billions of dollars worth of our goods. The only sad thing about this picture is the fact that those goods have not, and probably will not be paid for. We paid a high price for our temporary prosperity. And now, through our reciprocal trade treaties, we are buying business in a little different way, but in a way, nevertheless, that eventually will prove to be just as high priced.

WHO GETS THE INCOME

(Ford News)

Last Sunday when we described the wealth of the United States and its owners, it was measured in dollars, but in itself it is not dollars, it is farms, mines, railways, etc. Command that it be turned into dollars, and both would lose their value, because money gets its meaning from things, and things get their meaning from use. Now, some of that wealth is being constantly consumed, as food and clothing, and other wealth, as farms and factories, is used to replace what is consumed. About half the wealth we described last Sunday belongs to this productive class. What it and all sorts of human services produce is called National Income. Tonight we are asking, "Who gets the National Income?" Where does the money go?

First, there is the money that we have on hand. Who owns that? Of the 42 billion dollars in deposits, 23 billions represent individual savings in banks and post office. There are 39 million depositors with savings accounts in this country — three fourths of the highest number we have ever had. To this you must add a substantial part of the commercial or checking accounts, because not only corporations but professional men, small merchants, salaried persons and many wage earners use checking accounts, so that there are more small individual owners of bank deposits than even the savings accounts indicate. In 1933, 9 million persons owned the 7 billion dollars in Building and Loan Associations. We must include in the money stock, of course, the 65 million individual life insurance policies which are owned by the people, on which they were able to withdraw some three billion dollars during the hard years. So much for the savings from past income.

Then there is the national income—our annual money earnings. Who gets that? The facts are very clear: 66 per cent goes for wages and salaries; 16 per cent goes to individual enterprises — doctors, dentists, farmers, storekeepers, small business men of every sort; the remaining 13 per cent goes to investors, and "investors" include silent partners in small businesses, people who own a mortgage, or a house to rent, or a share of stock —it is not all corporation investment by any means. Corporation savings out of the national income are 1 per cent and corporation salaries, high and low, are 4 per cent. In brief, the national income goes to those who produce it.

Now, this ratio does not appear abnormal. A mere handful of people, not enough to affect the total, have what seems to many very large incomes. A large and growing proportion of our people receive sufficient to maintain family life in decent comfort. But there are still some millions of families whose income is less than any conceivable American standard. True, they are infinitely better off than the same class in any other country in the world, but they are not well enough off for America. It is an indisputable and reassuring fact that the greater part of the national income goes to those who have less than 5,000 a year, but it is also a fact that 60 per cent of our families have less than $2,000 a year. And this, not because the division is unjust, an absolutely exact division would be unjust, for it would destroy the moderate comfort honestly won by millions of families without in the least raising the comfort of the other millions. We are simply confronted again with the fact that even in our best year, even with the 80 billion dollars income of 1929, it is not enough.

Beyond question, many elements of our life are growing better. In 30 years the worker's share of the national income has increased 13 per cent while every other class' share has decreased, and in addition to the worker's greater share, he earns it in fewer working hours. But the national income, when everything is considered, has only increased at the rate of 1.3 per cent a year. Yet there are people who say that we have produced too much, lived beyond our means, made too many goods. This country has never come within 20 per cent of its production capacity, or within 40 per cent of what it would require even now if everyone could earn what he needs. We need a million new houses; 28 per cent of existing houses are without the simplest bathing and sanitary arrangements. This certainly is not the American system in full flower.

Three roads open before us—division, subtraction, or multiplication. We can have division by communism, or subtraction by taxation—both of them methods by which everything grows less; but if we want increase, it can come only by multiplication, which means greater production of the needful things of life. When we are ready to acknowledge and be ashamed of our country's own poverty—not poverty as compared with other countries, but poverty as compared with the possibilities of the American system—then we shall take our problem by the right handle. We cannot improve our condition by producing less wealth and selling fewer goods at higher prices. That is economic suicide. The only business ideal worthy of production engineers and financial engineers now is the lowering of our present insufficient supply up to sufficiency. No profit can ever be so profitable to us as a citizenry strongly rooted in economic plenty and independence. When we arrive within sight of that—as according to our Destiny we shall arrive—it will be the first glimpse we have ever had of a prosperity that brings no poverty with it. That is directly ahead of us; we are being devotedly driven to it; it is the next step in the Republic's predestined conquest of poverty.

THAT'S A LOT OF —

The United States exported nearly 2,000,000 bushels of rye in 1933. In 1935 we imported 11,000,000 bushels. That's a lot of extra employment for foreign nations at our expense. The same year we had 67,000,000 pounds of lard for export and in 1935 we imported nearly 12,000,000 pounds.

During the recent unpredicted storm the railroads have shown their ability and willingness to serve the people in distress in a way that should not be forgotten. You have often heard the statement that railroads have served their time, are now out of date and need not expect the public to support them. This idea ought to be pretty well dissipated by their service to every community in the Northwest during the time that we would have been out of coal and in many instances out of the staples of food, had it not been for the valiant efforts of the railroads to come to our rescue. A great deal has been said about the money spent by the state highway department to keep the automobile roads open, though this money was paid by the state ourselves. But nothing is said about the cost of opening railroads, a cost that is not charged back to the taxpayers, nothing has been said about the valiant efforts of [illegible] damage to property and loss of lives, as instanced in that accident at Jordan in the bitter cold and blinding snow. The service performed by the railroads was heroic and successful, but there is no [illegible] what it cost [illegible] life taken by the trainmen.—Windom Reporter.

Capitol News Review

By A. I. Harris

An action of far-reaching significance in the history of American liberalism was taken when the state Farmer-Labor convention went on record favoring calling of a conference to take up the matter of forming a national Farmer-Labor party.

It is known that millions of liberals throughout the nation look to the movement in Minnesota for leadership in the struggle against economic despotism. A national third party in 1936, which could elect a progressive bloc both in the House and Senate with political allegiance to neither of the old parties, would unquestionably have a wholesome effect on the course of legislation during the next four years.

Liberals are not in complete agreement on the wisdom of placing a national presidential ticket in the field for 1936, some contending that it may defeat Roosevelt and place in power a reactionary, fascist regime. Roosevelt's course in the next few months may be a determining factor. That a third party, advocating fundamental changes in our decrepit economic system, and boldly declaring against war and fascism, will enter the American political arena, seems certain.

The state railroad and warehouse commission has issued an order providing for telephone rate reductions for residents of the St. Paul area amounting to from 15 to 30 per cent, terminating proceedings dating back to February, 1932.

Attorney General Peterson, backing up the decision, said that he is prepared to go to court and require the Tri-State Telephone and Telegraph company to post a bond covering any excessive fee collected before the rate cuts ordered by the commission have been approved by the courts.

Pointing out the necessity for rate reduction in Minneapolis, the attorney general wrote the commission as follows: "A preliminary survey made in 1929 indicates that existing telephone rates in Minneapolis are excessive. Your decision in the St. Paul rate case will result in a saving to the people of St. Paul of $500,000 per year. A corresponding reduction of rates in Minneapolis would effect a saving of at least $750,000 to the telephone patrons of that city."

Will defenders of the present system please come forward? An examination of the financial condition of the families of the more than 5,000 students who applied for federal aid in Minnesota discloses a rather alarming condition. The students are of five groups: (1) Teachers' colleges; (2) Junior colleges; (3) Protestant colleges; (4) Catholic colleges, and, (5) University of Minnesota.

The average annual income of the chief bread winner in the families of the various groups are: (1) $700; (2) $780; (3) $1,100; (4) $1,280, and (5) $[illegible]. Now, these families are not from the slums. They possess an educational tradition, and their children are seeking higher learning. The scholastic standings of these students are above the average. And yet the financial condition of these families is pathetic. Evidently the so-called American standard of living has not as yet reached them. It will when "old man" prosperity "who is" looking just around the corner, is finally caught up with.

Tall Tales

Sagacious Serpent

"YES," said Madame Zulawa, the snake-charmer with the old Robinson circus, "Elmer was by far the most intelligent and most versatile serpent I ever had. He was a blacksnake—six feet of patience, pliability and perspicacity. I could call out any number and instantly he'd arrange himself in the form of that figure. His figure eights were a model of rounded symmetry. But all of this was before one horrible night . . ."

"Our circus train was crossing the high Sierras. Just as it was approaching the summit, Elmer slid out of his cage and started back over the tops of the cars. He was coming back to my car for a cup of warm coconut milk.

"Just as he stretched over the gap between two cars, there was the sound of iron snapping. The coupling between the two cars had broken under the strain of pulling the heavy cars up that steep grade. In another moment the rear half of the train would be speeding down the incline, until it jumped the rails at the first curve.

"Elmer knew that everything depended upon him. Quick as a flash he sank his teeth in the wooden top of the car ahead. At the same moment he wrapped his tail around an iron rod on the car behind. The strain on him was fearful, but he hung on grimly . . .

"Well . . . there isn't much more to tell. The whole train passed safely over the summit. But Elmer's days as a performing blacksnake were over. Go to the Cincinnati zoo today and you'll find him there in a cage labeled 'The Only Black Python in Captivity . . . 42 feet, 6½ inches long.'"

PUBLIC OPINION

Expressions of opinion on timely subjects are invited and welcomed to this department of The Times. Letters should be of reasonable length, and the name should be signed, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Letters duplicated to other local newspapers are not desired.

Editor the Times:

A Democrat pullet with a democrat cackle.

For the benefit of the railroad man from Wisconsin who in your last issue advised me to ring the neck of a pullet I own just because the first egg she laid only weighed one half ounce, if we wanted prosperity back. He also insinuated she must be a democrat on account of her loud cackle and the egg she produced.

I must say she has improved her egg ability wonderfully as well as her cackle, but whether she is a real Democrat I can not say. But I do know her caretaker voted for Franklin D. and hopes to again. In fact about every one up here are Democrats. There may be a few stuck around under these huge snowbanks that are not, but I am sure when the snow leaves they will quit their grunting and go to cackling.

How well I remember when we stood on the mound back of the barns and sold good cows for ten to fifteen dollars per head, hogs $2.50 less freight to St. Paul, butterfat 10 cents. Nobody cackled then. We had been looking around the corners for prosperity so long that most of us up here went crosseyed but say when Franklin D. rolled up his sleeves and grabbed the bull by the horns something had to happen. It is true he is spending lots of money on relief, but that is like the music, it goes round and round right at home. But you know we lent about 25 billion to the foreign countries. We may get some of that back to finish up on but so far they just make a donkey of us when we ask for a little interest. Hogs today are $10.50, lambs $10.25, wool 30c, butterfat 35c to 40c and that's more than we expected and is aplenty.

I understand you are a railroad engineer or the one that pulls the whistle and starts things rolling. If your business is not to hot down there you should be up here where the boys railroad.

In conclusion would it be asking too much of you to vote the cackling ticket this fall? We farmers would like very much to make our homes a little more modern. We find it quite inconvenient to go through the long winter with the thermometer standing at 40 below and the back yard full of snow, but we don't want to modernize and be like Amos and Andy, go broke.

V. C. Noper.

Editor Times:

Because of blocked roads attendance at the annual meeting of the Thief River Falls Livestock Shipping Association was rather small. The majority of those present expressed themselves in favor of going back to railroad shipping. The purpose of this writing is to give the reasons why we should give rail shipping a trial again.

First, it is too far to haul stock over 300 miles by truck. It takes from 15 to 20 hours until they get unloaded when they are so tired they will not put on fill.

Second, we do not get them weighed when they are loaded, so we don't know how much they shrink.

Third, the truckers are not interested about sales. It is all up to the commission firm. If they should happen to make mistakes, get tags, names or stock mixed, it will be just too bad for the one that gets the short end of the deal.

Fourth, if we are going to keep on shipping individually by truck we are fast drifting away from co-operation and there will be nothing left of our association.

Now if we hire a good dependable manager, with experience, to go down with the stock to the market and see to it that everybody is getting a square deal, we think we will be money ahead even if we pay commissions like we used to do, and pay for the trucking to town. During the past year between 65 and 70 carloads of stock have been trucked to St. Paul. We can see no reason why we should not get a volume near that.

There are very successful shipping associations North, East, South and West of us that ship by rail. We have a much better location than any of them and a bigger territory to draw from, so, all together, let's go.

We ask your co-operation and comment.

PIKE BITES OFF MORE THAN IT CAN CHEW

Howard Lake.—A pike which had bitten off more than it could chew was discovered with the spring draining of Howard lake recently. One large dead pike was brought to the surface with a large sunfish in its mouth and throat which it could not swallow. Three separate hauls were made for rough fish in the lake, with over 2,000 pounds of carp caught and removed, and pike and bass being returned to the lake. The net used has a two inch mesh, which when drawn in the water measures about three inches, so that crappies, sunfish and perch go through without being caught.

Junior used to be satisfied with a stick of licorice instead of a new roadster.

TRAILERS DURING ROAD LOAD LIMITS

We have decided to dismantle and convert into trailers a number of our used trucks, heavy and light cars. All of them should serve a purpose and good investments to any one that must haul goods over the highways during the season while roads are posted for load limits. Besides each of these truck and car chassis will make good trailers for all year around use. We will complete them into trailers or simply strip off body and motor and sell plain running gears. We have a good assortment now, so if interested call soon and get your choice.

SO. ST. PAUL LIVESTOCK

(By U. S. Department of Agricultural Economics and Minnesota Department of Agriculture)

South St. Paul, Minn., April 6, 1936 (U.S.D.A.): Cattle receipts were again heavy at this week's opening, the estimate calling for 5,600 head including about eighty cars of Canadians, compared with receipts of 5800 a week ago and 4,000 a year ago. Cattle trade was very slow with much of the steer crop still unsold at a late hour. Some medium grade steers and yearlings sold at $6.50-7.50, a few more desirable $7.65-8.00, with best held higher. Inbetween grade heifers brought $6.25-7.25, a few up to $8.00, good beef cows $5.50-6.00, lower grades $4.35-5.25, low cutter and cutters $3.25-4.35, common and medium bulls $4.85-5.50, a few $5.75. Vealers were weak to 50c lower, desirable kinds $6.00-7.00, choice $7.50-8.00, culls down to $4.00 or less. Medium to good stocker and feeder steers were noted at $6.25-7.25.

Hog trade was fully steady with Friday or steady to 10c higher than Saturday. Better 190 lb. down sold to shippers at $10.50, packers buying weights 210 lb. down at $10.40, most 210-260 lb. $10.00-10.40, 260-340 lb. $9.75-10.10, sows $9.15-9.25.

Sheep and lambs sold mostly steady, good to choice sorted native lambs $9.75, best westerns held higher, common and medium $8.00-9.00. Good to choice 80 lb. recently shorn lambs brought $8.35, a few out at $7.00. Common to choice native ewes sold at $3.50-6.25.

Our Bird Neighbors

It's cheery warbled whistle is known to practically everyone and when heard while snow is still on the ground it is enthusiastically welcomed as a happy sign of spring. Its gay lemon yellow breast with its black pendant marking make this grey-brown bird one of our common sights over practically all of the United States.

Many times I have found its nest while mowing fields or rambling about the country around here. It is very cleverly concealed in a hollow of the ground and has a roof of grass. The entrance is at the side and about the only way to find one of these grass huts is by flushing the bird. While incubating the bird remains on the nest almost until stepped upon and since its brownish streaked coat blends perfectly with the grass, it is not very likely to be seen. Six to eight white eggs spotted with brown are usually found in the nest and this accounts in part for the birds abundance.

It is a great consumer of grasshoppers, other harmful insects and weed seeds and deserves the high place it holds in the affections of bird lovers. Not many years ago a movement was on foot to find a substitute for the bald eagle as our National bird, because of its destructive and sometimes disgusting habits. The bird which probably found the most favor as logical successor was the common meadowlark.

Turghai Proso Millet

This Millet was raised in Pennington County by C. M. Evenson and Henry Oen. The seed was purchased from the Faribault Seed House to be 99 per cent purity and actual germination 96 per cent and raised in Minnesota. There are many kinds of Millet or Proso but the Turghai Proso, the seed house claims, will outyield other millets by a considerable margin. It was first introduced in 1930 and recommended by the Farmers Seed House of Faribault. See what the Farmers Seed House says:

TURGHAI PROSO — Turghai Millet grows three feet tall and has a purple spreading head. The stems bear a wide leaf similar to corn and are not woody. This variety introduced in 1930 has been found to be especially adapted to the Northwest as it will withstand considerable drought. It is second seeded variety, very much in advance like the early Fortune seed. Government reports show that Turghai has yielded from 30 to 70 bus. on heavy soil and three tons of hay per acre. The State Experiment Station in preliminary tests of this variety, finds it outyielding other Proso Millets by a considerable margin.

94 AGED PENSIONS FOR MARSHALL CO. APPROVED MONDAY

First Payments Under Plan Scheduled to be Made This Week

Reconsidering all previous applications that had been approved, the Marshall county board of commissioners in session in Warren Monday approved 94 applications for Old Age assistance with a total of $2,006.20 allotted, or an average of $21.34 for each applicant monthly, according to Paul Steen, county investigator.

With the federal government approval of the Minnesota old age assistance plan, the board followed requirements of the state administrator which made necessary the revision of the original allowances made about one month ago.

The 94 applicants who had gained approval of their applications will receive their first old age pension checks for the month of March possibly by the end of this week, said Levi G. Johnson, county auditor, who will distribute the warrants under the program. It is planned to make out the warrants in the future at the end of each current month.

Hearings will continue by the board today on several additional applications, expecting to approve approximately 125 in all, said Mr. Steen. There are 400 applications on file in the office.

Federal Debt to Exceed 34 Billion by July 1st

Acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell told the house ways and means committee tax hearing Tuesday that the total estimated national debt July 1, 1936, would reach $34,500,000,000 if all veterans apply for their bonus bonds.

Bell testified as the administration and business oppositionists marshalled final witnesses for what was expected to be the last day's hearing on President Roosevelt's $1,127,000,000 tax proposal.

Bell, president at the request of republican committeemen, was cross-examined sharply on the budget situation.

American Markets Get Huge Imports of Meat During Current Year

American markets continue to attract large quantities of meat from foreign countries, as evidenced by the recent Department of Commerce report on imports, says the Livestock Market digest of the Central Co-operative Association of St. Paul. The volume of imports on beef and pork reached new high marks for January. Imports of canned meat, mostly from South America, during January were 84 per cent greater than in January 1935 and nearly 400 per cent greater than during January 1934.

These vast imports of meat come directly in competition with domestic meats and are a factor adversely influencing the livestock market.

In South America, particularly the Argentine, grazing season is much longer than in this country, and cost of beef production is low. In the Argentine there are approximately 3,000 head of cattle for every 1,000 persons. In the United States there are 150 head of cattle for every 1,000 persons.

As a consequence, Argentina must dispose of around 2,000,000,000 pounds of beef annually in other countries. Increasing quantities of canned meats are being displayed in grocery stores and butcher shops in the cities and towns of this country. Sad, but true many American citizens eat the "stuff."

BIG STONE YIELDS 70 TONS OF CARP

More than 70 tons of carp were removed from Big Stone lake in recent test hauls undertaken by the South Dakota game and fish commission, according to George Weaver, state superintendent of fisheries. Minnesota residents of the Big Stone region had recently objected to plans of the Minnesota Conservation Commission to remove rough fish from the lake.

So far the Triple A in shoes has not been declared unconstitutional.

An interesting eye-witness account of the recent flood that ravaged Johnstown, Pennsylvania, was published in last week's issue of the Alden Advance in the form of a letter from Miss Myrtle Peterson, teacher in the Johnstown schools, to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Peterson, of Armstrong. Miss Peterson is a sister of Miss Alice Peterson, teacher in the Washington school here.

Restrictions Placed on Emergency Loans for Putting in Crops

Applications for emergency crop loans for 1936 are now being received at the county agent's office in Mahnomen.

The emergency loans will be made only to farmers who cannot obtain credit from any other source, as provided by regulations issued by the governor of the Farm Credit Administration. The money loaned will be limited to the farmer's immediate and actual cash needs for growing his 1936 crops and in no instance may exceed $200 to one farmer.

Farmers are not eligible for emergency crop loans if they can borrow from an individual, Production Credit Association, bank or other concern. Farmers will also be considered ineligible if they have an application pending with the Resettlement Administration, have received assistance from this organization this year or are indebted to the Resettlement for an unpaid loan.

An emergency crop loan will consist of a first lien on the crop financed. Landlords or others having an interest in the crop to be financed will be required to waive their claims in favor of the lien to the governor of the Farm Credit Administration until the emergency crop loan is repaid. All papers in connection with a loan must be signed by the borrower and his wife.

In 1935 20,000 people were killed by autos. Headlights and light heads caused many of the deaths.—Baudette Region.

Last of Caribou Herd North of Red Lake Is Attacked by Wolves

Additional evidence that wolves are destroying the few caribou remaining in the United States was gathered last week by Gustav Swanson, biologist of the division of game and fish.

The caribou were found in Beltrami county north of Upper Red lake. Last spring six caribou were seen, but only four of the animals are known to remain in the area at present, according to Swanson.

Timber and brush wolves are responsible for the gradual disappearance of Minnesota caribou. One of the caribou seen by Swanson had just been wounded by three wolves.

Warden Fred Petrowske has been trapping wolves for the division of game and fish in an effort to save the caribou from complete extinction.

Oslo Residents Ready for Flood on Red River

Noah anticipated a flood and constructed an ark, but in Oslo, residents possibly recalling that biblical story or more likely recalling that high water of the Red River flooded the city several times in past years, are constructing small boats almost in wholesale lots, says the Argyle Banner.

They are looking for high water again this year and want to be prepared—some for the pleasure of paddling around over the area that might be flooded while others believe boats may be the only way of getting around.

Boats being constructed are generally about 14 feet long and of the flat bottom type. It is believed a dozen or more will make their appearance as soon as the high water comes. Oslo is an old steamboat landing on the bank of the Red River 20 miles north of Grand Forks.

GIANT EGG UNEARTHED IN 8 FOOT GRAVEL BED

New Richmond. — Unimpeachable proof that Horse Shoe Lake, one mile south of Richmond, was at one time inhabited by enormous prehistoric animals was discovered by the unearthing of an egg 12 inches in diameter. This egg was found by men hauling gravel eight feet beneath the surface. Only the shell was left in perfect shape, but crumpled to dust after being exposed to the air. The men did not stop their work to figure out whether the egg was deposited by a dinosaur, a sea turtle or some giant lizard, or whether the time was one or two million years ago. They agreed that it was a job for the geologists and chronologists, respectively.

ITASCA STOCKED WITH RARE GROUSE SPECIES

A number of Canadian spruce grouse, an exceedingly rare species in Minnesota, have been transferred from the Winton and Ely area to Itasca State Park, according to Gustav Swanson, game and fish division biologist. The Canadian spruce grouse, known also as the "fool hen", is too tame to have much appeal for hunters but is much sought after because of its unusual beauty.

Dogs Kill 17 Deer in Oklee Vicinity in Week

Dogs killed some 17 deer in the country just north and west of Oklee during the past week, says the Oklee Herald. Discovery of the depredations was first made by John E. Medchill who saw a deer being killed by three dogs some distance from his farm home, last Thursday. Upon investigation he found the carcasses of 12 more deer, nine within a small radius. The other bodies were found this week.

TOTAL TAX LEVY IN STATE FIXED AT $115,900,000

Figures Made Public in Abstract by State Auditor for King

Minnesota's 1935 state tax levy, collectible this year, totals $115,987,222.32 on real and personal property and $1,679,398.83 on moneys and credits, it was announced by Stafford King, state auditor, as distribution of the annual tax abstracts to governmental officials and tax payers' organizations throughout the state was begun Monday.

The average tax rate is 79.31 mills, compared with 78.27 mills for 1934, for which year the levy was $115,494,681.79 on real and personal property and $1,417,308.35 on moneys and credits. Delinquency last year was approximately 18 per cent, but judging from income tax returns and because of the new ten-year installment payment plan provided by the legislature at the January special session, delinquency on the 1935 levy, it is estimated, will be less than 10 per cent, said Matt Desmond, deputy state auditor.

The total tax levy shown by the abstract is $116,738,858.49, but this includes the grain tax of $43,586.84, electric light and power tax of $380,660.72 and special assessments totalling $377,388.61.

BULL ATTACKS TRUCK DRIVER WHO RUNS, JUMPS, HIDES

Lafayette—It was a case of quick presence of mind, a fast run, jump and hide, to save the life of James Isenberg, Lafayette truck driver, who was attacked by a vicious bull the other day. While loading the animal at the John Holmberg farm, Isenberg led the bull into the chute, only to have it make a roaring attack. Isenberg ran up into the truck and jumped over the rack. The bull did likewise. Isenberg slid under the truck, and the animal was unable to get at its victim. For sometime, the bull kept pawing away close to the truck, but finally walked off, giving up the job.

Fergus Falls Citizens Get Month's Free 'Juice'

Instead of the usual monthly bills, electricity users of Fergus Falls last week received a statement from the water and light commission to the effect that each consumer had received a month's free use of electricity, the total saving aggregating approximately $9,000. The commission, in explaining the "dividend," said, "In view of the hard winter and heavy fuel bills that most people have recently faced, this has been considered an opportune time to make a cut." The distribution was made out of current earnings for the past fiscal year.

$180,000 Dam Project Near Hallock, Bronson Approved Last Week

Work on a $180,000 dam project to provide Hallock and Bronson with a pure water supply will begin the latter part of April, Victor Christgau, state WPA administrator, announced last week.

Assignment of more than 250 "single unattached" men from the relief rolls for the camp to be set up at Bronson on Two Rivers river where the 30-foot dam will be constructed already has begun.

Action on the project, long sought by the residents of Hallock who have had to haul drinking water from a spring 30 miles distant, was made possible today by final clearance of the plans with the army engineers and the state executive council.

Situated on a salt bed, Hallock has been without a central supply of drinking water since its wells were condemned by the state board of health. Serious skin infections from bathing in the water and at least two cases of typhoid fever have resulted from the impurities of the water, residents of Hallock stated in their plea for assistance in correcting the situation.

SNOWBANK GOOD STORAGE FOR MONEY; NO INTEREST

Mountain Lake—Stories are numerous about socks, teapots and even stoves being used as receptacles for money, but this spring brings the first one in which a snow drift was used as a safety-deposit vault. Last November 16, R. H. Junker sold a load of geese for $13. When he arrived home he found that his wallet containing the money from the transaction was missing. On Friday, March 20, C. D. Friesen, while driving on a road north of Mountain Lake, saw the wallet protruding from a melting snow bank, where it had been pushed by a passing snow plow. There is a moral to this story. Inside the wallet was only the original $13—no interest.

NEW FARM PLAN PAYMENTS FIXED FOR NORTH U. S.

Government to Pay as Much as $5 Acre for Soil Building

Detailed regulations and rates of payment for specific soil building practices in the north central region, described as "an added inducement" to obtain farmer co-operation in the new conservation program, were announced Wednesday by the AAA in Washington.

The regulations provide that farmers in the north central area may receive as much as $5 an acre for soil building, in addition to the average payment of $10 an acre to be made for shifting land from soil depleting to soil conserving crops.

The north central region includes Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin. Regulations and rates of payments for other regions are under preparation.

"These regulations," said Acting Administrator Howard R. Tolley, "are an added inducement to get more land into soil conserving crops."

Mrs. Anna O. Determan Named by Governor on State Board of Control

Gov. Olson Monday appointed Mrs. Anna O. Determan, Litchfield school teacher and one-time member of the University of Minnesota board of regents, to succeed Mrs. Blanche La Due, Minneapolis, as a member of the state board of control. Her appointment, for a six-year term, is effective immediately. Mrs. La Du, a member of the board since her appointment in 1921, completed her last term April 1. Mrs. Determan, the wife of Dr. Bernard Determan, served on the board of regents from 1933 to 1935. She was the Farmer-Labor candidate for secretary of state in 1930.

ADOPTED PHEASANTS TRUST BENEFACTOR

Detroit Lakes—A farmer living north of Detroit Lakes has adopted a flock of 30 or 40 pheasants, the birds spending most of the day around the yard and receiving the best in food from their friends who also proved their livesaver the other day when a hawk attacked them. The farmer, dashing from his house to fire at the invader, declares the pheasants came running toward him for protection, and that when he shot his gun not one of them flew into the air. Apparently the birds know a sportsmen when they see one.

Red River Valley History

By Wm E. [illegible]

Thief River Falls Postoffice

Recent opening of the new postoffice building naturally directed the attention of this writer to the genesis of postal service in the city. It may surprise some readers to learn that the first postoffice here was housed in a dugout. We have made some mention of early postal service in Thief River Falls, but because the subject is topical at present we propose to trace the history a little more comprehensively.

In September, 1883, J. W. Wallin purchased six acres of land from Otto Ilose, who lived at Red Lake Falls. This land lay in the northwest corner of the southeast quarter of section 33. Wallin erected a dugout on the property and used the structure as a store. It stood in the extreme southwest corner of the present city. The nearest postoffice at that time was located on the farm of Carl Johnson. This postoffice was transferred to Wallin's store in 1883 with Wallin as postmaster. Johnson was either a brother or brother-in-law of Martin Rockstad, the early settler here, and the office was named for the latter. We can not tell from our records the exact relationship of Johnson and Rockstad. In fact, the records say they were brothers and since Scandinavians used different surnames in this country because of the confusion resulting from the system of naming in the old country, they could have been brothers.

Wallin served as postmaster until 1889, when Hans Nelson who had moved here from St. Hilaire was named to succeed him. As the city prospered better quarters were needed. Stages and overland "star" routes brought the mail in and carried it out until the railroad came. Naturally the volume was not heavy at first, although as in other sections of the state at that time there were a good many letters sent to and from the old countries in Europe. Many of these told of opportunities here. Others reeked of loneliness and did not report favorably on the new land, but evidently readers of such letters attributed their tenor to the depressed state of the writer and discounted their context. Anyway, immigrants poured in.

The name Rockstad was retained for a few years and then the present name was adopted. The writer's data credit one oldtimer with the explanation that a petition was sent to Governor Merriam urging that the name be changed. It appears that the best way would have been to appeal directly to the postal department in Washington, but perhaps the petitioners wished to have a "friend in court."

We learned that the first rural mail route out of the city to Germantown, was established in 1897. We also know that rural mail service was inaugurated a few years after the turn of the century. This move greatly increased the business of the postoffice since rural residents subscribed to daily newspapers. Another step which lent impetus to the postal business was the change from tri-weekly to daily train service by the Great Northern in 1893. This change was made February 6 and daily railway mail service was begun April 21 of that year.

These changes were important not only in aiding in the city's progress but as criteria of its growth. Mail volume steadily increased. Manufacturers and catalog houses send out trainloads of literature advertising their wares and much of this volume still remains, although postal regulations strictly restrict this sort of mail. The inauguration of parcel post service also increased the local postal business.

The city was graduated into the city mail delivery class June 15, 1911, the first carriers being W. H. Quist and Fred Protz. Since then this service has been enlarged and improved materially.

So we find that the history of the postoffice of Thief River Falls is happily typical of pioneer beginnings and development. The first post office was housed in a dugout just as many pioneers were. The office grew with the city and community and by aiding and being aided demonstrated the feasibility of a very desirable form of cooperation.

The residents of the city have every reason to be proud of their new building, not just because it is an attractive, substantial structure, but more for the fact that it is at once a symbol and a monument. A symbol of the spirit and enterprise of the people of the city and the countryside and a monument to the industry, faith and achievements of the pioneers. Thief River Falls did not get the new postoffice just because the people wanted it. The business volume, the city's record since pioneer days as a municipality, its general background and its future prospects all were carefully considered before the new postoffice project was approved.

For this reason the new building is not only a compliment but a splendid advertisement for the city.

Still-Life Painting

Still-life painting flourished from the earliest days of color decoration, and was at its highest perfection during the Alexandrian age. The paintings at Pompeii and the Roman mosaics furnish many fine examples of it. The ancient Greek painter Pausias was especially skillful in the representation of flowers.

Water, like every other form of matter, is made up of molecules, which are nothing more than very small material particles. Likewise, dust consists of small particles, although the smallest dust grains are vastly larger than the average molecule.

LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL PROGRESS

LOCAL W. C. T. U. DECLAM CONTEST WILL BE HELD

Rally To Take Place in the Community Church on Sunday, April 26

Announcement was made Monday of the local W. C. T. U. Declamation Contest which will take place Sunday, April 26, at the Community Church. It will be held in connection with the W. C. T. U. rally. There will be an all day session. This contest will provide the entertainment for the evening session. Neighboring W. C. T. U. chapters will be invited to attend.

Monday and Tuesday, those who wished to partake signed up with Mrs. Korstad. Harriet Simonson, Ethel Parnow, Marjorie Matheson, and Harriet Wilson have announced their intention of competing. At least five must sign up to enter the contest in order that a local contest winner may receive a silver medal and be eligible to enter the district contest.

In recent contests, there have been few contestants compared to the amount of local talent and more interest should be shown to attain better results.

PARENT TEACHERS GROUP TO SPONSOR PRE-SCHOOL CLINIC

Student Contest Groups Give Selections at Monday's Meeting

The last Parent-Teachers' meeting of the season, held on Monday evening, April 6, in the high school assembly, was opened by several musical selections by Lincoln High school contest groups under the direction of Miss Springen. "Songs of the Western men" by Protheroe was sung by the boys' glee club. The girls' glee club presented "Gypsy Fires" by Trehaine. The mixed chorus sang "The Vesper Hymn" by Beethoven.

At the business meeting a resolution was passed to express sympathy to the family of the late Miss Carrie Johnson, Central School instructor for many years. Miss Parsons gave a report regarding the summer roundup clinic. A resolution was passed that the Parent-Teachers' Association again sponsor this clinic for pre-school children.

Mrs. Vesha Becket Purcell suggested play ground recreational activities for the summer months in Thief River Falls. A nominating committee will be appointed by President Benstad to make nominations for offices for the ensuing year.

Due to weather conditions, Dr. C. J. Breitwieser of the University of North Dakota was unable to be there.

After the meeting was adjourned, lunch was served by several members of the association.

The Book of Sports

The Book of Sports was a popular name for the proclamation issued in 1618 by James I. and ordered to be read in all churches, wherein it was declared that dancing, archery, May games, morrice-dances, leaping, vaulting and other such games were lawful on Sunday, but prohibiting bear-baiting, bowling and interludes.

Prowler Sales Campaign Began Last Tuesday

Adrian Lorentson, the circulation manager of the Prowler, has announced that by last Tuesday the sale of the 1936 Prowler had reached the fifty dollar mark. Jack Booren has been leading the other salesmen in the number of Prowlers sold. Other salesmen include the following: Lois Nelson, Vivian Ward, Helen Granum, Douglas Hess, Thomas Protz, and Dayton Silk. The assistant circulation managers are Annette Simonson and Anne Hermanson. The campaign for selling Prowlers will continue for about two weeks after Easter vacation.

Alice Ann Severson, Malcolm Magnuson, and Jack Booren, with the cooperation of the art department of the Prowler, have started cutting and mounting senior class pictures.

FACULTY MEMBERS ATTEND DINNER

Superintendent Morris Bye Talks On St. Louis Convention

Last Tuesday evening the members of the faculty, comprising fifty-six members, with their husbands and wives, attended a five-thirty dinner at the Evelyn Hotel. Mr. Claffy acted as chairman.

The program consisted of a very interesting talk on the National Superintendence Convention in St. Louis by Superintendent Morris Bye. Mr. S. P. Orwoll provided several baritone solos. He was accompanied by Miss Erma Springen. Community singing was led by Mr. Lanning and Mr. Harrison of the high school faculty.

During the course of his speech, Mr. Bye illustrated how a controversial subject is taught in a public school, as shown at the St. Louis convention. Professor Roy Hatch conducted this class. Microphones were placed at the pupils tables in order that their voices might be relayed to all parts of the assembly hall. Although the class was considered only average and was not previously coached in the subject, all members present enjoyed the class.

GYM GEMS

More tournament games are being played! On Friday the freshmen challenged the sophomores. On Monday night the freshmen played the eighth graders.

The game on Friday was rather one-sided and ended 30 to 7 in the sophomores' favor. This was perhaps due to the fact that only four freshmen turned out to play. Victor Jung and Adrian Lorentson refereed in a most capable way.

On Monday night at seven o'clock the freshmen competed against the eighth graders. It was a good game with the score at the end being 20 to 10 in favor of the Lincoln High School girls. Ragna Folkedahl and Harriet Simonson refereed this game. Perhaps the most outstanding players in the game were Dorothy Snelling for the freshmen and Frances Stenberg and Theresa Mackenrath for the eighth graders. The on-lookers were composed of seventh and eighth graders and a few high school girls.

There are more games coming up. For instance—the seventh graders and the freshmen will soon tangle. Remember way back last year when these same little girls beat the sophomores?

THREE CLASSES HOLD MEETINGS IN PAST WEEK

Juniors, Sophomores and Seniors Holm Meetings to Settle Questions

Various class meetings have been held during the past two weeks to settle all important matters before Easter vacation. At a Junior class meeting held in the assembly a short time ago, Donald Olson, president, announced that committees for the Junior-Senior Prom would soon be selected. On Tuesday, the following junior were chosen to serve on committees for this school function: Entertainment— Brunell Erickson, chairman, Alyce Protz, Roberta Bally, Clifford Vevea, Wesley Westphal; Decorating — Peggy Faupst, chairman, Marjorie Matheson, Lois Morell, Vernon Wedul, Archie Monson, Olive Holmen, Leonard Carlson, Ariel Heidy, Marion Green, Vivian Havel; Refreshments—Dorothy Noper, chairman, Mae Lindquist, Marion Dillon; Invitations—Myrtle Hetland, chairman, Hettie Gustafson, and Barbara Reep.

Victor Jung, senior class president, selected a committee to choose a class motto, class flower, and class color. The members of the senior class held a class meeting on Tuesday, April 6, to vote on their choices. "Iacta est alia"—the die is cast, was selected as the class motto, the rose as the flower, and rose and silver as the class colors.

In a class meeting which was held in the high school assembly on Tuesday, March 31, the sophomores resorted to ballots in order to decide whether or not each person should contribute thirty-five cents to the Prowler. Those in favor outnumbered those opposed, so it was agreed to have a group picture of the sophomore class taken. The money received will serve as the class dues for this year.

LINCOLN HIGH TIMES

From week-end indications the most popular hobby of L. H. S. is riding, yes just common ordinary (or is it riding by automobile or something. Ah, me! Spring is finally here. And from what we've seen the last few days the bigger the better the automobile. For instance, Erling M., who is recuperating, seems to be doing a quick and a thorough job of it. Maybe Evelyn T. isn't glad! And Harriet O'H. had her car full with Melford C., Clarence H., and Roger W. Leap year comes but once every four years but when it does—And Harriet isn't the only one who makes good use of it. Bob W. also burned up the highways with Margaret M. Roger W., Evelyn T., and Erling T. Also Phil P. Jack B. Don C. Buster W., Celia C. and Lovey C. and Floyd M. grab off honors for the couple of the week. Busiest boy of the week—Vernon W., what with Lent over, and Vivian W. back in town. Also busiest girl of future weeks—Fae B. after the three weeks is up. Medal for bearing up under greatest strain—Ardella J. after Bob S. left Monday A. M. But she ought to—at least she's two bits richer after a bet with Erling M. Adele, Martha, and Ardith M. seem to think a car's unnecessary. All you need is a couple of legs. Gentle hint—the limb is mightier than the thumb. And after it all, we lived happily ever after or did we?

Love is like the measles; all the worse when it comes late in life.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Last Friday evening a man, not unknown to newspaper and radio fans, was electrocuted for the crime of kidnaping and killing Charles A. Lindberg, Jr. No one saw him do it. He confessed to no one. But he died for it nevertheless!

Immediately after his conviction, public opinion was against him. Just before his death, the public was hoping for him. Yet he died for a crime of which the court found him guilty!

It was evident that Hauptman had a hand in the killing, but, to "burn" on a court decision based on circumstantial evidence is hardly applaudable. We do not claim he was innocent, and neither did the jury that tried Bruno. He was guilty, according to law.

It's a thousand-to-one he did the deed. But to kill one would never convict and punish the others that were in it. Why kill off the last real clue to the others? Why not give him life imprisonment and save him until more evidence could be gathered to convict the others?

Capital punishment on circumstantial evidence? Never!

—V. J.

SENIOR CLASS TO PRESENT PLAY

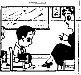
"It Never Rains" Is Title of Play Chosen This Year

"It Never Rains", the play to be presented by the seniors on May 8th, is the rollicking story of two married couples and their youngsters, a son and a daughter, who meet and, of course, fall in love. The action and scenes are laid in California. Much of college atmosphere, as well as domestic, has seeped into its three gay acts.

A happy little play built along the lines of "Seventeen", "It never Rains" is recommended to boys and girls of all ages, from six to seventy, who still get a romantic kick out of that grand old song-of life that starts with puppy love. It is a clean, domestic comedy of errors and laugh provoking qualities.

Those acting in the lead are Florn Schroeder and James Nesse. The rest are, thus far, tentative characters. They include Annette Simonson, Jack Booren, Victor Jung, Audrey Anderson, Lois Nelson, Lois Engen, Dorothy Blanchard, Helen Granum, and Helen Rice.

GAME'S OVER



Teacher — After Samson had killed the lion with his bare hands, had slain the Philistines with the jawbone of an ass, and carried off the gates of Gaza, he was overcome by Delilah. Can you tell me how she did it?

Wise Kid—Yes'm. She put out his pipe.

Friday, March 27, the fourth grade surprised their teacher, Miss Gabrielson, by a party. Everybody had a good time, after which a delicious lunch was served.

Washington School

The fifth grade has scored nine on its last five self-testing drills.

They are having a spelling contest with Marine Marsten and Esther Tungseth as captains. Esther's side is winning by ten points.

The first grade pupils have made booklets consisting of stories and pictures. They are now working on Easter projects such as bunnies, chickens, and baskets.

An Easter party was given by the third grade on Thursday. An amateur program provided the entertainment.

SHOP NEWS

Rotated turns are being taken up by Shop I boys in wood-turning. They are learning some of the intricacies of plain and fancy lathe-work. Several Shop I students carried out one of the odd phases of woodwork last week by steaming and bending the skis which they had made. If the cold weather and snow continues, they will probably wish to hold a ski meet to determine the one who made the best pair of skis.

The members of the seventh grade shop class are studying tin and are making sugar and flour scoops.

Meter reading and the estimating of the costs of electricity are being taken up by eighth-grade shop boys.

Roy Moline, Shop II student, has converted a Model T propeller shaft housing into a good, usable trailer hitch. Robert Toomey has engaged in the difficult art of doing copper spinning and has found that there are numerous tricks in working copper.

Some minor changes in the arrangement of the equipment in the shop are underway. These changes will result in greater satisfaction and efficiency of the same.

SCHOOL HOLDS TOURNAMENT FOR PUPIL ATHLETICS

Demonstrations Given in Boxing, Wrestling, and Tumbling

The boxing, wrestling, and tumbling tournament last Friday night at the City Auditorium was a great success as far as the audience was concerned. The program opened with an exhibition bout by two grade school boys. The first scheduled fight was a wrestling match between Ona and Earl Tripp, from which the former emerged the victor. This was followed by a performance put on by the tumbling group.

The next match in the wrestling division brought James Nesse against Philip Prichard. This bout, although it contained a lot of action, was pronounced a draw. An elephant parade came next, affording a bit of humor to the program. The next wrestling match staged was between Stadum and Bill Hegland, Stadum coming out a surprised winner.

An interlude of tumbling acts occurred before the next bout in which Adkins pinned Bredeson to the mat. Following this, the Aulie brothers were featured in an act in various stunts.

The last wrestling bout was between Milt Nesse and Doug Hess, resulting in a victory for Nesse. Another demonstration in gymnastics was presented and the first boxing match was put on with Leonard Carlson mixing it up with J. Hegland. However, it seems he didn't mix it hard enough because Hegland won the decision.

A series of double rolls was executed by some of the tumblers and immediately following this, Willis Tripp was matched with Christofferson. The decision went to the latter.

Another performance by the tumblers and the next bout was between McFarland and Foster in which Foster was pronounced winner. After this, a large variety of acts presented by the boys drew much approvement from the audience.

C. Oleson and James Nesse were next on the list. This was one of the fastest bouts of the evening, both boys seeming to be about equal. The decision was held up for the failure of the fighters to shake hands before the last round.

Diving was next in line. There were a few boys who dove over eight others lying flat on the floor. The end position was found to be a little unhealthy by Bruce Prichard. The next match was between Mickelson and Adkins. The final match of the evening brought Milt Nesse against Kielty. Milt stopped a stiff punch which made him sort of dizzy and a couple of seconds later, Kielty connected again. Here the fight was called off by the referee, Kielty being declared the winner. An extended tumbling performance concluded the evening's schedule.

This tournament was supervised by George E. Lee, athletic coach, and Donald B. Chalmers, physical education instructor.

ETIQUETTE

Within a short time, all seniors will be considering very seriously the prospects of enjoying themselves on the one big day of the school year, Senior Day. On that day it is the usual custom for members of the upper class to forget their dignity and "throw caution to the winds." This is to be expected, for the natural ending to four years of school necessarily results in a day of festivity and enjoyment.

As has been the habit in previous years, seniors will migrate to new places on this day. Natural, also, is the fact that seniors forget their etiquette and pay little or no attention to their conduct. But why should this be so? Inhabitants of other towns will recognize behavior as well as people of our own community.

Boasting of one's town or school is always a part of a student's conversation. This is considered proper to a certain degree, but when falsehoods transcend pride, the speaker soon loses his popularity. Every student of Lincoln High School should be proud of this school's accomplishments, but he doesn't necessarily have to flaunt these facts before others.

Loud talking seems to be characteristic of all students, whether freshmen or seniors. But this type of speaking usually results in hurt feelings or embarrassment on the part of the speaker. Any student can express himself without shouting his thoughts to the entire world.

Gathering souvenirs is a hobby of many seniors. Too many people in this group consider silverware in a restaurant a worthwhile article by which they may remember Senior Day. If a senior really wants to find some gift in another town, his safest bet would be to purchase a souvenir in some drug store.

Some city will be a good host to seniors this year, so all seniors should be good guests. One of the best ways of showing this is being as courteous as possible, one trait in which all seniors should rank high.

CAMPAIGN TO SAVE PEDESTRIAN LIVES PLANNED BY GROUP

Minnesota Public Safety Committee Files Its Annual Report.

An intensified campaign to save pedestrian lives was recommended today by A. V. Rohweder, chairman of the Minnesota Public Safety committee, in the committee's annual report.

The report was released as plans were completed for the annual dinner of the committee in the Hotel Lowry, St. Paul, April 11, when plaques will be awarded to cities and counties named winners of the 1935 Minnesota traffic safety contest.

Rohweder's report also was marked by:

A recommendation that safety educational programs be continued and intensified, criticism of communities that curtail expenses by shutting off street lights; greater safety educational activity in the more sparsely settled districts; criticism of courts which suspend traffic fines because of "some trivial excuse;" the adoption of the standard drivers' license law in Minnesota, and greater public support of enforcement agencies.

The report which included an analysis of the fatal accidents showed that, whereas, the fatalities were reduced 49 from 611 in 1934 to 562 in 1935, the percentage of pedestrian deaths was greater last year. In 1934, the percentage of pedestrian fatalities was 39.2, while last year, it was 40.2.

"Emphasis should be laid on the responsibilities of both pedestrian and motorist and strict enforcement of city ordinances requiring pedestrians to obey traffic signs," Rohweder said. "Pedestrians should be required to cross at intersections, even in residential districts. In the rural districts, county police officials and members of the state highway patrol should warn pedestrians to walk against traffic when using highways."

SEEK NATIONAL CEMETERY FOR BIRCH COULEE GROUNDS

Olivia—Plans for advocating use of Birch Coulee battle grounds near Olivia as a national cemetery were laid at a meeting of representatives of the American Legion posts of Renville county, held at the court house at Olivia the other day. It is reported that the national government is going to designate five plots in the United States for national cemeteries and that the historical value of the Birch Coulee field puts it up as a fine possibility. A committee was appointed to seek to have the Olivia area considered as one of the five plots.

Save time - with safety on CONCRETE

If you're like the vast majority of drivers, you travel faster on concrete without knowing it! Check up on your next trip and see if it isn't so.

Concrete makes your car run better; lets the motor settle into a sweet, steady hum that literally eats up the miles. It relieves you of tension and fatigue. There are no ruts to fight; no bumps and jolts to tear at the steering wheel; no tendency to skid or slip. Without a conscious thought, you go faster because you know you're safer on concrete!

Of course you know that concrete roads are economical from the standpoint of upkeep. But do you know that they actually cost less to build than other roads of equal load-bearing capacity? And that they cost as much as 2¢ per mile less to drive on than inferior surfaces?

More vehicles were registered in Minnesota in 1935 than in any previous year—753,976 in all. Gasoline consumption shows they traveled more miles than ever before. There will be still more cars and trucks in 1936—going more miles. To keep this traffic moving safely—

Lewiston.—Firemen answered a call at Lewiston the other day as a result of what was believed to be the nesting propensities of birds. Either that, or the sparrows at Lewiston are taking up one of the vices of men. It is believed the fire was started by a lighted cigarette or cigar carried into the awning by a sparrow. Several buckets of water extinguished the blaze about the time the fire laddies had arrived.

STEPS ARE TAKEN TO MEET DEMAND FOR FARM LABOR

Farmers Are Urged to Call at Nearest Reemployment Office

Steps to be taken by WPA and the National Reemployment Service toward meeting the demand for labor by farmers and other private employers this Spring were outlined by the heads of the two federal agencies following a conference today.

Victor Christgau, state W. P. A. administrator, and Dreng Bjornaraa, state director of NRS, announced jointly following their conference at WPA headquarters in St. Paul that the policy in regard to farmers' requests for labor, would be to give special consideration to "borderline cases" of unemployment.

"From every part of the state, deserving borderline cases of unemployment have been called to our attention," Mr. Christgau said. "Because of WPA regulations restricting as to employment of persons from the relief rolls, many of these persons have continued without jobs. Mr. Bjornaraa and I have agreed that borderline cases registered with the NRS office should be given preference in farm jobs available."

Mr. Bjornaraa said farmers and other employers needing help should communicate with local NRS office, or, if no employment office is being operated in their county, should state their needs to county agents who have been delegated to represent NRS in the matter. Some counties of the state are served on a part time basis by itinerant interviewers from district or branch offices. The district NRS offices are located in Thief River Falls, Bemidji, Fergus Falls, Virginia, Brainerd, St. Cloud, Montevideo, Mankato, Faribault, Fairmont and Winona.

The employment service reports a brisk demand for farm help, particularly in the southern part of the state, and thus far has been able to fill all orders, Mr. Bjornaraa said.

If borderline cases of unemployment do not fill the demand for farm labor in any locality, however, Mr. Christgau said an effort would be made to supply workers from the unassigned relief lists and that "single unattached" WPA workers also would be available on demand to employers.

Seek Registration of All Crippled Children and Disabled Adults

An urgent call is being issued by Miss Jean C. Pierce, Executive Secretary of the Minnesota Association for Crippled Children and Disabled Adults, Inc., for reports of the names of home-bound and badly disabled persons in every locality. "The association is preparing to extend the 'Lone Craftsman' work to every part of the state", she says, "in an effort to bring happiness and earning power to the shut-ins and seriously crippled in every county." This program is now organized and successfully working in Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties. Relatives and friends are urged to send in these names to the Association's headquarters, 302 Hodgson Building, Minneapolis.

The reports should give the name and address of the crippled person together with his or her age and the nature of the disability. Only physically disabled youth and adults whose range of activity is limited for the most part to the home and who are unable to perform office work or factory work should be reported.

The association already has hundreds upon its lists but wishes to make a complete register of all those who are in the shut-in class. It will then make an effort to reach them in the order of the urgency of their needs. Positive assurances are given, however, that it is the intention to have the Lone Craftsman work carried on in each county and to reach the seriously crippled in any locality, no matter how remote.

The Shut-In Society

The Shut-in society has a membership of approximately 7,200, covering the United States and including a few in Canada and England. The purpose of the organization is to give cheer and comfort to chronic invalids, cripples and the blind.

HAUPTMAN DIES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR SILENT TO THE END

Convicted Kidnaper Pays Penalty for Crime Friday Night

Bruno Richard Hauptmann died in the New Jersey prison electric chair at Trenton at 8:47 Friday evening for the kidnap-killing of the Lindbergh baby, silent, stoical to the end.

He prayed 10 minutes in his cell, then walked to the death chamber [illegible]

C. Lloyd Fisher, Hauptmann's chief counsel, declaring he was not through with the case, [illegible]

Governor Harold G. Hoffman had [illegible] such action after conferring with attorney general David Wilentz just before the execution.

The governor announced he would press for a legislative investigation of the handling of the case.

Paul H. Wendel, investigator, whose repudiated "confession" delayed Hauptmann's death [illegible]

District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan sought means today to question Wendel on his story that he was tortured in Brooklyn for a "confession" he killed the Lindbergh baby.

In Kamenz, Germany, Hauptmann's aged mother suffered a complete breakdown upon learning of her son's death.

FORMER COWPUNCHER LASSOES COWS IN LAKE

Mound—Einar Johnson, former cowpuncher in the Montana [illegible], lassoed three cows from the open lake at King's Point near Mound recently, and proved that he hasn't lost none of the knack of roping. The cows, belonging to Mr. [illegible], a farmer, strolled onto the ice and ventured too close to a spot where ice had been recently harvested, tumbling in. Attracted by the shouts of the farmer, L. Dorwiller, Fred King, and Johnson arrived at the scene. When they saw the cows swimming around in the water, Johnson asked the farmer for a rope, and when he got it he lassoed the cows one by one, pulling them out of the cold water with the help of the other men. The cows were so chilled by that time they could hardly walk, and had to be shoved up into the barn.

To Mark Bicentennial of Explorer Massacre in Northwest Angle

Minnesota has reached a stage in its history where not only centennials but bicentennials can be marked. During the coming summer will occur the two hundredth anniversary of the massacre by Indians on an island in the Lake of the Woods of Jean Baptiste la Verendrye, Father Aulneau, and nineteen voyageurs. [illegible]

[illegible] Plans are under way for appropriately commemorating their part in the exploration of northern Minnesota during this bicentennial year.

COURT HOUSE BLOOMS WITH TROPIC PLANTS

Worthington—A palm tree, a fig tree, two orange trees, a lemon tree, and several cactus plants lend a tropical atmosphere to the courthouse in Worthington while chill March winds blow and Minnesota digs itself out of one of the coldest winters in history. The plants are kept by Walter Pfeil, register of deeds, and M. P. Thorston, probate judge, in their respective offices. While the trees are only potted plants, Judge Thorston's orange tree bears oranges and is expected to bloom again within the next few weeks. Mr. Pfeil's fig tree, about 20 inches high, had one fig recently which dropped off before blooming. The lemon tree, orange tree and a cherry tree were started from budded stems a year ago. The orange tree is about 12 years old. The cactus plants are miniatures of the desert species. The palm tree is little more than two feet high, but distinctively a palm in appearance. The orange tree is a foot high, with the branches spreading out for a foot or more.—Dayton Journal.

RESULTS OF SEED TESTS ANNOUNCED BY N. W. SCHOOL

Durums Germinate Poorly; Thatcher Wheat Gives Best Test

More than three hundred samples of wheat from farms in Northwestern Minnesota were tested this winter by the Northwest Experiment Station under the direction of R. S. Dunham, agronomist, and E. R. Clark, [illegible]. Both blotter and soil tests were made. Based upon the results of these tests, the following conclusions were reached.

The percentage of germination determined by keeping seed moist and warm on blotters was often much higher than the percentage of sprouts that emerged when seed was planted in soil.

In general, the durums germinated more poorly and had less vigor than the common wheats. The average percentage of emergence in a soil test was [illegible] per cent for Thatcher, Marquillo and Hope [illegible] per cent for other varieties of common wheat; [illegible] per cent for durums; with an average of [illegible] per cent for all samples.

According to Professor Dunham the unusually low germination and lack of vigor this year was due to shriveled seed, cracked seed and sprout damage and disease.

Timely suggestions for Northwestern Minnesota farmers include the following:

Grade all seed so that only the plumpest kernels remain.

Test the seed by planting 200 kernels [illegible] inches deep in soil and keeping them warm and moist until the sprouts emerge. If the result is not satisfactory, purchase better seed.

Before sowing, treat with New Improved Ceresan at the rate of [illegible] per bushel of seed. At present this treatment is recommended since it controls covered smut and other seed-borne diseases and may increase the emergence of seedlings considerably. Treating with formaldehyde may reduce the germination but it is an excellent disinfectant for covered smut.

Prepare the best seedbed possible. Attention to seedbed preparation will be more important than usual when light weight seed is used. For light weight seed sown in a good seed bed, the increased number of seeds in a bushel will tend to offset the reduced germination.

And finally, avoid sowing too deep.

SHANAHAN AND E. B. BAKKE GET ASSESSOR JOBS

Junior C. C. Offers Street Marking Project to City Council

TO CHECK LEGALITY OF PAYING CCC BILLS

Ordinance Licensing Taxicabs Approved After Final Reading

A wide variety of matters came up for consideration at a lengthy session of the city council Tuesday evening, including the appointment as assessors for the ensuing two-year period of F. M. Shanahan and E. B. Bakke. They will be paid on the basis of $300 each for the current year when both real estate and personal property are to be assessed, and $200 each in 1937 when only personal property is assessed.

Chester Myrom and Wesley Wheeler were present in behalf of the Junior Civic and Commerce association to urge that an adequate system of permanent street markers be installed in the city. They submitted a sample marker with figures indicating that the cost of marking all intersections in the city would be approximately $1,000. After a discussion in which it was suggested that the project could be carried out in installments over a period of several years, the matter was referred to the street committee for further consideration.

The matter of the unpaid and disputed bills in connection with the CCC camp up Red Lake river two years ago, aggregating approximately $900 was again brought up for discussion, and Mayor W. W. Prichard expressed the opinion that they should be paid, pointing out that the city's signed application for the project called for a local contribution of more than $1,100. After a motion to lay the matter on the table had failed to secure a passage, the council voted to refer the question to City Attorney Theodore Quale for a ruling on the legality of paying the bills.

The new ordinance providing for licensing of taxicabs and for the carrying by operators of public liability insurance, was given its third and final reading and declared adopted. Licenses are fixed at $5 for one cab and $3 for each one in addition. The ordinance amending the fire limits in the city also was given its final reading and approved.

Bids from the Central Lumber company and Robertson Lumber company were opened on approximately $2,000 worth of dimension lumber, boards, roofing, celotex and other materials for the enclosed skating rink and orders were divided between the two companies according to their low bids on the various items.

Only one bid was received on heating equipment for the rink

THELMA SOLIE IS NAMED GIRLS' 4-H LEADER IN COUNTY

Takes Over Work Under Sponsorship of Local Rotary Club

Miss Thelma Solie of Delavan, Faribault county, arrived in this city Monday to assume the post of director of girls' 4-H club activities in Pennington county. She came here under the sponsorship of the Thief River Falls Rotary club, which has underwritten the local portion of the cost of the service, the major part of which is borne by the state and federal governments.

Miss Solie has attended the home economics division of the University of Minnesota college of agriculture the past four years, and has participated in 4-H club work for seven years, winning numerous county awards as well as a trip to Chicago for her achievement in a style revue contest. She has engaged in baking, clothing, poultry and other projects.

Leaders of fifteen clubs in the county met Monday evening with Miss Solie and H. A. Pflughoeft, state leader, for a discussion of projects to be carried out during the coming summer.

Lincoln High School Senior Honor Roll

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SIGN FOR NEXT YEAR

Only Few Changes to be Made in Faculty for the Coming Year

TO FILL VACANCIES LATER THIS MONTH

Board Votes to Defer Opening of Next Term Until September 14

Contracts signed by nearly all the teachers in the public schools for the coming year were approved by the board of education at its April meeting Monday evening. Among those who did not sign contracts are Miss Inez Lunder, high school home economics teacher, who is not returning; James F. Koenker of the Central school faculty who will continue his studies at the University of Minnesota; and Miss Erma Mae Springen, music supervisor, who has not yet made known her intentions.

Supt. Morris Bye announced that a considerable number of applications had been filed by candidates for the positions to be filled, and that action on them will be taken at a special meeting of the board to be held later this month.

Acting favorably on a recommendation of the state board of education, the local board voted to set ahead the opening of the next school term from September 8 to September 14. Among the reasons advanced in resolutions to the state board requesting the change were the giving of 4-H club workers an opportunity to attend the state fair without missing any school sessions; the first week in September is a busier time for farmers than the first week in June; and that the Minnesota School Board association for many years has been unanimously in favor of the change.

It was decided by the board to continue the practice in effect in former years of furnishing free to each member of the graduating class one dozen commencement invitations at a total cost to the district of approximately $45. Action also was taken to authorize Harold F. Harrison, agriculture instructor, to take a team representing Lincoln high school to University Farm, St. Paul, June 1, to participate in a stock judging contest with teams from other high school agriculture departments through the state.

Mr. Bye announced that baccalaureate services will be conducted in the Auditorium Sunday, May 24, with Rev. E. A. Cooke delivering the sermon. High school commencement exercises will be held Friday evening, May 29, at which time the speaker will be Dr. Fred Engelhardt of the college of education of the University of Minnesota.

Other coming school events are the district music contest at Crookston Saturday, April 25; the junior senior prom Friday, May 1; and the senior class play Friday, May 15.

Prichard and heads of the sponsoring organizations and their wives, and a series of prize novelty dances will be staged as well as the award of a grand prize at the close of the evening. Six-Inch Water Main on Fifth St. Bursts Monday after Freezing

A six-inch cross main on Fifth st. between Main av. and LaBree av. burst Monday, the break being repaired a few hours later after the loss of considerable quantity of water. The main had frozen, altho buried eight feet below the surface of the ground, testifying to the depth to which the frost descended in certain spots as a result of the long siege of subzero weather experienced locally in January and February. Other mains are frozen on Dewey and Conley avs. and further trouble may develop when they thaw out, according to Supt. Ole Legvold of the water and light department.

Boy Scout Council Arranges Camping Site at Tulibee Lake

Activities for the culmination of the Boy Scout year got under way here with considerable enthusiasm at a meeting Tuesday of the officers of districts in this section of Minnesota, called by Peter DeJong, area executive. In the absence of H. O. Norby, chairman of the Thief River Falls District, Olaf Neset occupied the chair.

L. E. Healy, of Red Lake Falls, camping chairman for the local district described a suggested campsite at Tulibee Lake. The suggestion was unanimously accepted by the council and a committee consisting of Mr. Healy, chairman, Mr. Kiland of Warren, E. R. Clark of Crookston, Mr. Gordon of Fosston and Mr. Boyer Egge of Greenbush, was appointed as council camping committee to determine the actual campsite and make arrangements for the renting of such buildings as are available.

E. R. Clark of Crookston, offered the use of the swimming pool at the Northwest school for an aquatic meet to be held in the fall. The offer was very enthusiastically accepted and Mr. Clark was appointed chairman of a committee to make final arrangements at a convenient time.

Upon suggestion of Mr. DeJong, it was decided to hold a jamboree at Thief River Falls on Saturday, May 16. EMMET WRIGHT IS NEW OWNER OF BEN FRANKLIN STORE

Crookston Couple Have Been Active in Legion and Auxiliary Work

The Ben Franklin store in this city formerly owned by Bender Brothers of Bemidji was taken over Wednesday by Emmet F. Wright of Fosston, previously of Crookston. Mr. Wright announced that he would continue to operate the enterprise as a unit of Ben Franklin system of independently owned stores, and is leaving today for the Twin Cities to purchase new stocks of merchandise.

Mr. Wright was formerly cashier of the First National bank of Crookston, and for the past few years has served as receiver of the First National bank of Fosston. He has been active in American Legion affairs, and is now president of the Ninth District band.

Mrs. Wright gained wide publicity thru her position as drum major of the Crookston Legion auxiliary drum corps during the past four years, during which time the organization retained the title of state champion. She also will be active in the store.

Carlisle Buick sedan, stolen from the garage at his home Monday night, was found late Wednesday afternoon stuck in the mud at a cross street near the intersection of Johnson st. boulevard and Bridge st., just outside the city limits. None of the tools or other equipment had been taken from the car. Neighbors reported having seen the driver flee from the car as they approached, after he had failed to extricate it from the mud, but they were unable to identify him in the darkness.

Solem Tells C. and C. of Status in Europe

Finds England, Norway and Sweden Well on Road to Recovery

Arne Solem, formerly of this city, who with Mrs. Solem returned last week from a winter sojourn in Europe where he made an extensive study of unemployment insurance, particularly under the British system, gave a resume of his trip at the luncheon of the Civic and Commerce association last Thursday.

Altho England has not embarked on a public works program on the extensive scale in effect in the United States, Mr. Solem said, that country, with not more than 2,000,000 persons now without work, is apparently on the road to recovery.

The unemployment problem, he stated is not critical in Norway either, and Sweden appeared to have left the depression behind, that country having engaged in a big scale home building program.

Arriving in Germany at the time the Nazi soldiers entered the Rhineland, he found a strained atmosphere prevailing. He noted the strong censorship in Germany, and said the newspapers are all alike, being filled with Hitler propaganda.

Among other interesting experiences mentioned by Mr. Solem was that of conversing with the Norwegian king en route on a small ship from England to Norway, the king evincing a keen interest in Minnesota and its people.

Following the luncheon J. A. Hoskel, chairman of the association's road committee, reported on a conference the preceding day with the Beltrami county commissioners at Bemidji relative to the improvement of the last ten miles of road leading into the Red lake summer resort at the narrows. He said the Beltrami board was willing to maintain the section as a state aid road provided the state highway department would bear the expense, and that the board also would agree to turn over approximately $150 in taxes levied on resort property if Pennington county would take over the maintenance of the road. The matter was left in the hands of the road committee for further consideration.

CLINICS WIND UP BOWLING SEASON WITH .698 RATING

Severn Brandon and Wallace DuChamp Win Prizes for High Scores

The Bratrud Clinics won their right to the championship of the local bowling league by winning 44 games and losing 19 to give them a percentage of .698. The Bridgeman and the Grain Belt teams are tied for second place each team having won 38 games and lost 25 games giving them a percentage of .603. The Borchert-Johnson team won 35 and lost 28 games to come in fourth at .555.

The Glucks put on a strong finishing drive to lift them from the lower section to fifth position with 28 games won and 35 lost. Only one game behind them was the Land O'Lakes with 27 games won and 36 lost to put them in sixth position. The Times rated the seventh place with 24 won and 37 lost games, while the Hamms team bowled an average of 2[illegible] winning 17 and losing 41 games.

Severn Brandon won the five dollar prize for bowling the high single score in league play downing 262 counters. Wallace DuChamp had the high three game average of 619 to win the five dollar prize in that class.

Hazel Man Brings in An Egg Within an Egg

The latest addition consists of a perfectly formed egg within an egg, the formation having been revealed when the outer shell, measuring nine inches in its greatest circumference, was broken. The freak was the product of a White Leghorn hen. Another novelty submitted Friday by Mrs. Christ Engen of the Holt community is a Brown Leghorn egg with a well-formed initial C embossed on one end.

FARM PROGRAM PLANS ADVANCE IN PENNINGTON

12 Local Committees Named in Soil Conservation Program

SERIES OF MEETINGS HAS BEEN COMPLETED

County Organization Will be Perfected Saturday Morning

The series of educational meetings to explain the new soil conservation program have now been completed in Pennington County. Attendance has been good, considering the weather and the condition of the roads, County Agent Douglass said. The county is divided into thirteen communities in each of which a committee of three has been elected by the members to carry out the program.

The chairman of each community committee is a member of the county board, which meets at 10 o'clock Saturday morning in the Civic and Commerce rooms in the Auditorium at Thief River Falls for the purpose of electing the county committee and other county officers as well as to take care of the other necessary requirements for the organization.

All of the committeemen will attend a county school of instruction Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock to get the information necessary to execute the work sheets. Some day next week the community committees will meet at some central location in their respective communities and every farmer is urged to go to that place to make out the work sheet. Dates and location of these meeting places will be announced later. Every farmer will be required to execute the work sheet before the soil depleting base can be established on any farm. It will speed up progress of the work if every farmer will cooperate with his committee in making out the work sheet, Mr. Douglass said.

Salmon en Casserole
Buttered Carrots
Cole Slaw
Deep-Dish Apple-Pineapple Pie
Coffee

You may not like this salmon casserole dish, but it is worth trying. You can take the salmon from the can whole, if you prefer, and heat it through either by steaming or baking, then pour cooked and seasoned green peas over it and serve with lemon slices. Or you can make a salmon loaf season well and bake. Scalloped potatoes, potato chips or French fried potatoes are nice to serve with it, in that case.

Apple Pancakes—One egg, one cup milk, three tablespoons melted shortening, one and one-fourth cups flour, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one and one-half tablespoons sugar, two-thirds cup finely diced apples. Beat the egg and milk, add the sifted dry ingredients and shortening, stir in the apples and bake on a hot griddle. Makes 20 cakes.

Salmon en Casserole—One can red salmon and juice, one-half pint sour cream, eight tiny round potatoes or three large potatoes in one-half inch slices, salt and pepper. Remove skin from salmon. Season to taste. Surround with potatoes, in casserole, and cover in 350-degree oven until potatoes are done.

Deep Dish Apple-Pineapple Pie—Three cups sliced apples, one cup grated pineapple, one-half cup sugar, two tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon ginger, two tablespoons butter. In a shallow buttered baking dish place layers of the apples and pineapple. Mix the sugar, flour, ginger, and a dash of salt together and sprinkle over. Dot with butter and cover with pie crust, slashed to let out the steam. Bake at 425 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes. Serve hot with hard sauce.

Orange Muffins—Three cups pastry flour, 6 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons grated orange rind, 2 eggs, 1 1-3 cups milk, ⅓ cup orange juice, strained, 4 tablespoons fat, melted.

Mix ingredients and beat 1 minute. Bake 20 minutes in greased muffin pans in moderate oven. Serve warm.

MIDNIGHT HEROISM SAVES HUNTING DOG

Elk River.—Will Herrick may not be able to claim a life saving award, but in the eyes of his dog he is not only a hero but a god as well. Mrs. Herrick was awakened in the middle of the night by frantic barking and howling of a dog, and fearing for her sheep, she awakened her husband. Herrick recognized the barking as that of his dog, and realized the animal was in danger. He dressed and followed the barking, arriving at a small pond where the dog, a valuable Airedale, had broken through the ice and was unable to get out. Herrick marched right into the icy water, breaking the ice as he went, until he reached the exhausted dog and effected a rescue. A few minutes more and the dog would have dropped back into the water and drowned.

Elk Are Doing Well in Red Lake Game Refuge

Elk imported from Wyoming and released in the northwestern part of the Red Lake Game refuge are reported to be doing well, according to Gustav Swanson, game and fish division biologist. Elk became extinct in Minnesota about 1900. Several years ago some of the animals were brought here from Wyoming and raised in Itasca State Park. According to Swanson, a similar reintroduction of elk in Michigan about 12 years ago was very successful. There are several hundred elk in Michigan at the present time.

Legion Read Signs to Come Down If Not Kept in Good Shape

"Protect school children" signs placed on trunk highways by American Legion posts will soon be removed by the state highway department in all cases where the signs have been allowed to deteriorate and become unsightly.

This announcement was made in a bulletin issued by the department. It is in line with an agreement made with state officers of the Legion some months ago. At that time the Legion agreed that signs not reconditioned by April 1 should be taken down.

The Legion signs were put up on highway right-of-way several years ago as a safety measure. Some posts have since failed to repaint them and keep them in good condition. It was decided by both Legion officers and highway department heads that neglected signs are not useful and often are eyesores. Signs taken down by the highway department will be held for six months and if unclaimed by Legion posts by the end of that period they will be junked.

BIRDS DIE AS SNOW WEIGHS DOWN WINGS

Olivia.—The spring birds returned from the south several days too early this year. At least that should be the conviction of several hundreds birds of the family of Song Sparrows that perished in a belated snow storm at Olivia last week. While a heavy snow fell throughout the evening, the air was fairly swarming with this breed of birds. Being blinded by the snow and heavily weighted with moisture and ice, the birds committed suicide in a wholesale manner by flying against buildings and other objects. Hundreds of dead birds were found on the streets the next morning. Several Olivia people rescued a number of the cripples and brought them to sheltered places in an attempt to save their lives.

Recognize your own faults and those of your friends will not seem so glaring.

Warm Weather Brings Danger of Food Poison, State Physicians Warn

For the housewife, the coming of warmer weather means the coming of the season when special precautions are necessary for the protection of food.

Today's bulletin from the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association tells about the two common types of food poisoning and advises special care on the part of cooks and housewives to keep perishable foods covered and in cold places.

The most common type of food poisoning comes from bacterial infection. It is likely to happen whenever perishable foods are left exposed to flies and contamination and in warm places.

Under such ideal conditions, the bacteria multiply rapidly and the luckless victim who innocently eats the food becomes host to swarms of germ enemies. Cream puffs and salad mixtures left out in the open air are frequent offenders. The food itself tastes and smells good. The trouble is not food decay but contamination.

Food poisons from the toxins manufactured by such organisms as the botulinus are less common but they are very serious when they do occur. In this case, it is not the organism itself that causes the trouble but the chemical it manufactures. Botulinus poisoning occurs most often as the result of improper canning of vegetables. To destroy botulinus, a very tough organism requires prolonged heat. If it is not killed in the canning procedure, it continues to manufacture poison in the can. The acids of fruits discourage their growth but vegetables such as beans and corn and peas are especially liable to poisoning and should not be canned at home except under expert direction.

Montevideo.—Sentenced to serve time in two different institutions, Mrs. Helen Olson and Donald Leesen applied for a marriage license on March 24 and were married three days later in the court house before being taken away for long enforced separation. Mrs. Olson had recently pleaded guilty to a charge of second degree grand larceny before Judge G. E. Qvale of Willmar, and was sentenced to the women's reformatory at Shakopee, until discharged by due process of the law. She was taken to Shakopee the day following her marriage. Leesen, who pleaded guilty before the same court to a first degree grand larceny charge, was sentenced to serve from two to six years in a penal institution, and left for St. Cloud the following week. The ceremony was performed in the probate court house with the sheriff as a witness.

BUILDERS ALL

Surely some workman has builded
The pillar as well as the spire;
The cross that the painter has gilded
Was fashioned in somebody's fire.
Surely men dug in the ditches,
Preparing a place for the wall,
And someone has made with his stitches
The flag that shall fly over all.
Someone has blended the plaster
And someone has carried the stone;
Neither the man nor the master
Ever has builded alone.
Making a roof from the weather,
Building a house for the king,
Only by working together
Men have accomplished a thing.
What does it matter what duty
Falls to the lot of a man?
All have a share in the beauty,
All have a part in the plan.
Each has a hand in the building,
No one has builded alone,
Whether a cross he was gilding,
Whether he carried the stone.

Much beneficial legislation has been enacted through the leaven of W. C. T. U. activities. We rejoice that we have been able to roll up great petitions which have influenced Congress and state legislatures.

Such results were possible because of the matchless organization and the sure vocal strength of the W. C. T. U. [illegible]

Words That Count

[illegible] the word of the back seat driver is no good, but the word of the crossing cop is something you've got to pay attention to.

SCHOOL CHILDREN TO SEEK PRIZES IN SAFETY CONTEST

National Safety Campaign to Give Out $6,500 in Prizes

A study of highway safety problems in one hundred thousand communities will be made throughout the nation as a result of the eleventh national safety campaign, announced today by the Highway Education Board. Remedial action will be sought.

Eleven national organizations concerned with highway safety will collaborate in the campaign and those who make the study will represent the group that has the best record in accident prevention in the United States today. Thomas H. MacDonald, Chief of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, is chairman of the Board.

The group, according to the Board, is the elementary school children of the nation, whose safety record during the period of the earlier campaigns is little less than phenomenal when compared with that of their elders.

To interest the schools again in safety education, the Board announces a renewal of the safety essay and safety lesson contests open to elementary school pupils and teachers. Collateral activity includes school boy patrols, the award of merit room banners and school plaques.

The contests are open to all pupils of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades, who are asked to write essays on the subject "A Definite Program for My Community to Prevent Highway Accidents and to Promote Highway Safety." To write on this subject pupils will need to study conditions in their several communities. As an incentive 440 state prizes and medals are to be given for the best essays, and three national awards will be made. The state prizes vary according to the elementary school population of the several states.

All elementary school teachers engaged in classroom instruction are eligible to compete for three national awards offered for the best lessons on highway safety. Their subject is "A Lesson on Highway Safety for Children of My Community," and prizes total $1,000 in cash. The writer of the best lesson will receive $500 and a trip to Washington with all expenses paid. The second and third best lessons will earn for the author $300 and $200 respectively.

Altogether a total of $6,500 will be given away in prizes and awards, distributed according to the excellence of the papers and the school population the awards are made possible by the automotive industry, and the entire campaign is part of a nation-wide movement sponsored by the industry to reduce the number of accidents on streets and highways.

THE PROBLEM OF PRODUCTION

While information is not yet available as to the exact benefits farmers may expect for acreage reduction under the new so-called soil conservation program, enough of the details have been announced to give a fairly complete picture of the plan. The general purpose is to change approximately thirty million acres of soil depleting crops to soil building crops. Most commercial crops are in the soil depleting class and therefore the result of the program would be a reduction of commercial crops. For the country as a whole the government will reimburse farmers at an average rental of $10 an acre for the acres taken out of production. Farmers may reduce cotton acreage up to 35 per cent; tobacco 30; peanuts, flax and rice 20; sugar one-third and all other crops 15. In other words, with the exception of flax, the crops in this community may be reduced up to 15 per cent, and for the acreage so reduced the farmer will be paid some amount to be determined later, probably between $5 and $10 an acre. Such acres taken out of soil depleting crops that are planted to soil building crops such as sweet clover, alfalfa and perennial grasses will merit an additional reward.

From the standpoint of this particular section of the state it would seem that the principal benefit to be hoped for from the plan would come through the increased demand it should create for sweet clover and other grass seeds. Although under the terms of the reciprocal trade treaty with Canada, Canadian farmers will give us more competition in this line than they have in the past, this program should create a demand that for a year or two will put us in a favored position.

One inevitable result of the program will be increased production of livestock thruout the country, and that result will not be so favorable to us. This prospect, along with steadily increasing imports of meat products resulting from lowered tariffs, is not encouraging to the future of meat prices.

Just why sugar beet and flax production should be curtailed is beyond us. Flax is generally recognized as a soil depleting crop but it is a good cash producer on new land and there is a place for it, under a proper rotation of crops, on old land. It is one crop of which we produce less than half of what we use. Sugar beets, if we are correctly informed, are excellent for cleaning up old, weedy ground. A few years ago agricultural authorities "encouraged" their production. Curtailment of these crops should be good news for farmers of Argentine and Cuba but it certainly does not build up American agriculture.

But perhaps we are too critical. The defects are not so much in the farm program itself as in the other inconsistent policies of the administration that tend to offset the advantages of a program of curtailed production. This is the deal and the thing to do is to make the most of it. In deciding whether or not to co-operate in the plan each farmer must consider for himself the advantages and disadvantages of reduced acreage. Under this program some farmers will undoubtedly do better by planting less. Others probably will gain by producing more. In the final analysis, it should be remembered that our community will get a larger portion of the national farm income only as we supply a larger portion of the demand for farm products. If the farmers of this community were to quit producing entirely, the only certain result would be that their income would cease. If they doubled their production it is quite probable that their income would also be materially increased.

April showers bring the cute little green worms that dangle from the trees in May. Not that we are sorry the winter is gone. But if there is some practical method of eliminating this nuisance now is the time to get the information around. We will be glad to pass along any ideas that seem to have some merit. For the guidance of wise crackers, we have already considered the possibility of getting the New Dealers to amend the laws of gravity so that they will dangle up instead of down.

If the snow hadn't melted, the piles of ashes, tin cans and rubbish wouldn't have looked half so bad. As a matter of fact, a pile of ashes is not without beauty when it is covered with snow. But the snow is gone now and it is time to clean house. The sooner it's done the quicker it will be over.

If the present generation would expend half the energy in planting trees that it now devotes to cussing a previous generation for wasting timber, then the next generation would have considerably less to complain about on our management of the natural resources. It takes many years to grow a good tree. But it takes only a few minutes to plant one. A little sacrifice on your part this Spring will be appreciated by the generation that grows up to complain about conditions in the county in 1886.

Arnie Solem came back from Europe with a bag full of interesting information about how folks over there are getting along. His observation confirms the report that several European countries, Great Britain and Sweden in particular, are making more rapid progress toward recovery than we are and at less expense. In those countries, he states, the depression is considered a thing of the past. His observations on the German dictatorship were particularly interesting, confirming what has been written on the abject condition of the German people. Individual liberty has been completely suppressed. All channels of information are strictly censored by the Nazis and the people themselves are unwilling to discuss the problems of government for fear of official discipline. He came away convinced that the one thing we do not want is a dictatorship. We also learned from him the proper pronunciation of Nazis. From now on we will refer to them with assurance and pleasure as Not-zees.

REVEALING THE SAD TRUTH

(United States News)

The sad truth has been revealed.

It is officially announced by the President of the United States himself in a message to Congress. After more than three years of his administration he states that "there are at present approximately 5,300,000 families and unattached persons who are in need of some form of public assistance."

This means that, averaging four persons to a family, which is the method of calculation used by relief agencies in Washington, there are about 22,000,000 persons being supported by public relief.

Thus about one-sixth of the total population of the United States is on relief in some form. Nor does the figure measure the entire extent of the unemployment. Many millions more are living on relatives or on savings.

No longer can the failure to bring reemployment be blamed on the Old Deal and Hooverism. For Mr. Roosevelt during three long years has had an opportunity to eradicate all the culprits and apply his own experiments. He has had, moreover, a substantial majority in both houses of Congress. He has had unlimited funds. His deficit for four fiscal years will exceed $12,000,000,000. He has brought the public debt already to a record high for all time of $31,100,000,000.

And still the New Deal has not solved the problems that have confronted the nation, but seems to have resigned itself to continued deficits of three billions a year.

EVENTUALLY BE BUT ONE WAY

(Grand Rapids Herald-Review)

There was a time when Minnesota had few game laws. Men killed what, when and where they wished.

Now the game and fish laws of the state are something to think and write about.

A booklet has been sent out to the press. It contains the game and fish laws of the state as compiled by the attorney general. The pages are not large in size, but there are 175 of them, all filled with what can and what cannot be done.

For instance, one may read for some time about licenses, fishing, hunting, trapping, tanning, taxidermy. It is obvious that we are well licensed. There are pages of rules about taking and killing. There is page after page about bear and beaver, deer and ducks. One reaches the conclusion that wild life is well protected in Minnesota.

Such a conclusion may, or may not, be correct. We are licensed and our lives afield are well ordered. But the game and the fish are going. The reason is that there are too many people who wish to catch and kill. There is plenty of lawlessness. That takes game and fish. But the law breaker takes but a small part of that taken by those who go forth properly licensed, with the book of laws in the hip pocket.

There will eventually be but one way to save wild life. That is to stop all killing, legal and illegal, until birds, game and fish are restored.

TAXES FOR BUREAUS TO SPEND

(Industrial News Service)

The principal tax legislative plans before Congress provide increased taxes on industry. Besides soaking the rich these tax plans in Congress will "soak" the whole American public.

Some Democratic Senators are showing a rebellious spirit. Glass of Virginia continues to protest. Young Holt of West Virginia, says that the distribution of work relief in his State is a scandal and he has been very vocal in his denunciation of the national relief methods. Senator Clark of Missouri says that "I am sick of voting blank checks." King of Utah, recently laid out his party with a red hot radio speech in which he cried out bitterly against the waste of public money. Byrd of Virginia, Tydings of Maryland, and others including Senator Adams of Colorado are trying to lead their fellow-party leaders back to safe grounds. Adams "objects to piling up funds in the hands of the executives." Walsh, of Massachusetts, utters warnings.

Since these are all objections from members of the party in power it cannot be said that there is anything partisan in the above analysis of the situation.

It is openly declared in Washington by many prominent Democrats, including the above, that unemployment and relief cannot be cured by the present methods of administration. Most of these would like to return the responsibilities taken away from the States. They are apparently convinced that the obligation of looking out for the needy belongs under local control, inasmuch as that was the way the Republic was organized and conducted until recent years.

WHAT HAVE WE TO SHOW FOR IT?

(Chicago News)

In the three years of the New Deal, ordinary expenditures, which the President promised to reduce by 25 per cent, have doubled. Federal taxes, if the President gets the new taxes he asks for, will have doubled. Each year, for three years, the New Deal has been running a deficit of over $3,000,000,000. In three years the national debt has been increased by over $10,000,000,000 not to mention contingent liabilities, an addition of $[illegible].

The people's money has been spent like water. Our own future, and that of our children, has been light-heartedly mortgaged. What have we to show for it? There are more people on relief than there were three years ago. There are still about as many people unemployed. We have had some recovery, but less, on the whole, than countries like Britain and Sweden, which have kept a balanced budget. Three years of the New Deal! Still another year to go before the people at the polls can stop this spendthrift prodigality!

Revenue from intoxicating liquors last year amounted to $[illegible], which is an all-time high but yet disappointingly small in view of the fact that the repealists promised that the revenue from beer alone would be about three times that figure. The retail cost of the liquor was about $[illegible] and some shark with figures has computed that this amount would have supplied [illegible] families with 15 pounds of meat per week for the entire year; also with two one pound loaves of bread each day; also with two quarts of milk per day for a year, $3.00 worth of fruit per month, and also paid the rent on 2,[illegible] houses at $[illegible] per month for 12 months. There would still be enough left to buy 2,[illegible] men's suits at $25 each, and also to give each of the 2,[illegible] mothers $50 in cash to buy clothing for herself and her children, and on top of that she could have [illegible] additional dollars to buy shoes for the family. There would still be enough to enable each family to pay an average of $[illegible] to the doctor, and a dollar a week to the church, buy tickets for the family to go to two movies a week, also to take a daily paper, and two $1.00 magazines, and have a [illegible] of candy every Saturday night and still have enough left to chip in a bit on the [illegible].

Looking Backward

TEN YEARS AGO

From the Times of April 22, 1926

Dickenson & Bredeson, Bemidji contractors, were awarded the general contract for the construction of the new Trinity Lutheran church building on their bid of $29,915. Fourteen carloads of potatoes were shipped out of the city this spring at prices ranging as high as $2.10 a bushel. The Woman's club sponsored a free cooking school at the Sons of Norway hall. Most of the wheat seeding in the county is now completed. The local unit of the Daughters of Norway celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of its organization with a social program. C. D. Gustafson left for Owatonna to attend an implement dealers' meeting. Local citizens organized a unit of the "Stay West, Young man" club.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

From the Times of April 20, 1916

The Times defended local citizens against charges of excessive drinking published in an article in the opposition paper headed "Deluge of booze pours into city—Keg parties real rage every day." —The Kretzschmar dam was damaged to the extent of about $2,000 Sunday when the ice from the upper Red Lake river came down, the water being at an unusually high stage.—The report of Postmaster John Morgan for the past fiscal year shows total receipts of $20,323.42, compared to $10,376.70 in 1910.—The Times might have been looking ahead twenty years when it said on its editorial page, "It has been decided that Roosevelt is to be the nominee at Chicago."—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lambert arrived from Brainerd and will make this city their home, Mr. Lambert having purchased the Peoples drug store. —Roy and Bernard Barzen, students at St. John's college, Collegeville, arrived to spend a brief vacation at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Math Barzen. Fascist Propaganda

Editor the Times:

Our people have just been listening to many splendid Easter sermons, but, nevertheless, there was one at least coming over the air that did not have the right ring.

The speaker implored all Christian to wake up and fight "Atheism and Communism" but said not a word about fighting Fascism, nor even Nazism.

As far as Communism is concerned, it has been proven impractical both when led by Christians and when led by atheists and other infidels.

The early, pioneering Christians tried it, and it took only Ananias and his wife to show the impracticability of communism, while in Russia, where the leaders were mostly anti-christian, it did not take many years for the majority of them to see that it was impractical, and so-called Trotsky, who was to keep to communism, being more of an idealist than the majority. Russia today, is nearly as far from communism as the U. S. A. They are paying different rates of salaries. They have "3 different farming systems. They pay about 4 times as high a rate of interest to depositors in the Government Banks as our own privately owned banks. How long will it take them to wipe out the theoretical equality of individuals?

Looking at it from the Christian standpoint, Hitler has them backed off the boards. According to the United Press reports he has just now had the Bible written over so as to conform to the mythology of northern Europe before they adapted the religion of our Savior Jesus Christ. Here is one sample of the Reichsbishop's version of one paragraph: "Happy are those who keep peace with their compatriots, for they fulfill God's will" instead of the original which reads "Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the Children of God".

Anyone who thinks the United States is not a hundred times more in danger of some form of Nazism and Fascism at present than theoretical communist experimentation is likely to have another guess coming and Christians should not be led aside by those who preach the Gospel for the purpose of selfish gain, as St. Paul, also warns against (1 Tim 6-5RV).

The underhanded work of fascist minded congressional leaders came clearly out in the first "Neutrality Law" last year, which authorized the President to embargo shipments of war munitions, to warring nations, but, an amendment to also include loans and credits was voted down! Reason? Likely Italy needed loans or credits, while Ethiopia needed war materials. Great Neutrality, this! Thank God it has now been remedied in the Second Neutrality Act, according to the press.

Andrew Trovaton.

Editor Times:

In your last issue appeared a report of a convention wherein a resolution was adopted insisting upon the rapid liquidation of the Rural Credit Bureau to the end that farmers might remain in possession. This public expression should please the readers of your paper who may be a part of the 12,000 farmers over the State of Minnesota, who, through no fault of their own, have become the victims of the deflation and high interest rates. This tragic condition, which has affected so many farmers, has been common knowledge for a long time but still it has been continued without any reduction in interest or revaluation of the lands to meet the requirements of an humane and business like liquidation. As far as the State's governing body is concerned, these farmers have truly been the "forgotten men."

The writer, at the insistence of some farmers, had slips printed setting out a plan proposed by him. As soon as the same was circulated, it spread to the entire state, meetings were held by those concerned, petitions circulated and signed and it was urged upon the legislators. The writer went to St. Paul and stayed two and a half months pressing the plan before the last General Session to the end that a bill might issue along the lines proposed with the result that, in the last days of the session, House Bill No. 1509 passed the house by a vote of 101 against 9. It was then too late to bring action in the Senate which prepared a counter bill. There being no agreement between the two houses as to the essentials, it finally went to the conference committee, the charnel house of all bills that were marked for the "mercy death". There issued as recommendations from this committee a proposal endorsing the essentials of the Senate bill which completely set at naught any effort for effective legislation at that session and the Rural Credit farmers well known how that bill in practice has operated as far as they are concerned.

In order that your readers may know the original plan proposed by the writer, it is again printed in its complete form; as it was circulated over the State and to members of the Legislature.

Gilbert A. Brattland

LET'S HAVE ACTION!

A Safe and Sane Method for Liquidating the Rural Credit Bureau

1. Immediate liquidation of the Bureau.
2. Re-appraisal of all lands, loans, and contracts by a representative of the State, appointed by the Tax Commission, a County Commissioner and an officer of the Town Board.
3. Re-financing at such re-appraisal of all loans and sales contracts at 3 percent, payable annually, in the Fall. If loan or contract is less than appraisal, then refinancing such balance at the same rates.

First right, for a certain time, to former owners to repurchase their land by paying the interest in advance for one year, and thereafter in advance each year at 3 per cent interest.

Editor The Times:

I see by the Times of March 12 a letter from Homer Mussey from San Gabriel, Calif.

I was surely glad to hear from him, also I am very glad to know his mother and father are still living. I often think of them, as I used to work for them. Homer Mussey may not remember me but I know his sister Lillian would. I was well acquainted with Miss Wallin as I used to work for her also. I was sorry to hear of her death. I often though of her and wondered where she was. She had a sister Florence.

I came to Thief River Falls from Madison Lake in the year 1898. It seemed at that time west of the west side of the business district was a hay market. Where the Penney store is was a hay market and also where the Evelyn hotel stands. Hans Langseth store at that time was our main store where we did our trading and the John Aas store. When I was back there in the winter of 1934 I saw a big change. I had been gone since 1916. I could write a big history about Thief River Falls.

Yours truly,
Mrs. M. P. Malret
(Nee) Mrs. George Monroe

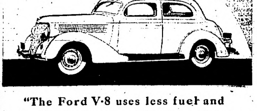
Ford—FOR ECONOMY



"The Ford V-8 uses less fuel and oil for the power it gives than any other car we have ever made

AND ITS UP-KEEP COST IS THE LOWEST"

ENTHUSIASTIC sales talk often begins and ends with gasoline mileage. Some salesmen would like you to believe it is the whole story of automobile economy. But drivers ought to know better. For, the fact is, it's way down the list.

The big items of car economy are low first cost, low up-keep cost and low depreciation. Savings here can make a great deal of difference in cost per mile. Gasoline mileage is more of a talking point than an economy factor.

Check up and you will find that the difference between 17 and 19 miles a gallon is less than $10 for a whole year's average driving (8400 miles at 18 cents a gallon). Here are the big items that make the Ford the most economical car:

More value for every dollar you pay.
Lower cost for repairs and service.
Long life. Slow depreciation.

Quality means economy and the 1936 Ford V-8 gives you more real quality than any other low-price car. No other car under $1645 has a V-8 engine. No other low-price car has Center-Poise Riding, safe, sure mechanical brakes and Safety Glass all around at no extra cost.

SO. ST. PAUL LIVESTOCK

(U. S. Department of Agriculture Economics and Minnesota Department of Agriculture)

South St. Paul, Minn., April [illegible], 1936 (U.S.D.A.): Slaughter steers made up a large part of the day's cattle run. Trade was fully steady on medium grade fed steers and most lightweight natives, while better grade steers weighing around 1050 lbs. and up were slow and weak, spots lower. Medium to good fed steers and yearlings bulked at $7.00-8.25, with a few up to $8.50. Plainer lots ranged down to $5.75 or under. Good fed heifers brought $7.25-8.00, a few $8.50, lower grades $5.50-7.00. Good beef cows made $5.75-6.25, common down to $5.00, better grades $[illegible], better bologna bulls $5.60-5.85, cutter and common $4.75-5.50. Better grade vealers earned $7.50-9.00; cull and common $4.50-6.00. Medium to good stocker steers brought $6.25-7.25, a few better grade feeders up to $7.75.

Hogs were fully steady to strong, better 140-220 lb. $10.25-10.50, 220-260 lb. $9.90-10.30, 260-320 lb. $9.65-9.90, sows $9.20-9.25, a few feeder pigs $10.50-11.25.

TECHNICALITY OF LAW MAY SAVE CHECK FORGER

Lewiston.—A technicality of the law may save Wellington Stinson, 42, resident of Winona and self-confessed check forger. Altho he admitted signing a check for $5.00 supposedly bearing the name of a former employer, Earl H. Alberts, farmer, the name was scrawled in such a way that it was almost illegible, and would not have been taken for Alberts' name unless one knew that it was supposed to represent his signature. Stinson cashed the check at a shoe store, buying a pair of shoes for $2.75 and receiving $2.25 in change. Becoming suspicious, the proprietor of the shoe store called the bank, and finding the check was not written by Alberts, called in the police. Stinson was still about town, and although he had spent $2.25 in change, the shoes were left at the store, not being called for. He is being held without charge, because of the technicality of the law, even tho admitting his guilt.

THRONGS GATHER AT CHURCHES FOR EASTER SERVICES

Good Friday Services at the Auditorium Were Well Attended

Churches of the community were crowded with worshipers Sunday when special services were held in observance of Easter, marking the climax of the Lenten season. Rain threatened to mar the day in the morning, but by noon the skies had cleared and the afternoon was bright and sunny.

The municipal Auditorium was well filled Friday afternoon when joint Good Friday services were held under the auspices of the Trinity, Zion and Augustana Lutheran churches. Rev. R. M. Fjelstad, Rev. E. L. Tungseth and Rev. H. A. Larson discussed various aspects of the central theme, "Reconciliation."

In addition to hymns sung by the audience, the musical portion of the program included songs by mixed quartets representing Zion and Trinity churches, and a ladies' quartet from Augustana church.

SPRING WEATHER ARRIVES IN FULL EFFECT THIS WEEK

Seeding May Get Under Way Not Much Later Than a Year Ago

Springlike weather has prevailed locally during most of the past week, and practically all of the remaining snow has disappeared. While there is a considerable accumulation of water in some localities, it has run off or soaked into the ground in most sections without causing any particular inconvenience.

The lowest reading of 20 above was reported Monday by Observer Fred E. Prutz, as was the week's high mark of 59 above the same afternoon. On other days of the past week the mercury reached a high point ranging from 41 to 49 above. The reading this morning was 25 above.

With a large quantity of water coming down the river as a result of thawing weather, the water wheels in the municipal power plant were put into operation Sunday, in addition to which considerable water has gone over the dam. A year ago at this time water power had been utilized for three weeks.

If present prospects continue, seeding will get under way locally not much later than a year ago when operations were delayed until the last week in April by heavy rains earlier in the month.

60 Federal Seed Loans Applied for to Date

COUNCIL CONDUCTS LENGTHY SESSION TUESDAY EVENING

building, that one being submitted by Ed Lee in the amount of $3115. The ensuing discussion developed that this figure was far in excess of the orginal estimate at the time the building project was instituted, and the council voted to defer action pending determination as to whether or not available funds will be sufficent to complete the building in all details.

After considering an application by John Gullingsrud for settlement of accumulated taxes on a residence owned by him fronting on the West First st. paving, the council agreed to cancel the attached penalty. The matter of obtaining reimbursement from the state highway department for part of the cost of paving that portion of Highway 59 which proceeds along Third st. was referred to City Attorney Quale with instructions to communicate with the highway department in St. Paul.

Provision was made at the meeting for a contingent fund for Mayor Prichard in the usual amount of approximately $100. It was also voted to buy from the county for $175 two box cars located in the city, one of which has been remodeled to make it habitable.

John Newland, one of the group interested in the Goodridge rural electrification project, informed the council that the rural electrification administration in Washington had requested a formal quotation from the city for supplying electric current to the proposed new system. It was voted to quote a price of 2.5 cents per kilowatt hour at the local switchboard the same basis as the informal offer made last fall.

Building permits were granted to the Thief River Implement company to erect a temporary sheet-steel office on the corner north from the Central Lumber company at a cost of $200; and to Sulvason & Ellenson, to install a basement under their building on Third st.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

MAY 3 TO 10 WILL BE CONSERVATION WEEK OBSERVANCE

Governor Urges Publicity for Movement in Proclamation

In a proclamation issued last week, Governor Olson designated May 3 to 10 inclusive as "Minnesota Conservation Week" and Friday, May 1, as "Arbor and Bird Day."

The proclamation, in part, follows:

"The return of spring, after one of the coldest winters in Minnesota history, brings new hopes and new courage with which to face the future. The hardships of winter fade into the background and it becomes a little easier to live and work and play. But the spring season should also remind us that the powerful forces of nature have not yet yielded to the intelligence and industry of mankind. A tremendous amount of planned work remains to be done before it can be said that we in Minnesota have learned to make the most of the many gifts bestowed upon us by nature.

"It is essential to the welfare of the state that the conservation and restoration of our natural resources be given an increasingly prominent place in the education of our citizens, so that they will lend their support to the enlightened program of conservation now being carried on by the federal and state government.

"One week of the year has been set aside for the purpose of bringing the work and the problems of conservation more clearly to the attention of all our people. It is to be hoped that during this week the benefits of forestry, game conservation, water control, and the other activities of conservation will be given wide publicity.

Marshall County Roads to Have Load Limits

Due to the unusual snow conditions of all roads in Marshall County this spring and fearing that heavy traffic will result in the loss of existing gravel the Marshall county board of commissioners decided to restrict all graveled roads in the county to a three ton load limit, including vehicle. Sheriff O. C. Toftner will work in conjunction with the county highway department in enforcing this restriction and all violators will be held responsible. Load limit signs are now being posted by the Highway Department and the roads will be restricted until conditions permit heavier traffic.

A total of 76 deer have been removed from Itasca state park by the division of game and fish in cooperation with federal emergency conservation work authorities.

The deer were taken to nine areas from 15 to 35 miles away from the boundaries of the park. According to latest reports, 52 deer were found dead from starvation and many of those trapped were in a weak or dying condition. Some of the deer were so weak that they died of the effects of malnutrition even after being fed.

It was estimated in December, 1935, that there were about 2,000 deer in Itasca Park. An undetermined but substantial percentage of this number are believed to have died of starvation.

WILD RICE RIVER GOES OVER BANKS AT ADA THIS WEEK

Forty Homes in Low Section of City Surrounded by Water

The Wild Rice river was out of its banks early this week, flooding several buildings in the business section and forcing a number of Ada families to evacuate their homes.

Rains and melting snows, aggravated by the slipping off of the top part of the Heiberg dam, 14 miles east of Ada, by ice, sent a heavy rush of water down the tributary of the Red river and two miles above Ada the water left its banks.

Approximately 40 homes in the northern and eastern part of the city were surrounded by water and basements of more than a half dozen places in the business area were flooded.

In the northern part of Ada, water was running over state highway No. 75 but traffic nevertheless was moving. Trunk highway No. 31, however, running from Ada to Itasca park was blocked.

Large Gathering Attends Dr. N. M. Watson Rites

A large gathering of friends from thruout this section of the state assembled in Red Lake Falls last Thursday afternoon to attend funeral rites for the late Dr. N. M. Watson who passed away April 6. Services were held in the Presbyterian church, Rev. H. N. Lindholm officiating, and interment was in Williamstown, Ontario. Included in the list of honorary pallbearers were Mayor W. W. Prichard, Dr. O. F. Mellby and Dr. Baldwin Borreson of this city, and Oscar Gunstad of St. Hilaire.

REPUBLICANS NOW ASSEMBLING FOR STATE CONVENTION

Tentative Platform Is Prepared for Submission Saturday

Delegates from all over Minnesota today were preparing to attend the Republican state convention to be held in the St. Paul auditorium on Saturday.

Problems to be considered by the convention body include the election of four delegates-at-large, four alternates-at-large, eleven Presidential electors to the Republican national convention at Cleveland in June, the formulation of the platform upon which Republican candidates will run in the campaign this fall, and the determining of party policies.

Actual work of determining what the platform will contain has been under way for some time in the hands of a committee of 150, representing all of the state's congressional districts and the various groups interested in specific phases of the platform. Report of this committee will be submitted to the convention body on Saturday as recommendations and proposals from which the actual platform will be drawn. The purpose of this method was to give the issues of the coming campaign mature consideration before the specific platform was voted upon by the delegates. The appointment of this platform committee by the state executive committee and advisory council in no way hinders the right of the convention delegates to select their own platform committee.

Two keynote addresses are expected to be given before the convention. Oscar E. Carlson of Aledo, Illinois, a former attorney general of the state of Illinois, will outline the major national issues of the coming campaign. The keynote address upon problems and issues of the coming state campaign will be given by R. E. Barron of Wadena, Minnesota.

Four major issues which unquestionably will be given important consideration in the platform making are farm relief, revision of taxation, conservation and drastic government economy. A survey of the resolutions passed by recent county conventions indicated that these four issues were in a majority.

A large share of the plans and preparations for the state convention have been in the hands of the new state advisory council, a recent development in the Republican party organization of Minnesota. This new governing body is a product of a democratic process which gives the rank and file of the party a voice in party management. This state advisory council which consists of one man and one woman selected from each of the congressional districts by the county chairmen and chairwomen has been meeting with the regular state executive committee in determining party plans and policies.

Three groups have given serious consideration to the platform recommendations to be submitted to the convention body. The full platform committee met last Thursday to begin the discussion of drafting the proposals. The following day the recommendations were given further consideration by the state executive committee and advisory council meeting jointly. This week the county chairmen and county chairwomen from each of the state county organizations will meet to voice their opinions of the platform proposals.

Frenchweed Is Cause of Millions in Losses to State Dairy Producers

By giving disagreeable flavors to milk and milk products, Frenchweed and pepper grass caused millions of dollars of loss last year to dairy producers in western and northwestern Minnesota. The creamery interests absorbed much of this loss last year, asserts W. B. Combs, professor of dairy manufacturing at University Farm, St. Paul, but they cannot be expected to keep on doing so. Some buyers already are planning to reduce the price for weedy-flavored cream as much as 5 cents per pound of butterfat.

To control Frenchweed or pepper grass in rotated pastures, says A. C. Arny, farm crops specialist, it is best to seed pasture crops on land that has been planted to row crops the preceding year and thoroughly cultivated. To avoid bringing dormant weed seeds to the surface, the soil for seeding should be disked without plowing. The pasture crop, preferably a mixture of several well adapted grasses and legumes, should be sowed as early in the spring as soil conditions will permit.

In permanent pastures, anything that can be done to develop a thicker growing, more vigorous stand of grass or legumes tends to crowd out the weeds. Disking and reseeding will be advisable in many instances, and for fairly heavy soil of good moisture-holding capacity, the application of commercial fertilizer may be profitable. The use of commercial fertilizer on light sandy or woodland pasture, however, rarely pays.

Mowing, or treating with sodium chlorate may be advisable for controlling small patches of these weeds, either in rotated or permanent pastures, Mr. Arny says. To keep cattle from eating plants which have been chemically treated, they should be given free access to common salt.

In limited tests conducted at University Farm, no off-flavors were discernible in the milk of cows pastured on Frenchweed or pepper grass, when the cows were removed from such pasturage 3 to 5 hours before milking.

University Extension Specialist Gives Tips for the Lambing Period

Exercise, water, and salt are three very necessary things for ewes that are about to lamb, emphasizes W. E. Morris, extension livestock husbandman, University Farm, in giving a series of lambing time hints for sheep producers.

For ewes that have had no grain so far, Mr. Morris recommends that grain feeding start at least 2 weeks before lambing time and continue until the lambs go on pasture. The condition of the ewes will govern the amount of grain to be fed, but usually from one half to one pound of oats per ewe a day will be satisfactory. Ewes so fed will be in better condition at lambing time, will have less trouble in lambing, and will milk better. Unless on pasture, ewes that are about to lamb should be separated from the rest of the flock and watched closely.

Any weak lamb should be assisted in taking its first meal, that is, held with its mouth open and forced to nurse. Navel ill can be avoided by painting or dipping the navel cord of the new-born lamb in a tincture of iodine.

Early lambs should be fed grain separate from the ewes and a little fine leafy hay should also be provided. Though lambs will not eat much, they will get a lot of good from such extra feeding. A handy way to feed the lambs is in a creep, that is, a pen with a small entrance so that the lambs may enter but the old sheep cannot. Creep feeding will pay even when the ewes are milking well, and it is especially necessary when the milk flow is short. Young lambs may safely be fed all they will eat of whole oats or any grain mixture, such as cracked corn with a little bran.

CITIES INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY IN AUTO MISHAPS

Head of the National Safety Council Speaks at St. Paul Meeting

The traffic safety movement must reach the individual motorist if the movement is to be a success, Dr. C. H. Watson of New York City, president of the National Safety Council, said in an address Tuesday night in the Hotel Lowry, St. Paul.

Dr. Watson was the principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Minnesota Public Safety committee at which bronze plaques were awarded by Governor Olson to cities and counties named winners of the 1933 Minnesota traffic safety contest.

More than 600 persons attended the affair, regarded as one of the most successful and enthusiastic meetings of its kind ever held in the United States. A. V. Rohweder of Duluth, chairman of the Minnesota Public Safety committee, was general chairman for the dinner. Col. F. W. Matson, president of the Minnesota Public Safety Council, presided.

"I think there is a fundamental point that must be emphasized again and again in this particular fight against motor vehicle accidents," Dr. Watson said. "We cannot organize motorists as we organized each industrial plant for accident prevention. It is only in commercial fleets and large trucking units that management can exert influence and discipline on the individual driver. But, the individual motorist, no matter who he is nor where he is, must be reached and profoundly influenced before we can say with confidence that we are successfully attacking the motor car problem."

"And not only the motor car problem," he continued. "That is only the most outstanding and grievous source of death and injury through accident. Every phase of safety effort must be organized and fought through on the basis of reaching the individual and changing his very thoughts. Instead of a mind to react to accept recklessness and danger as the common and expected practice in any day's events, he must be filled with safety consciousness. He can be taught to react to the spirit of accident prevention, just as heretofore he has responded to a spirit of recklessness and carelessness.

"The future of accident prevention and the safety movement demands the widest possible recognition on the part of the individual of personal responsibility, for both his own safety and that of every person with whom he comes in contact."

The speaker paid high tribute to the Minnesota Public Safety committee for its activity in reducing traffic fatalities from 641 in 1934 to 592 in 1935, in spite of an increase in gasoline consumption, saying that "I think we have no better example of what safety leaders with high sense of responsibility can accomplish than is found here in the state of Minnesota."

Montana Man Receives $58,000 AAA Payments

New criticism was directed at Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace by Senator Vanderberg of Michigan in his fight for publication of big AAA benefit payments. At the same time, it was learned that Thomas D. Campbell, Montana wheat farmer, received about $58,000 in benefit payments under a crop control contract partly covering lands rented from Indians. Secretary Ickes, through whose department, Campbell rented the Indian lands at nominal rates, said the Indians would receive 10 per cent of benefit payments.

TIME TO CHANGE OIL FOR SPRING

MAKE IT ISO=VIS "D"

SAVE AS MUCH AS 10¢ A QUART

STANDARD'S PREMIUM QUALITY MOTOR OIL COSTS ONLY 25¢* A QUART

IT GOES FURTHER!

When it comes to staying power, Iso=Vis "D" refuses to take its hat off to any other motor oil on the market. Compare it with oils that cost as much as 10¢ more a quart—compare its ability to stay on the job in long hard driving. Watch how your oil level stays up and your oil costs stay down, when you have Iso=Vis "D" in your crankcase. Its tough, smooth, durable "body" resists the usual effects of sharp changes in temperature, doesn't thicken greatly in cold, nor thin out seriously under high engine-heat. Enjoy its economy this Spring and Summer.

Eight short minutes is all it takes to have your crankcase drained and refilled with the proper grade of Iso=Vis "D" for Spring, at Standard Oil Stations and Dealers—where you see the sign of

This astonishing offer of beautiful, fully guaranteed ten year plate silverware free with every purchase of Nash's Toasted Coffee is simple and clear cut—not a tricky contest, nothing to mail, no cash to pay—as simple as 1, 2, 3. Here is the offer:

1. Each one pound vacuum-packed glass jar of Nash's Toasted Coffee contains a coupon, four of which entitle you to a knife absolutely free. Your grocer gives you the knife. No coupons to mail—no waiting for the knife.
2. Attached directly to the two pound vacuum glass jar of Nash's Toasted Coffee is a la Belvidere teaspoon—another free gift.
3. Attached to each three pound vacuum glass jar of Nash's Toasted Coffee is a fork, in the same stunning la Belvidere pattern—another free gift.

Since we first made this startling offer some weeks ago, we have frequently been asked, "But how can you give such beautiful silverware with a high quality coffee like yours?"

The answer is simple. Because of its high quality, its extra richness, its unsurpassed fragrance of aroma, the sale of Nash's Toasted Coffee has grown with unheard of momentum. Each year, since we first introduced Nash's Toasted Coffee, has seen phenomenal sales increases. 1935 was by far the largest year in our many years of operation.

Naturally, the more coffee we pack and sell, the less it costs us to produce each pound. Without stinting the quality the slightest, we can offer the public more for their money. This free silverware is given to the American housewife as an extra value in appreciation of her loyalty to Nash's Toasted Coffee.

And remember — behind every pound of Nash's Toasted Coffee stands our unequivocal guarantee, "The finest coffee you ever drank, or your money refunded."

A Strange Parasite

One of mankind's strangest parasites is the filaria, a microscopic eel-like worm of tropical and subtropical countries which gets into the body through drinking water or the bite of an infected mosquito and frequently causes elephantiasis, writes R. H. Brinton, New York city, in Collier's Weekly. These worms swarm in the victim's blood during the night and completely disappear during the day.

'U' ENROLLMENT AT NEW PEAK IN SPRING QUARTER

11,858 Now in Attendance at State Institution in Minneapolis

Considerably the largest enrollment it has ever had in its spring quarter has been recorded at the University of Minnesota since the close of the spring vacation two weeks ago, President L. D. Coffman recently told a meeting of the deans. The total figure was given as 11,858 students of actual college standing, in residence and, counting all enrollments in schools, extension short courses and by correspondence, 17,367.

Normally there is a decline through the year, with the largest enrollment in October, which is reduced by graduations and the dropping of courses as the year progresses. This has been true this year, also, but to a lesser degree than usual.

In regular college classes there are 7521 men and 4375 women, maintaining the usual ratio of about seven to four, but in evening extension courses the ratio is about fifty-fifty, with 2500 men and 2562 women, according to a report by R. R. Price, extension director.

Presence of more than 1,000 federal aid students on the campus has no effect on the comparison between this year and last, as there was an equal number on the campus in 1934-'35.

Every branch of the university has more students than in the spring quarter last year, except for small decreases in two departments, nursing and pharmacy. Extension and correspondence enrollments are materially larger than a year ago. Better economic conditions are assumed to be one of the reasons for the increase. This, no doubt, has also been coupled with a more optimistic outlook on the part of young people.

Nation's Relief Rolls Placed at 20,000,000

The nation's relief rolls stood Saturday at an estimated 20,000,000 persons, as many as in April, 1935, when the new deal started its $4,000,000,000 work program according to a dispatch from Washington.

President Roosevelt asked congress to appropriate another $1,500,000,000 for next year. His action indicated the administration does not anticipate a substantial reduction in need in the next 12 months.

Works progress administration statistics showed 14,137,502 individuals are now living off the government's 3,820,946 made jobs. Officials estimate another 5,750,000 or more are receiving aid from their localities.

The total now "on relief" is set at 20,000,000. Last year at this time, the government was feeding 20,028,270 persons through the federal emergency relief administration.

WOMAN 91 YEARS OLD CUTS 3D SET TEETH

Park Rapids.—An epidemic of teeth extraction has swept Park Rapids recently, and a good many young people have said goodbye to all the attendant aches and pains they suffered with the original masticating tools—so they think. However, in this world of constant miracles, nothing is certain. As witness, Grandma Hodder, 91 year old resident of Ponsford, in Becker county, is undergoing the same pangs as she experienced approximately 93 years ago and again about 84 years ago. In other words, she is cutting her third set of teeth. It's unbelievable—but it's true—Two teeth have already made their appearance, and the third is already on its way.

Land Bank Farm Tenants to Get Aid to Qualify for New AAA Farm Plan

Several hundred farmers who are renting land bank farms in Minnesota will be encouraged to give prompt and thoughtful attention to the possibility of cooperating with the AAA in the new soil conservation program, it was announced this week by the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul.

Seed will be locally purchased where possible and furnished if necessary by the land bank to those worthy farmers who can come under the plan with advantage to themselves and to the farms, subject to an adjustment next fall when the payments are received, the land bank announced.

Payments expected to average more than $10 an acre in Minnesota for land shifted from corn, wheat, rye, oats, barley, potatoes or other "soil depleting" crops, up to a maximum of 15 per cent of the "soil depleting" acreage of each participating farm, are believed by the land bank to offer a strong inducement towards soil conservation. The crops to which such shifted acres would be devoted in order for the operator or owner to get the payments comprise soil conserving crops of many kinds, such as alfalfa, clover, and perennial grasses.

Approved crops taken out of the "soil depleting" acreage of each farm must in general be shifted to soil conservation this year in order to qualify for the payment and not be harvested or taken off for hay, although the land may be pastured, it was pointed out.

Red Lake Falls Bridge Over Railroad Awarded

Award of a contract for a 3-span, 126-foot bridge on Trunk Highway No. 32 over the Great Northern railroad tracks in Red Lake Falls has been announced by the Minnesota Highway department. The successful bid of $32,990 was made by McCree & Co. of St. Paul and The Widell Co. of Mankato. The project will replace the present obsolete Hamilton street bridge.

Red River Valley History

By Wm. T. Werking

A PRODUCTIVE REGION

As this was written another growing season was dawning with its renewed hopes and prospects. Because of the comment about crop yields one is likely to hear from now on until crops either are assured or known to be failures, it may be well to discuss briefly the statistics on which one might reasonably base an estimate of production if other factors and their effects could be properly gauged.

The writer has before him a chart of the region which shows that the average annual rainfall in an area embracing Clearwater county is 24 inches. This is nearly three inches greater than the average for the entire Red river valley and since the valley region is noted for its fertility and productivity it would appear that this vicinity is especially well favored. As a matter of fact, 24 inches of rainfall are not needed to insure good crops if the rain is properly distributed; at least that is what an authority told the writer.

But this section has another reason for its productivity, several in fact, besides rainfall. It lies in the bed of old glacial Lake Agassiz, as we know, and silt deposited in this old lakebed sometimes reaches to a depth of 80 feet. Here it is probably 30 or 40 feet in some places. This silt was created by deposits of ground-up clay and finely powdered rock known as "rock flour", which was carried in by the waters of glacial rivers. After the lake dried up, probably somewhere between 10,000 and 6,000 years ago, waters settling on the lakebed and remaining there because of poor drainage seeped through the deposits and leached out the calcium carbonates and other mineral salts.

Trees and plant life eventually furnished humus and the combination created a soil that is not excelled even in the famed Nile valley in Egypt. But in addition the heavier timber growths in the Thief River Falls area further enriched the soil, which, although it has its light spots and its drawbacks, is nevertheless a rich region.

While we have not statistics pertaining directly to this section we have some representative figures which show that in proper conditions wheat yields of from 25 to 30 bushels to the acre are possible. But the most interesting part of the statistical report is that which shows that large revenues may be obtained from growing such crops as potatoes, clover seed and a variety of small grains and also hay crops. Then data are given to prove that raising of livestock and dairying fit neatly into the farming program.

We have a chart which shows that in a larger area including Clearwater county the wheat acreage advanced from 13,707 acres in 1880, which yielded 337,409 bushels, to 211,680 acres in 1910 with a total output of 3,189,902 bushels. Similar figures cover other small grains but the chart is not late enough to take into account the remarkable results achieved by clover culture, both for seed and hay or the accomplishments of livestock raisers in this area.

The figures do not give us any information about conditions peculiar to this section, but they prove beyond a doubt that this is an ideal location for the farmer who wishes to operate on a small scale and earn a livelihood that will permit him to lay aside a fair amount for a rainy day with a minimum of hired labor.

The reports prove too it appears that in this region various factors combine to make farming more certain of reasonable results and more attractive than in many other sections which are widely advertised. After a careful study of the reports we have come to the conclusion that the Clearwater county district, although it has not been as effectively advertised as most sections in the boom times of recent eyars, is one of the finest areas one could wish to find for all around agricultural activities.

We predict that the time is coming when well improved farms in the county where diversification with its attendant rotation of crops and dairying and other adjuncts to agriculture have been developed will be widely sought by men who wish to farm with their hands instead of their minds and pocketbooks. After all, this class is the most desirable for actual farming and, so far as we know, the county now has a goodly share of them, but there is always room for more and with the government seeking room for the farmers who are being moved from lands in western North Dakota and from other states, we think the country around Thief River Falls shows great prospects. We hope to obtain more information about this section by personal investigation soon.

$1,000,000 U. S. RESETTLEMENT PROJECT OPENS

TO PURCHASE TRACTS WITHOUT BUILDINGS

Construction Program to be Deferred Until 1937, Taylor Says

The area tributary to Thief River Falls will be the scene of a rural resettlement project involving an ultimate expenditure of approximately $1,000,000 if present plans of the federal administration are carried out, it was announced over the week-end by Ralph Nowell, regional director in St. Paul, and J. W. Taylor, project manager in Thief River Falls.

The projected undertaking, one of two to be instituted in Minnesota, calls for the purchase by the resettlement administration of a maximum of 125 tracts of farm lands without buildings, ranging in area from 80 to 160 acres. The farms will be modernized and improved with sets of buildings before families are settled on them, and long time contracts will enable the farmers to repay the cost without undue difficulty. The second project will be located in the vicinity of Litchfield.

Mr. Taylor emphasized that carrying out of the project is contingent, among other factors, on being able to acquire the lands at a reasonable figure, and he suggested that land owners list their tracts at once in his office in the basement of the Auditorium. Three Federal Land bank appraisers and two negotiators, he said, will arrive May 1 to take over the work of completing the purchases.

The farms, when acquired, will be occupied by farmers from submarginal areas, renters who have been displaced and former farmers now living in small towns. No buildings will be erected on the farms until next year, Mr. Taylor said, owing to the fact that the lands, in the majority of cases, are already leased for the current year. It is planned, he said, to construct the buildings with labor supplied by the works progress administration.

Mr. Taylor stated that this community was selected as the location for the project because of the highly developed type of diversified farming that prevails in this section. The territory to be considered in the purchase of lands includes that tributary to surrounding villages in the region of which Thief River Falls is the trade center.

25 Cent Ad Sells 1,700 Pounds Timothy Seed

John Asp of Hazel is enthusiastic over the result-getting power of classified advertisements in the Times, following insertion of a 25-cent ad offering 1,700 pounds of timothy seed for sale. The ad had no sooner appeared than the Asp home was besieged by callers in person and over the telephone, and the entire quantity was disposed of in two days.

Civic Group Head Names Six to Discuss Rate Structure With Council

A renewed effort to obtain lower electric light and power rates in this city was instituted at a meeting of the Civic and Commerce association last Thursday when, following a discussion of the situation, President W. L. Carlisle appointed a committee to urge action by the city council. Named to serve on the group were Walter Jung, chairman; Palmer Tommerdahl, W. E. Dahlquist, Robert Nitske, F. A. Rinkel and Lincoln Arnold.

The discussion brought forth the view that the profits of the municipal plant in 1935, aggregating approximately $45,000, were ample evidence that present rates are unreasonably high and that they discourage the establishment of new industries in the community. It was also pointed out that general reductions have been put into effect in practically all other communities during the past six years.

The need of rebuilding the last section of the road leading into the Red lake narrows was presented by Andrew Anderson in behalf of the Red Lake Resort association, and he asked the Civic and Commerce group to defray half the cost of sending a delegation to St. Paul Monday to confer with N. W. Elsberg, state highway commissioner. It was voted to supply the necessary funds.

A. J. Borry told of a conference he had with Mr. Elsberg regarding the reconstruction of Highway 1 east from this city, and said the commissioner had informed him that the only way the improvement could be financed would be to ask the federal government for an additional allotment of relief funds. A resolution to that effect was adopted by the association to be forwarded to Minnesota members of Congress.

H. F. Patterson, big-scale sheep grower of Billings, Montana, briefly addressed the meeting, telling of his operations during the past winter near Crookston and Fargo, in which he fattened a total of 92,000 lambs and expended $200,000 for feed, much of which was purchased thru local organizations. He said the project was successful and that he plans to continue in the valley for the next several years.

REPUBLICANS OF STATE PLAN FOR CAMPAIGN

Harmonious State Convention Held Saturday in St. Paul

DUNN NAMED TO SERVE AS COMMITTEEMAN

Platform Urges Economy; to Seek Elimination of State Tax Levy

Abolishment of the state tax levy, strict economy in government and establishment of a state civil service are among the planks in the platform adopted by Minnesota Republicans Saturday at a harmonious state convention in St. Paul. The full text of the platform is published elsewhere in this issue.

Delegates to the convention in attendance from Pennington county included Theodore Quale, Paul Lodgren, Mrs. R. H. McDonald of Goodridge and Mrs. Earl Jenson of St. Hilaire; while others present were Mrs. Tobias Reep and Mrs. J. N. Nesse of this city and David Haugen of Plummer.

The convention honored the ninth congressional district by selecting State Representative Roy E. Dunn of Pelican Rapids to serve as Republican national committeeman from Minnesota. He succeeds the late C. H. Mackenzie of Gaylord. Named delegates at large from this state to the national convention June 2 were J. E. Meyers, former mayor of Minneapolis; Harold E. Stassen of South St. Paul, state chairman of the Young Republican league; Roy Watson of Rochester; and Margaret Culkin Banning of Duluth, widely known author.

In an atmosphere of enthusiasm, with speakers freely predicting victory for the state ticket this fall, the Republicans sharply assailed the Farmer-Labor state administration and the Democratic national administration, and proposed a program which if carried out would:

Reduce taxes, eliminate the state real estate tax levy, abolish tax-exempt securities, correlate federal and state income tax distribution.

Adopt a pay as you go policy, restrict state bond issues.

Give agriculture the domestic market by tariffs, by changes in reciprocal tariff agreements, by surplus control; aid co-operatives, develop the St. Lawrence waterway, encourage industrial use of farm products.

Recognize right of labor to organize, seek shorter working week, restrict loan sharks, develop unemployment reserves.

Put conservation and highway employees under civil service, and merit system for all state employees.

Turn relief administration over to local control. Take politics out of education.

Hold game and fish license fees down.

Unified law enforcement agencies into a real state police, safeguarded to prevent use in labor disputes.

Take profits out of war, provide universal draft of men and materials in time of war.

JOE MARUSKA NEW CHAIRMAN OF DEMOCRATS

Fifty Persons Attend County Convention Held Last Thursday

DELEGATES NAMED TO STATE MEETING

Resolutions Are Adopted Upholding National Administration

Nearly fifty Pennington county Democrats assembled in county convention last Thursday afternoon in the Civic and Commerce association rooms, the gathering being termed by Chairman R. O. Chommie the largest of its kind in the history of the county. Miss Manie Wise was elected secretary of the convention.

Joe (LoBo) Maruska was elected county chairman for the ensuing term, succeeding Mr. Chommie, who was named first vice chairman. Others elected were Curtis Eahelby, second vice chairman; and James Cosgrove, secretary-treasurer. The county committee later will be expanded by the addition of members from the various townships of the county.

Named delegates to the state convention Tuesday of this week were Mr. Cosgrove, Mrs. A. J. Rau, S. E. Hunt, Alfred M. Johnson, Mr. Eahelby, Andrew Anderson, Mr. Chommie, Gunder Twete, Ed Kusmack, Ed Singer, Joe Patten, O. Gunstad, Adolph Setterberg, John Morgan and James Sundquist.

Those appointed alternates included Pat Culkins, Mrs. J. O. Yotter, Mrs. A. Anderson, Severn Brandon, A. J. Rau, F. M. Shanahan, William Vaughan, O. G. Storholm, H. O. Melby, George Wilson, A. M. Holte and Mrs. B. Borreson.

A series of resolutions praising the achievements of the present national administration were adopted after being submitted by a committee including Mr. Chommie, chairman; S. E. Hunt, Mrs. G. A. Penney and Mrs. Rau.

The resolutions reaffirmed faith in the principles of the Democratic party as advocated by President Roosevelt; recalled the "terrible" conditions prevailing when the administration took office; asserted that the government is genuinely concerned in the welfare of agriculture, and upheld the work of the department of agriculture "despite constitutional restrictions"; contended that charges of "free spending" were mere propaganda, and that the disbursements were necessary; and endorsed the administration without qualification, as well as the men supporting the president.

Blanket endorsement of the New Deal and election of 26 national convention delegates pledged to support President Roosevelt for renomination were unanimously voted by the state meeting of Joseph Wolf Democrats Tuesday in St. Paul.

Enthusiastic ovations greeted Wolf, Minnesota Democratic national committeeman, as he lauded the President and pleaded for party harmony in the face of action taken by another wing of state Democrats who two months ago held their own convention, elected national delegates also pledged to Roosevelt and plan to pick a slate of state candidates.

"To all groups in the party," said Wolf, "who believe in liberal progressive principles, I say let us unite and work for re-election of our great leader, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, next fall."

Girls' 4-H Leader Outlines Baking Project for County

Bread right from the oven! Fresh, golden brown loaves and biscuits are a welcome sight to the worker coming in from the field, the shop, the office or the store. Nine thousand, one hundred and fifty three girls in Minnesota between the ages of 10 to 20 gave their families many such happy thrills last year because of the baking they did in their homes as a part of their 4-H club work.

Thirty-five 4-H members from Pennington County proved last year that baking in the home is not a lost art and that girls today can and do perform tasks in the home as easily and as well as girls of former days. But Miss 1936 has more fun in making her biscuits, her cakes and her muffins because she meets with other 4-H members in her community to learn how to select her ingredients and combine them to the best advantage. Then, too, she works for perfection of product to live up to her 4-H club's motto "To Make the Best Better".

Every girl in Pennington County is invited and urged to take part in the bread baking or any of the other 4-H projects for 1936, and to get in touch with the 4-H club leader, Miss Thelma Solie, or county agent, R. M. Douglass.

Depending upon her age or experience in baking the member may take first, second, or third year bread baking.

First year girls are asked to make, three bakings of white yeast bread, twelve bakings of quick bread.

Second year girls: nine bakings of yeast bread. Sixteen bakings of quick breads.

Third year girls: 75 pounds of yeast bread. Twelve pounds of quick bread. Twelve other baked products.

Each member is to keep a cost record and write a story of her work.

Besides the fun and satisfaction of working with other boys and girls in the community on a home task, each member may exhibit her products at county fairs and may also compete for state fair trips.

Auxiliary Notes

Your attention is called to the Survey of Veteran Women in this issue. We ask all to assist in this and ask that if you know of someone who should be included, please call or write to Mrs. Lloyd Alnes, Unit President, or Mrs. A. M. Campbell, so the proper blanks may be filled out.

A very enjoyable program featured our Unit meeting last Thursday. Two Tap Dance numbers were presented by one of Miss Wenner's groups of girls, Dorothy Blanchard, Lois Engen, Lorraine Amundson, and Joyce Bennes. Three of Mr. Orwoll's pupils, Donald Pederson, Leighton Fossum and Vernon Ostrom played an instrumental trio and favored us with an encore. A humorous reading by Lois Engen closed this delightful program.

Mrs. B. O. Norby reviewed the Girl Scout activities for the past four years and reported that 40 girls are now enrolled. The Auxiliary voted to again sponsor the Girl Scouts and Mrs. Norby, Mrs. O. Lynde, and Mrs. C. Evenson were named as an advisory committee.

A splendid radio program will be presented over WCCO next Saturday afternoon, 2 to 2:30, by our State Department. Read your Legionnaire for further details.

Mrs. R. G. Lane, Mrs. I. G. Lane and Mrs. Carl Melby acted as hostesses for the meeting, serving at a table made attractive with mock cherry blossoms and pussy willows.

FIVE IN FAMILY HAVE BIRTHDAYS SAME WEEK

New Prague.—Birthdays crowd together in a New Prague family, and though John Kubes family does not boast of quintuplets, quadruplets, triplets or even twins, there are five members of the family who celebrate their birthday anniversaries within one week. A daughter, Mary, now Mrs. Joseph Franck of New Prague, was born April 4th; a son, Martin Kubes of New Brighton, on April 3rd; another son James, of New Prague, March 31st; a daughter Juliana now Mrs. Charles Schoenberger of St. Paul, on March 30th; and a grandson, Jerome, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kubes of St. Paul, was born April 1. All five dates this year came between Monday and Saturday, which made it a rather exciting week, looking a good deal more like Christmas than April Fools Day.

BUYS BULL AT AUCTION RIDES HOME BAREBACK

Isle. — Vint Bradley, farmer south of Isle, created something of a sensation along Isle's main street last week when he passed through town astride a bull he had purchased at an auction sale. Bradley found it impossible to lead the animal, and inadvisable to drive him. It was nearly four miles home, and the only thing left to do, except for a truck, was to ride him. The situation was complicated somewhat by the fact that Bradley had a sack of groceries to carry, and the spirited young bull now and then took a notion to explore the side roads. Spectators at Isle got an especial "kick" out of watching the bull take charge of things for a moment and thoughtfully pitch Bradley off into a snow bank.

GETS OLD SCHOOL DESK AS BUILDING IS RAZED

International Falls.—The bell which called many International Falls residents to school in former years has been removed from its lofty perch in the belfry, and it will be given a new place of honor in the new E. W. Backus Junior high school. But its removal brought forth expressions of regret from more than one former pupil. One business man, sorry to see the old landmark slowly disintegrate, returned recently and asked for the old desk at which he sat years ago in the schoolhouse. It was given to him.

A CORRECTION

In outlining the new acreage reduction program in this column last week we misrepresented the plan in its relation to flax and sugar beets. According to the source of our information at that time, the government would pay the farmer for the acres taken out of the production of these crops. We have since been informed that instead of encouraging a reduction of these crops, the government will pay farmers a premium for growing them. This policy is especially advantageous to farmers of this territory where flax acreage is being steadily increased. We regret the error and are glad to make the correction.

AN INTERESTING EXPERIMENT

It will be interesting to follow the developments of the government's rural resettlement program in this community. As we understand it, the venture will be conducted largely as an experiment, and in a program of this kind it certainly will be well to proceed cautiously. To the local community such an undertaking probably will mean a combination of both good and bad consequences. It will be a fine thing to have some over a hundred of our farms improved with buildings. These buildings will be a permanent asset that will remain whether the program itself succeeds or not. On the other hand it is possible that local government will lose tax revenue from the farms owned by the federal government. This is a possible evil that can easily be corrected. The worst result is the possibility that many of those placed on such farms will become a local relief problem. Considering everything, however, the good effects should outweigh the bad. Fortunately the experiment in this territory will be under the personal direction of J. W. Taylor who is well qualified from every standpoint and who, we are sure, will use good judgment in handling the details. Under his supervision the program will have a fair chance to be reasonably successful.

THE REAL ISSUE IN MINNESOTA

During the coming campaign we will hear much about the proposed constitutional amendment that would exempt property from state taxes. Adoption of the amendment is being urged by Republicans as a means of lightening the tax burden on real estate. Farmer-Laborites have gone on record against the amendment because it will force the state to resort to other general forms of taxation, possibly a sales tax, to meet the expenses of state government.

As far as the amendment is concerned, we are not going to become unduly excited about it one way or the other. That the present tax burden on real estate is now too high no one can deny. Increased delinquency indicates that such taxes have reached the point of diminishing returns. Further increases in these taxes will mean less revenue for the simple reason that an increasing number of property owners will be unable to pay. So insofar as it would relieve property, most of which is in the form of farms and homes, the amendment is justified.

The fact that adopting the amendment might bring on other disagreeable forms of taxation does not upset us. As a matter of fact we rather favor a tax on incomes as being the most equitable of all taxes and whether that tax is levied on us as we receive the income or as we spend it, does not trouble us. But all who earn should pay.

So much for that. It would be unfortunate if, in the heat of debate on the merits of the amendment, the real issue of economy and efficiency in our state government should be forgotten. The real question for the taxpayers of Minnesota to concern themselves about, in our opinion, is whether or not the present wasteful and extravagant practices are going to be continued.

During the past five years the bonded indebtedness of the state of Minnesota has been increased thirty-six million dollars. In addition to this the general revenue fund of the state is now thirteen million dollars in the red. And in spite of the fact that we have gone nearly fifty million dollars in debt, our taxes on property for state purposes have increased from less than eleven million dollars in 1930 to more than sixteen million dollars for 1936. And, in order to keep the record straight, be it remembered that the state's share of relief costs during this period has been comparatively small, most of this cost having been borne by the federal and local governments, and the state's portion being offset to some extent by the new revenue derived from liquor taxes.

This situation should be the real issue of the coming campaign. The only satisfactory answer to the tax problem is reduced spending, and taxpayers should not permit the politicians to evade this one fundamental issue by arguments over new ways of heaping on additional burdens.

Charles Coy, able editor of the Park Region Echo, takes for granted that politics cannot be kept out of the judiciary. "No governor will appoint as a judge a lawyer whose political and economic theories are opposed to the governor's" he says. Perhaps Mr. Coy is right on the average run of governors. But there are exceptions. For instance, in this district, Ted Christianson appointed Julius Olson. Of course we are willing to admit that Christianson was an exceptional governor.

Excavation for the basements of two new dwellings was started this week and with several others scheduled to follow in the near future, the long looked forward to summer building activity will soon be moving along at high speed. The sound of hammers and saws is going to be a great deal more pleasant to listen to than the clanking of coal shovels.

BRAIN TRUST MYSTERY
(Long Prairie Leader)

While the government was spending close to a billion dollars last year to cut down farm product production, it permitted an enormous increase in imports from foreign countries of the products it was paying out the huge sums to have restricted in production at home.

Here are the imports for 1935 and figures showing the increases over the imports of 1933:

	Bushels 1933	Bushels 1935
Wheat	31,383	27,438,000
Corn	160,000	43,242,000
Oats	132,237	10,106,903
Barley	23,057	4,839,000
Rye	8,005,706	9,642,623
	Pounds	Pounds
Butter	1,021,000	22,674,042
Meat products	62,476,000	115,059,000

It is difficult to understand the wisdom of this policy but then perhaps the common field-run individual is not supposed to understand it.

Writing from Washington, Lawrence Sullivan states that figures show that the Matanuska Valley project in Alaska has cost the government $3,075,000 for less than a year's resettling in Alaska. In his own words he adds: "Out of 204 farm families transplanted to the glacial Utopia last summer, only 166 families are still on the scene. Thus the average cost per family to date has been $18,515, which is viewed as a rather tidy outlay for family relief." It is needless to state that almost any county in Minnesota could have provided wonderful homes to these settlers, at a cost far below the amount which has been spent by the federal government, in an attempt to establish permanent homes for them in faraway Alaska.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

The province of Alberta in Canada has had a plan for Social Credit, under which every person was to get a certain amount of money. The plan sounded well to the people of the province. Last week Alberta failed to meet the principal on its maturing bonds. It was the first Canadian province to default. We know nothing about Social Credit or Alberta. But we do know that those governments which pretend to do the most for their people usually end up insolvent and capable of doing nothing.—Grand Rapids Herald-Review.

News and Comment
By R. W. Hitchcock

The Minnesota supreme court has a fine new feather in its cap.

The most eminent authority in the world upon the rules of evidence, John H. Wigmore, dean emeritus of the law school of Northwestern University, has analysed and graded the supreme courts of the several states of the Union, and places the Minnesota supreme court in the first and highest group.

The appraisal is based on a study of the opinions of the courts on points of evidence law covering an eight year period from 1925 to 1932. All present members of the court were then sitting judges except Chief Justice Devaney and Justice Julius Olson. Judges cited by Dean Wigmore as "habitually writing masterly opinions" are Stone and Wilson (former chief justice) in Minnesota.

Dean Wigmore's noteworthy analysis, entitled "Grading Our State Supreme Courts: A Tentative Method", is published in the April number of the American Bar Association Journal.

Direct relief in Minnesota during 1935 cost $44,500,000. Of this amount the federal government contributed $34,500,000 and the state and its local subdivisions $10,000,000. The federal government paid 77.5 per cent of the direct relief cost, the state 8 per cent and the local subdivisions 14.5 per cent, the total Minnesota contribution being 22.5 per cent.

The total direct relief load in the nation for 1935 is set at $1,837,000,000, the federal government contributing $1,360,000,000 or almost 75 per cent.

States which contributed nothing are Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina, Delaware, South Dakota and the District of Columbia. Two states, Nebraska and South Caroline, contributed less than one half of one per cent.

Direct relief was administered in Minnesota in 1934 in the dark. The people of the state did not know how much federal money was coming in, who was handling it, or who was getting it. All they knew, or thought they knew, was that Governor Olson was Santa Claus. When the state senate met and wanted to know about it, the governor raised his eyebrows and the farmer-labor party, with one voice, severely shushed the senate. "It's lese majeste," they declared in horror, "the federal government won't tell you anything."

It's different today when relief in Minnesota, federal and state, is being administered by the executive council. The job is being done out in the open.

Early in February the SERA submitted to the executive council an elaborate and detailed setup for relief in every county in the state with exact percentages of the allotment of federal and state funds to each county. The executive officers of the SERA demanded that the executive council approve these allocations on the spot. The executive council demurred. It wanted to know how and why the arrangement was arrived at.

The executive council finally approved the allocation of funds for one month and began an investigation. Twice the executive council referred the setup back to the SERA for further study and revision. Being still dissatisfied after the third report the executive council named Administrator Zimmerman, State Auditor Stafford King and W. H. Lamson, secretary of the executive council, as a committee to study and report on the matter.

As a result of this study, which covered a detailed examination of the financial and relief conditions of each county in the state, and upon which the members of the committee did a very fine piece of work, the executive council approved on April 4th an allotment under which no county in the state will receive less than 10 per cent of its relief costs from the state.

Counties receiving the minimum allotment of 10 per cent are Houston, Fillmore, Mower, Faribault, Steele, Dodge, Wabasha, Goodhue, Carver.

Allotments of state funds to the three big counties are: Rural Hennepin $114,000 or 40.2 per cent; Minneapolis $1,948,885 or 40.2 per cent; Ramsey $1,592,589 or 55.6 per cent; St. Louis $500,612 or 53.9 per cent.

Counties receiving more than 50 per cent of their relief load from the state are: Crow Wing 78.7 per cent, Lake of the Woods 72.2, Beltrami 66.6, Koochiching 62.8, Hubbard 68.9, Cass 77.3, Cook 60.5, Lac qui Parle 61, Swift 75, Chippewa 59.3, Anoka 59.3, Aitkin 74.1, Pine 56.4, Mahnomen 68.1, Clearwater 75, Itasca 58.9, Lake 50.3, Kanabec 63.8, Mille Lacs 69.1, Douglas 60, Grant 50.2, Big Stone 50.2, Kandiyohi 51.1, Washington 60.9, Dakota 55.6, Renville 60.3, Yellow Medicine 60, Lincoln 56.9, Wadena, Ramsey 55.6, St. Louis 53.9—a total of 31 counties.

Tall Tales
As told to: FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Winner by a Nose

LOTS of fellows who work in a metropolis were born in the great open spaces, and invariably they retain their hankering for the hinterlands.

Lewis W. Hunt, city editor of the Chicago Daily News, is no exception. And sometimes when the boys are having a chinning match he is unable to conceal his liking for the bad lands or his native Montana.

So when a party from Kansas asserted that in his country it became so dry it was necessary to run water from the well through a wringer, and to throw gravel on the barn to delude the cows into thinking rain was falling, so they'd come out, Lewis asserted himself.

"It's cold we relish in Montana," declaimed Hunt. "One winter in my home town the mercury sank so low that boiling hot coffee froze solid en route from pot to cup.

"And that was the year," he concluded, "that the man in our town with the longest nose froze his proboscis. A friend recommended the only possible relief would be to rub snow on it. The long nosed man rubbed snow on the part of his nose he could reach and threw snowballs at the rest. In nine days he was entirely recovered."

LOSES TACKLE TO FISH IN 1 LAKE, FINDS IN ANOTHER

Fairmont.—Fishing tackle, lost over a year ago in an Iowa lake, made its appearance the other day when Ferdinand Mathwig of Dunnell pulled in a pickerel at George lake at Fairmont. The fish was the same which had torn off his tackle a year ago, and was positively identified by peculiarities of the tackle. Mathwig was fishing in Tuttle lake, at the Iowa line, a year ago this last winter. He had four strikes through the ice, and lost his tackle each time. On one line he used red beads for a sinker, taken from his wife's trinket box. The copper leader was a piece of wire he had fixed up, and from these two means of identification Mathwig is sure that the fish he pulled in the other day from George lake is the same as that which stole his tackle before. The pickerel may have traveled around by Keokuk and St. Paul. It may have traveled down the Des Moines river, up the Mississippi to Mankato, up to the Blue Earth and Center Creek to George lake. But the more probable theory is that some game fish were seined at Tuttle lake and dumped into the Fairmont lakes last spring. Mathwig expects to find the other three sets of tackle he lost on the same day a year ago in Australia!

Capitol News Review
By A. I. Harris

In 1917 a studious youth worked in the law office of Butler, Mitchell and Hoke as office boy. Nights he studied law. His employers called him Elmer. His full name was Elmer A. Benson.

A republican president was persuaded to name Pierce Butler, Sr., Associate Justice of the U. S. Supreme court. If he was appointed to perpetuate the status quo of our economic order he certainly did a good job. On every economic question determined by the Court, Minnesota's contribution to the highest tribunal in the land invariably cast his vote on the side of reaction.

But the office boy of the firm also had a career and fate put him in politics—on the side of those who preach changes in our order—on the side of those who contend that a man should have more than a mere crumb of bread to sustain life.

Last week the U. S. Senate, in discussing the Capper Stockyards act amendments, which would put the packers under more strict federal regulations, ban livestock feeding by packers and give the government access to packers' books, the question arose as to the constitutionality of the amendment.

Said Senator Elmer A. Benson: "I firmly believe that the opinions of the Supreme court are, in many instances, largely influenced by the economic views of the judges of that court, and I do not hesitate to say so here. I refer particularly to a recent decision by the justice from my state, Mr. Pierce Butler. I believe that his opinion in the North Dakota railroad valuation case was purely an economic decision, because prior to the time he took his seat on the bench of the Supreme court of the United States he was in the employ of every railroad in the United States in the very matter affecting his decision and that is railroad valuation."

No matter what Justice Butler might say about his former office boy, he cannot accuse him of lack of courage in speaking his mind, even in the sanctimonious chamber of the sedate Senate. And it is whispered about that Senator Benson is the first who has had the temerity to actually name a Supreme court justice to bring out his point. Minnesota's senator has a habit of speaking out frankly and the people need never be at a loss to know just how he stands.

The fight to save the Capper stockyards control bill was a futile one. This is the measure which sought to curb the uncompetitive buying of hogs by the big packers at so-called concentration points. These concentration points collect locally produced hogs direct from the farmers and thus, by shipping them to packing plants, keep them from reaching the central markets and the competitive bidding that exists there. The entire tendency of this direct buying is to depress the price of hogs in the central markets and is, naturally, favored by the big packing interests. These interests, together with the large western and southern cattle producers, succeeded in killing the Capper bill as far as the present session of the Congress is concerned. All the liberal Senators voted to retain the Capper measure.

March payments for old age assistance will approximate $200,000.00. Kenneth C. Haycraft, director of the division, estimates that at least 22,000 aged people in Minnesota will qualify for old age assistance during the quarter ending June 30 next, and that payments during this quarter will reach one and one-half million dollars.

Letters reaching the division indicate that a large number of aged people who are in need hesitate to apply for old age assistance because of a feeling that they are seeking charity. Director Haycraft wishes to have it distinctly understood that old age assistance is not charity, but that it is merely social recognition given the pioneers of Minnesota for their tireless years of work in building up this state.

Holding the honor for old age, among the applications for assistance that have so far reached the Old Age Assistance Division in St. Paul, is Mrs. Josephine Potacek of Anoka county. On March 19, 1936, she reached the age of 102 years. Born in Poland in 1834, she has lived in the United States for 47 years. The State of Minnesota and the County of Anoka will be themselves proud to grant to this century-old mother some financial recognition for her services to state and nation.

It is rather amusing, after the impressive display of unity in the recent Farmer-Labor convention, to see the daily press still persisting in carrying stories about alleged splits in the Farmer-Labor ranks—splits which exist only in the disturbed minds of the reactionaries.

The latest is a story to the effect that Magnus Johnson, who has filed for the governorship, refuses to head an opposition ticket sponsored by some of the sore heads of the old Townley committee of 100. This committee played a very prominent part in the last campaign in the columns of the daily press but the result at the polls showed that the voters of Minnesota paid no attention to it whatsoever. And now the press has nothing more substantial to base dissention stories on than by reviving this old discredited committee of 100, discredited despite the fact that some good people were mislead into serving on it.

It all goes to prove that a drowning man will grasp at a straw to save himself.

It appears that Mrs. Huey Long, recently appointed to the senate to succeed to the post left open by her late husband, takes a very good cake. Maybe congress could finance the bonus by holding a sale on the lawn.—Troy, N. Y., Record.

LEGION MEMBERS ATTEND RALLY AT EAST GRAND FORKS

Hear State Commander Give Address to Polk Co. Legion Council

Stressing the need of a youth education program and a need for laws to take profits out of war, Harold Rogers of St. Paul, Minnesota American Legion commander, spoke before a meeting of the Polk County Legion council in the East Grand Forks post clubroom Thursday night.

A group of ten members of Elmer J. Eklund post in this city journeyed to East Grand Forks to attend the meeting.

Rogers explained the universal service act which would provide for a draft law to include not only fighting men but men for civilian activities closely allied to war. The Legion has pushed the act for 17 years, he said, but until the recent Nye munitions investigation which uncovered huge war profits by individuals, the public hasn't been stirred to action.

Besides Rogers and Thompson, other talks were given by Ed. Zweiner, Dr. Harry Redin of East Grand Forks, Oscar Paulson of Thief River Falls, ninth district membership chairman, and Dr. Paulson of Olo, Marshall county commander. Approximately [illegible] attended the meeting.

Whoever said "children should be seen and not hurt", hailed out good advice to motorists.—Baudette Region.

NRS OFFICE SAYS MEN ARE REFUSING WORK ON FARMS

Points out Restrictions on Qualifying for Jobs on Highways

Due to the fact that a large number of persons are declining to accept farm jobs and are expecting to be placed as common laborers on road construction projects, officials of the district office of the National Reemployment service in this city stated today that all persons who are to be employed as common laborers will be those from the relief rolls and those considered borderline cases on the relief rolls. Only those nonrelief persons skilled in the operation of road building equipment and who have had experience in some particular phase of road construction will be placed.

Farm labor is greatly in demand and persons desiring this type of employment are requested to contact the nearest NRS office. With the approach of the sugar beet season the beet workers are in demand and the office has lists furnished by the American Crystal Sugar Company of farmers desiring beet workers.

All persons having trucks in good condition and well equipped for gravel hauling are asked to contact the local office as soon as possible as considerable graveling will be done this season.

CROOKSTON TO BE DAIRYMENS HOST OCTOBER 14 & 15

Action Taken Last Week at Meeting of Association Board

Directors of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association, meeting Wednesday afternoon of last week at the Northwest school in Crookston, voted to hold the association's annual convention in Crookston October 14 and 15.

Preliminary plans were made for the event, calling for a banquet and dance the evening of October 14, the main business session the morning of October 15, addresses by prominent dairy speakers that afternoon, awarding of prizes and an additional speaking program that evening.

The Dairymen's association voted to award $100 for prizes in 4-H dairy contests at the Red River Valley Winter shows next year and $200 for dairy demonstration prizes at the various county fairs held throughout the valley this summer.

Plaques will be awarded to winners of the dairy herd management project being sponsored by the Northwest school. One large plaque will be given to the school and the name of the winner each year will be engraved upon this. Small duplicate plaques will be awarded to the winners.

Efforts will be made, in conjunction with the forthcoming convention, to find the man who brought the first can of cream to the first creamery in the Red River Valley and give him a special honor at the convention.

All directors of the Dairymen's association, including Dr. A. A. Dowell and C. M. Fesek of Crookston, Stuart McLeod of Thief River Falls, O. O. Heggeness of Detroit Lakes and Walter Johnson of New York Mills, were present at the meeting. Henry Wyman, state dairy and food inspector from Fergus Falls, was also at the meeting.

ASKOV DOCTOR DRIVES 221 MILES ON STORK CALL

ASKOV—Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Scovill, living near Cloverton in the eastern part of Pine county, are the proud parents of a newborn son. The new arrival was brought into the world by Dr. A. L. Arends of Askov, who traveled 221 miles to reach Scovill farm house, which was only a few miles away as the crow flies. Due to road conditions east of Askov, it was necessary for Dr. Arends to drive by the way of Duluth and Superior, to come into the Cloverton community from across the Wisconsin line, making in all a total of 221 miles. He passed through five counties and two states to reach a place within the county from which he started.

Former Local Pastor Joins Four Brothers in Tribute to Father

Rev. George O. Parish of Valley City, N. Da., at one time pastor of the Methodist church in this city, participated Sunday in an unusual family reunion at Onamia, where his father, 83 years old, is serving as pastor of the Methodist church. Rev. George Parish and his four brothers, all Methodist ministers, joined their father in a rally service in his church. The other four brothers are serving churches in Winona, Pine City, St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Ole Fondahl, One-Time Pennington Resident, Dies in U. S. Capital

Ole Fondahl, former resident of Thief River Falls and Goodridge, died April 15 at the home of his son John in Washington, D. C., where he succumbed at the age of 79 following a lingering illness. Funeral services were conducted in Washington last Friday.

Born in Lofoten, Norway, Mr. Fondahl immigrated to this country in 1892, settling in Ishpeming, Michigan, from where he returned to Norway in 1895 to marry Miss Olava Simonson. Coming again to this country the couple settled in Goodridge, moving into Thief River Falls to live from 1905 to 1911, and then going back to Goodridge where they remained until establishing their residence with their son near Washington.

The surviving family includes his wife and one son, Lieutenant John E. Fondahl of the Metropolitan Police department at Washington, in addition to three brothers and two sisters of the late Mr. Fondahl living in Norway.

DEATH TAKES HOLIDAY AS TRAIN HITS TRUCK

Waverly—Death must have been on a holiday at Waverly last week, as two men escaped death when a mail train struck a truck at a crossing. The truck was loaded with ice and was headed south. It had about crossed the rails when the locomotive hit it, throwing the truck as high as the train. When the machine landed, it was headed in the opposite direction. Gordon Mumford, one of the truck passengers, was thrown thru the car door and landed with his head resting on the ties, six inches from the wheels of the train. Barney Gritz, the other truck passenger, was thrown in the opposite direction and landed near a telegraph pole, a distance of about 40 feet. The ice and back wheels of the truck were strewn along the track for three blocks and the handle of a pair of ice tongs was found a block away. Both men were seriously injured, but escaped death.

State Republican Platform Upholds 'American System'

Preamble

The Republican party of Minnesota, in convention assembled, at St. Paul, this 18th day of April, 1936, reaffirms its faith in the government, which is capable of meeting all situations which now exist or which may arise, and of solving them without sacrificing the liberties of the people. We renew our allegiance and devotion to the American constitution, to American institutions, and to American ideals.

We uphold the fundamental American division of government into three separate and coordinate branches; we oppose all attempt to make the judiciary inferior to the law-making or the executive branches of government, or to make it subject to political pressure.

We deplore the waste and extravagance in federal and state administrations and the gross increase in debt burden of the nation and of Minnesota.

We oppose the entry of the state into business normally private.

Taxation

The elimination of confiscatory taxes upon home and farm is imperative. We urge a fair and equitable distribution of the tax burden based upon the ability to pay, and we demand a substantial reduction of property taxes through (1) strict economy in state government, (2) elimination of political squandering of public funds, and (3) the encouragement of industrial revival with consequent re-employment.

We favor the elimination at the earliest possible moment of the state levy on real and personal property.

An equitable division of the proceeds of the income tax as between the federal government and the state, under an amendment to the federal constitution, would afford the states ample revenues for their needs, and check the alarming trend toward centralization of government. We commend the consideration of this matter to congress and to the several states.

We oppose the issuance of tax-exempt securities.

Economy

The Republican party has always practiced economy in public affairs. Thrift and economy are necessary to the successful ordering of the life of an individual or the functions of government. During the last five years in Minnesota, these practical virtues have been cast into the discard and a spendthrift policy has been recklessly pursued. The present administration has been barren of so much as a single forthright declaration or effective act for economy, but it has been prolific in its recommendations, and undertakings, for spending.

This tax-more, spend-more policy has been a material factor in raising state tax levies from 6.7 mills in 1930 to 13.57 mills in 1935. It has also been a major factor in the increase of the state debt by more than $41,000,000 during this five-years of maladministration.

We call for a pay-as-we-go policy, rigid restriction of the practice of issuing state bonds and state certificates of indebtedness and the amortization of the state deficit incurred under the present political regime.

We urge the elimination of useless boards and commissions, the reduction of overload pay rolls and a return to strict economy in the administration of the state government.

Agriculture

Agriculture is the key industry of Minnesota, and it should be given first consideration in any program for the return of prosperity.

As a first measure of relief for agriculture, we pledge ourselves to the immediate elimination of governmental waste and recommend the elimination at the earliest possible moment of the taxes levied for state purposes on real and personal property.

We pledge the active encouragement and development of farm cooperatives and co-operative farm marketing organizations.

We favor support of the recovery of industrial production and employment as a means of restoring domestic markets for farm products.

The present administration has bartered away the domestic farm markets to farmers of foreign countries. We demand tariff protection on all agricultural products and immediate negotiation for the revision of the reciprocal trade treaty with Canada and other countries, where competing agricultural products are admitted.

We denounce the gross importation of foodstuffs in competition with domestic farm products at the same time that farm production is arbitrarily curtailed. We also urge that every reasonable effort be made to rehabilitate export outlets for farm products.

The Republican party established in Minnesota a plan for the warehousing of non-perishable farm products. This program should be further developed to eliminate speculation, and to protect the producer against the untimely sale of his crops.

Until such time as increased production is needed, we oppose the use of federal funds for reclamation projects which will increase agricultural production.

We urge the development of new farm crops for industrial uses as a substantial means of increasing farm income.

We favor extension to the farm of all the comforts and conveniences of urban life.

We urge the ratification of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway treaty as a means of reducing transportation costs for farm products to the world market. We favor lower interest rates to producers of agriculture [illegible] that of [illegible]

We favor a [illegible] surplus control program.

Relief

Relief should be adequate for all in need; the state and federal governments should substantially contribute; administration should be returned to local management, where waste, graft and high salaries can be eliminated, where relief can be administered adequately for those actually in need, and where taxpayers can be protected.

Education

We deplore the introduction of politics in the public school administration of Minnesota, and denounce its attempts, in the name of academic freedom, to poison the minds of our children with political and economic theories foreign to American ideals and American institutions.

We oppose the establishment of a state printing plant for the printing of school text books.

Every child in Minnesota is entitled to an equal opportunity for a public school education. The cost of the public school system should be equalized for all school districts. To these ends the state aid to schools must be revised and enlarged.

We deplore extravagant federal expenditures for less worthy objects at the expense of education.

Conservation

We oppose politics in conservation and advocate civil service for all game wardens, forest rangers and all other permanent employees of the conservation department.

We oppose increases of fees for hunting and fishing licenses.

We demand that the state administration stop all juggling of game and fish funds.

We urge the following:

(1) The equitable distribution of game and fish funds and benefits throughout the state.

(2) The scientific classification of lands and waters for the development of wild life and refuge stations.

(3) Executive authority for opening game and fish seasons on a scientific basis.

(4) The restoration of lake levels and the protection of water sources.

(5) The systematic development of Minnesota's enormous deposits of low grade iron ore.

We urge the determination and administration of all conservation problems by a competent conservation authority free from all political influence or direction.

Government Service

We believe that a "public office is a public trust."

"We favor a merit system of nonpolitical tenure for the civil employes of the state under non-political boards, and we favor an administrative service in our government based on the merit system.

Women should be recognized in the public service on the same basis as men.

Old Age Pensions

We indorse the old-age pension law enacted by the special session of the legislature as a sound beginning of a state-wide old age pension system.

Labor

We support the right of labor to organize and to bargain collectively for betterments in wages, hours of labor and working conditions.

We continue to favor a short working week and high wages, and we oppose all sweat shop conditions and all oppressive employers' regulations.

The Republican party was instrumental in enacting the first child labor law in Minnesota, and we propose its further extension wherever necessary.

We condemn the cruel and oppressive practices of "loan sharks." We urge legislation to limit the interest rate they are permitted to charge, and we ask that they be placed under the supervision of the state banking department.

We favor liberalization of the garnishment law, properly safeguarded, to permit a moderate increase in the exemption for the defendant and his dependents.

We favor the principle of unemployment reserves.

Highways

The people of Minnesota have nearly a quarter of a billion dollars invested in a state trunk highway system.

That system was conceived and begun under Republican rule; under Republican rule it was administered honestly, efficiently and to the general satisfaction of the people of the state.

During the last five years that highway system has become honeycombed with politics and has been wastefully and even fraudulently administered.

If given the opportunity, the Republican party will once more administer every dollar of highway funds for highway purposes and no dollar of those funds for political or party advantage.

We favor the extension of civil service to the highway department as an important step toward greater efficiency.

We urge that plans and specifications for the construction of trunk highways in Minnesota conform strictly to federal requirements in order that Minnesota may receive the benefit of federal aids and grants.

No restrictions should be placed upon the free-bidding of competent Minnesota contractors for state highway construction.

Judiciary

We condemn the partisan indorsement of candidates for the supreme, district and municipal courts, and in the interest of the integrity of the courts, urge all voters to support candidates for judicial office with respect only to their proven judicial ability and without regard to previous political affiliation.

Law and Order

The first duty of the state is the protection of the lives, the rights and the properties of its citizens. Confidence of the people in the law enforcing machinery of the state has been lost. This confidence must be restored.

We demand that the citizens of the state of Minnesota be protected in their lawful pursuits; in the use of the public highways and streets and in the peaceable possession of their property.

We recommend the establishment of a state-wide police system, which shall utilize, co-ordinate and expand the existing police agencies, the state highway patrol and the state bureau of criminal apprehension; provided, however, that the power of any state police shall be limited, by statute, so as not to extend to labor disputes.

We recommend the revision of the criminal code, drafted in 1885, to meet present day economic and social conditions.

Small Merchants

We favor prohibition of concessions or rebates that are not open to all buyers on the same basis.

Insurance

We are opposed to endangering the stability of insurance by placing the business thereof under political manipulation and control through state ownership and operation, and we believe that the present private and mutual agencies, properly regulated, can most efficiently meet the insurance needs of the people.

Youth

We recognize that the young men and young women of Minnesota will bear the brunt of the present extravagance, both state and national, and will suffer the most serious consequences of the attempts to destroy the American system of government and economics.

We oppose the undermining of the initiative and individual resourcefulness of our people, and wanton saddling upon youth of an unfair burden for the support of the political machines of today.

The Republican party pledges its co-operation with youth in the fight to preserve our American system and to correct the abuses that exist.

War Veterans

The Republican party of Minnesota advocates adequate compensation for war veterans for war disabilities and deaths. It believes in hospitalization in federal hospitals for disabilities not service-incurred only where the veteran is unable to pay for private care. This same privilege is granted all citizens in similar circumstances. Responsibility for civilian medical care is in the community; the responsibility for the care of the veteran who fought for the whole people is vested in the federal government.

The Republican party adheres to the policy which has been in effect in America for many years which seeks to restore to productivity as far as possible the maimed and sickened bodies of the few who have done the fighting for the great majority. Our party does not seek to place soldiers in a more elevated position than the honorable one they occupy in the hearts of the American people. We wish only to restore the levels disturbed by war and its collaterals. We believe in adequate protection for widows and orphans of deceased veterans only when those dependents are in need of such protection.

Peace

We demand the abolition of profits from war and the universal draft of men and materials. We are implacably opposed to participation in European entanglements which may lead to war. We dedicate ourselves to peace as the only possible condition of prosperity, social stability and human happiness.

Party Designation

We favor party designation in the election of members of the legislature.

Liquor Laws

We urge a better and more honest administration of the liquor laws of the state, with strictly business methods and favors to none.

Conclusion

The Republican party is the party of initiative, of action, of accomplishment. It arises to the problems of today enthusiasms. Reunited and re-inspired, it proposes to restore integrity to the government of the state and nation, to recognize and depend upon merit in the public service rather than partisanship, to give the people of Minnesota once more vigorous initiative, sound judgment, constructive action and even handed justice in the solution of all the problems of society to the end that the utmost possible of prosperity and happiness may be the portion of all the people of the state.

TRACK SEASON BEGAN MONDAY

Athletes Begin Practice for Season's Tournaments

Track prospects at Lincoln High school looked fair when the athletes started practice in the brisk spring air on Monday.

Although only three lettermen are returning, these being Captain Malcolm Magnuson, James Nesse, and Milton Nesse, there are also several men who had considerable experience last year. Among these are Alfred Nelson, who won some points in the dashes and hurdles last year, and Victor Jung, who will probably handle the weight events this year. Malcolm Magnuson won first place in the district half-mile run last year while both Nesse boys placed in the dashes and broad jump. Milton Nesse also did some work with the weights.

Besides these performers there are several others upon whom hope is placed to win points. The events which are expected to cause difficulty for point winners are the high jump and the pole vault.

Seniors to Present "It Never Rains"

The seniors are working diligently on their class play entitled "It Never Rains", which is to be presented on May 15th. The play is a story of two married couples and the love story of their son and daughter. The state of California forms the setting for the story.

It is a snappy little comedy and will provide laughs for people of all ages, young or old.

Thus far the cast includes Flora Schroeder, James Nesse, Lois Nelson, Annette Simonson, Audrey Anderson, Jack Booren, Victor Jung, Lois Engen, Helen Rice, Helen Granum, and Dorothy Blanchard.

The cast has been unable to practice during this week due to illness of Miss Olson, who is coaching the play. However, the members of the cast have been studying their lines in order to be letter-perfect upon the return of Miss Olson. The members of the cast and all the students wish Miss Olson a speedy recovery.

Just to remind you seniors—the school year is soon over. Mr. Elofson has stated that the final order for the senior class rings may be sent any time in the near future.

TWELVE STUDENTS MAKE SENIOR HONOR ROLL

Art Nelson and Vic Jung Are Named as Heads of Graduating Class

Mr. Claffy made known the senior honor roll at an assembly on April 16. In addition to the valedictorian and salutatorian, ten honor students were named. The valedictorian is Arthur Nelson, who had forty-five honor points to his credit. He was closely followed by Victor Jung, the salutatorian, who had a score of forty-two and one-half points. Edna Lee was named the highest rating girl of the graduating class.

After that, Mr. Claffy announced the remaining students of the honor roll. They are Jack Booren, Edna Lee, Stanley Mortenson, Edna Swanson, Oscar Bickley, Malcolm Magnuson, Alice Ann Severson, Thelma Kolden, Margaret Larson and Ethel Parnow.

Mr. Claffy called upon Oscar Bickley, who gave one of his impromptu speeches. Arthur Nelson and Victor Jung then favored the assembly with talks on what they had learned during their school careers.

Arthur Nelson received the Nesot award when he was a freshman and was elected a member of the National Athletic Society last year. He is now the Vice-President of the senior class.

Victor Jung has been a member of the basketball and football teams. He is the President of the graduating class. During his senior year he was Sport Editor of the Prowler and is Associate Editor of the Progress.

Jack Booren has been one of the most active boys in high school and has taken part in almost every extra-curricular activity.

Oscar Bickley has taken part in debate and oratory besides being a member of the Senior Class Play. He was also active on the Progress staff.

The president of the freshman class was Edna Lee, who also took part in sports. She is an activity writer of the Prowler.

Stanley Mortenson was a member of the band and is the Assistant Business Manager of the Prowler.

Ethel Parnow and Margaret Larson have gone out for sports in general.

Malcolm Magnuson is the Managing Editor of the Progress. He is the captain of the track team. In his senior year, he was elected Editor of the school annual.

Alice Ann Severson is the City Editor of the Progress, has taken part in sports, a member of the pep committee, and is Associate Editor of the Prowler.

Edna Swanson is the typist for the Progress and the Prowler and has taken part in sports.

Size of Dog's Brain Immaterial

The size of a dog's brain, like that of a human being, bears no relationship to its intelligence. A small terrier with a brain weighing only 30 grams may even be more intelligent than a big St. Bernard with a 150-gram weight brain. But it is feared that, in the case of many toy breeds, centuries of breeding for beauty alone has so elongated their skulls that their brain tissues have almost disappeared.

GEOFFREY O'HARA WILL PRESENT PROGRAM HERE

Musical Composer, Speaker to Give Last of Seven of N. W. Assemblies

On Friday afternoon, May first, the students will be entertained in the auditorium by Geoffrey O'Hara, composer, speaker and raconteur. The program will begin at one o'clock.

He is a well-known after-dinner speaker who has traveled from coast to coast speaking at clubs, schools, dinners and luncheons. The secret of Mr. O'Hara's success lies in the fact that he talks and sings so that every man, woman, and child in the audience knows exactly what his intentions are, regardless of how much they know music.

He is a Canadian by birth but is a naturalized American citizen, and is classed as one of our leading American composers of songs. Some of his songs are "There Is No Death", "K-K-K-Katy", "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride", "Forward to Christ", and "I Love a Little Cottage". He has also composed several operettas, among them being "Peggy and Pirate", "The Count and the Co-ed", and "Rogues and Vagabonds".

LINCOLN HIGH TIMES

Maybe "absence makes the heart grow fonder" but Don C. probably thinks "Let's make hay while the moon shines" much better. At least with Selma J. gone during vacation he devoted himself to Martha S.

And speaking of the hair-pulling battle of the century between Alyce P. and Vivian W. over Vernon W., "All's Quiet on the Western Front". Alyce seems to have won.

Speaking of battles, Bud B. may have fallen for Lorraine B. (in a mud puddle at that) but Carl L. Won.

And is Ray P. feeling good 'cause Pearl T. of Warren wanted to know his life's history or something.

Theme song of the East side the past week—"Lights Out". Now, we wonder why?

And do the kids who were over at Yvonne A's ever know garlic pickles. Just a hobby, Yvonne?

Speaking of theme songs, is Erling M's "Alone", or is it?

Do Lorraine A. and Joyce O. love to go hunting with Don L. and Lynn B?

Versatility girl—Brunell E. Not content with home talent she had to use Crookston, Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls Sunday. But, they were good-looking!

New L. H. S. couples—
Erling T. and Hettie G.
Roger W. and Evelyn T.

Plummer School Notes

School opened again Tuesday morning after the short Easter vacation. The building had been thoroughly cleaned and all floors varnished by Mr. Greenwald during the holidays. —The Junior Class has had its mystery play in rehearsal for some time. It is coming along very nicely and, since it is an entirely different play from what has been produced here recently, you will enjoy it.

The senior class play, "Campus Quarantine", was exceptionally well received by a large audience last Friday night. Interest in the play was sustained all through the performance and the audience enjoyed the humor and the awkward situation in which the quarantine of the sorority house placed the boys working their way through college. The play was well coached and all characters made every effort to live the part and to extract from it all the entertainment value it possessed. They succeeded very well.

Roy Hayden of the junior class accompanied by Miss Swenseid played two violin solos between the first and second act, while Carol Hovland of the sophomore class sang two character songs between the second and third act. Both Roy and Carol responded to loud applause by encores. The senior class is to be congratulated on the success of its play.

"See the Norge before you buy!"
10-YEAR WARRANTY

Shop-examine-compare

Picture the average Norge owner. Before she buys her refrigerator, she looks at three different makes — chooses Norge. The reasons for her choice are (1) convenience, (2) economy, (3) mechanical superiority and (4) responsibility of the manufacturer.

The survey that brought these facts to light also disclosed another very significant fact. After this average owner has had her Norge for a period of time, she finds that it is even better than she had expected — better in the essential qualities of convenience, economy, cleanliness, dependable performance.

And remember, the Rollator Refrigerator we are offering you today is improved in every part — improved in styling, in flexible interior arrangement, in convenience features, in efficiency, in economy of operation. It is, by a wide margin, the greatest Norge of all time.

Norge costs no more to own —less to use. Terms are the easiest we've ever been able to offer. Now is the time to begin your enjoyment of that luxury that saves so much more than it costs. Come in.

A FEW OF MANY NORGE FEATURES
Sliding Utility Basket • Combination Bottle and Dairy Rack • Adjustable Shelf • Odor-Proof Door on Ice Compartment • Automatic Flood Light • Closely Spaced Shelf Bars • Improved Latchlatch • All Screw Heads Concealed • Improved Rollator Mechanism.

THE ROLLATOR COMPRESSOR— Smooth, even, rolling power instead of hurried back-and-forth action. Result—more cold for the current used and a mechanism that is almost everlasting.

FEDERAL PAYROLL TAX WILL BE DUE JANUARY 31, 1937

Terms of Federal Social Security Act Will be Enforced

Several thousand Minnesota employers must pay a federal tax of 1 per cent on their 1936 payrolls under the Social Security act on or before January 31, 1937, James R. Landy, collector of internal revenue, announced last week.

Mr. Landy said that because a proposed state unemployment compensation bill was defeated at the recent special session of the legislature, the public apparently has taken it for granted that the federal payroll tax will not be collected.

"The state action had no effect on the federal law and we are making preparations to collect the tax when it becomes due next January," Mr. Landy said. As soon as federal income tax returns all are filed, he said, he will put a crew of men to work preparing a list of Minnesota employers subject to the payroll tax, and returns will be mailed to them this fall.

The tax, which applies to the total payrolls of all employers of eight or more persons with certain types of employment exempt, is expected to total between three and four million dollars in Minnesota.

One of the major arguments against passage of the Minnesota act by the Legislature was that the payroll tax imposed under Title 9 of the Social Security act would be held unconstitutional by the courts. The title provides that employers would receive a credit for amounts paid into a state unemployment compensation fund up to 90 per cent of the federal tax.

However, up to date, no court test of the constitutionality of the payroll tax has been filed, and many attorneys and tax experts are of the opinion that no suit can be entertained by the courts until after the tax becomes due and payable, which is January 31, 1937.

If that is the case, Minnesota employers, with all others in the nation, will have to pay the tax on their 1936 payrolls regardless of whether the levy eventually is held constitutional.

Its constitutionality can be tested in two ways. The procedure usually followed is to pay the tax under protest, appeal to the treasury department for a refund and appeal to the courts from its decision.

SAVE UP PENNIES FOR WEDDING PERMIT

Detroit Lakes.—Herman C. Walde of Becker county, and Henrietta Johanna Abel of Elna township, Ottertail county applied for a marriage license in Fergus Falls. The groom-to-be produced a small paper box and emptied the contents on the counter. 364 Foot Redwood Held Tallest Tree in World

After a survey of California's many redwood groves, officials of that state division of parks have given the title of "the tallest tree in the world" to a redwood monarch in Dyerville Flat grove, 45 miles south of Eureka.

The giant California redwood (Sequoia sempervirens) towers 364 feet in the air. It is 47 feet in circumference at the base and 11 feet in diameter and contains approximately 125,000 board of feet of lumber, it is estimated.

Another tree, even larger from the standpoint of potential lumber, is in the Bull Creek Flat grove. This tree is 72 feet in circumference at the ground, is 315 feet high and would make approximately 151,000 feet board measure of lumber.

Inner Clique Selected E. Benson as Candidate, Magnus Johnson States

From his farm home at Kimball, Magnus Johnson late last week opened campaign firing with one barrel trained on Senator Elmer A. Benson, his primary opponent for the Farmer-Labor nomination as governor, and the other barrel on "Machine politicians."

The doughty former United States senator scornfully denounced Benson as an "unknown", the association state convention as representing not more than "10 per cent of the party's voters", and the "bosses" who shoved through a resolution branding him an "enemy of his party."

Turning on Benson he stated:

"It is no secret that the man indorsed for governor at the recent convention of the Farmer-Labor association was picked as the successor of Governor Olson, immediately after the election of 1934 by a group of state employes and other shrewd party leaders whose purpose is to control the Farmer-Labor party and the government of Minnesota.

"But for those cunning men the estimable gentleman indorsed for governor might not have been seriously considered as the association's standard bearer."

SNOW COVERS MAIL BOX; GETS CHRISTMAS CARDS IN APRIL

Pipestone.—Mail service during the blizzards of the past winter was plenty bad, but it remained for Frank Hargrove, living east of the Ashton Memorial hospital in Pipestone, to win the award of the hand-painted broom handle. Each succeeding snow added its quota of height of the drifts in front of the Hargrove residence and a few days before Christmas their rural mail delivery box disappeared from the picture. Recently Old Sol got back on the job, and lo and behold the mailbox again came into view. Upon opening it, a large package of Christmas mail was found, consisting of greeting cards, letters and magazines. The three months old mail was enjoyed none the less, by the members of the Hargrove family.

Co-operation is a wonderful thing. Freckles would be a coat of tan if they all got together.

By Wm. V. Wachling

Early Day Movies

A significant fact in the history of Thief River Falls is found in this statement from the Minnesota Historical society files: "1898—First motion picture show in Hamre's hall March 8 proved revelation to audience." That is all we learn from these files and the writer has had no opportunity to check other sources of historical information, but it may be that there are persons still living in the city who attended that motion picture show. If there are any, we should like very much to hear from them in care of the Times.

If the writer is not mistaken, he did not see motion pictures until six years after 1898. We went to Grand Forks in 1904 and recall as a boy going to a little theater where a man was shown walking along a street with a package of apples. The package burst and the apples fell to the street and rolled about with a number of small boys scrambling after them. The movements of the man and boys were ridiculously jerky, we remember.

Being young, the writer took things then as a matter of course and was scarcely conscious of the development of motion pictures. A few years later in Minneapolis we found the dark, cool nickle theaters ideal places for a nap. This same series of changes occurred in Thief River Falls, of course. Most school children do not remember the days of pioneering in the movies and it will not be long until there will be few high school students who remember when there were no talking pictures.

But we propose here to discuss a few oldtime motion picture stars that theater-goers here will recall. Of course, there were Charlie Chaplin and Mary Pickford. Then there were Francis X. Bushman, the handsome hero, Pauline Frederick, Kathleen Williams, Gloria Swanson, active until a year or so ago, Mable Normand, Wallie Reed, John Bunny, Anita Stewart and others. And, oh yes! who remembers Theda Bara, the pioneer movie vamp?

All these appeared in pictures in Thief River Falls, but none, so far as we know, is seen now. Today this city has a splendid motion picture house where the very best pictures are shown, sometimes even before they appear in the large cities. Why this is so we don't know but we have found it to be true in many places.

But the city's theatrical history dates far beyond the motion picture days. The pioneers appear to have been partial to "plays", although the more strait-laced in those days looked askance on the shows brought to town by the traveling companies. The knee-length skirts of chorus girls were considered scandalous, but only a few years ago skirts still shorter were worn on the streets of Thief River Falls by all girls and young women and even by stout matrons and grandmothers.

But the home talent plays were usually well patronized. We have not obtained any detailed information about early home talent plays in Thief River Falls, but it is probable that such offerings are "Way Down East", "Charlie's Aunt" and similar comedies were presented. We should like very much to hear from some reader who knows about early home talent or other plays presented in Thief River Falls.

We note that Warroad boasts a native daughter who has risen to stardom in the movies. Has this city a daughter similarly talented, or a son? If not, the time very likely will come when a daughter or son of the city or community will reflect credit on the neighborhood in this way.

Some very good road shows made towns the size of Thief River Falls in the early part of the present century, before motion pictures began to make a serious bid for popularity. It is probable that there are older residents who saw right here a number of nationally known actors and actresses.

Then there were medicine shows, minstrel shows and circuses. Perhaps the great comedian, W. C. Fields, visited Thief River Falls with his minstrel show along about 30 years ago or so. But it is certain that there are few staid business men here now who did not go into raptures at thoughts of the circus back in their boyhood days. How many of them were unable to sleep the night before the circus came to town and how many got up about 4 o'clock in the morning to watch the unloading of the circus train? How many got free tickets for doing odd jobs on the circus lot. We have heard about boys carrying water to the elephants but we never saw it done and believe it must have been what used to be called a "gag". The elephants always seemed able to walk to the source of the water supply.

But all these events provided entertainment in the old days and the young people of today have a different kind of entertainment. Still, we believe the boys still will get up in the chill of early morning to "watch the circus unload."

IT took more than just good performance to win over 2,300,000 Ford V-8 fans in less than four years. It's an entirely different kind of performance that did it! It's the V-8 engine, first and foremost. The smoother flow of its 85 horsepower. Its pick-up in traffic. Its easy pull in the open and up the hills. For you can't expect any less modern engine to feel like a V-8. And you don't find another V-8 below $1645.

Then there's riding comfort. Ford springbase is 123"—almost a foot longer than wheelbase. You'll quickly feel the edge this gives a Ford on cars near its size and weight. Next, there's a type of chassis in the Ford not found anywhere else in the world today. That's why a Ford "keeps its feet" so remarkably on turns and over rough roads.

AUDITOR TELLS OF HOMESTEAD EXEMPTION ACT

Makes Statement Previous to Starting of Work by Assessors

ASSESSING STARTS IN COUNTY FRIDAY

Advises Residents to Make Clear True Status of Their Property

Preliminary to the work of beginning the biennial assessment of real estate in Pennington county, as well as personal property, which gets under way Friday, May 1, County Auditor A. M. Senstad today issued the following statement clarifying the law governing the assessment of homesteads, and advising property owners to explain the true status of their property to the assessors. The statement reads:

Property owners of the city and county are urged to make it a point this year to see the assessor when he calls, and have the assessor fully understand the status of the property being assessed so that he can correctly classify it under Chapter 359, Laws of 1933, this being the so called "homestead law."

Real estate is assessed in the even numbered year only and the assessment that is placed and the classification that is made this year holds over in the odd numbered year. The Minnesota tax commission has ruled that there can be no reclassification of real estate under the homestead law in the odd numbered year, except under certain specified conditions, therefore it is of the utmost importance to the taxpayer that his property be correctly classified this year by the assessor. It has also been ruled that a property can be classified as homestead on which there is a contract for deed, whether such contract is recorded or not.

If an error is made in the classification such error may be corrected thru the board of county commissioners and the Minnesota tax commission, but such a process involves considerable extra work for every one that may be avoided if a little care is used and the necessary information is given the assessor so that a correct classification is made. It is very irritating to the taxpayer to come in and find that his taxes are considerably higher than he figured due to the fact that the property is improperly classified.

The 1934 assessment for the city of Thief River Falls had two errors in classification which have been corrected. One was due to the inability of the assessors to see the owner and get the status of the property and the other was due to the fact that the lady of the house stated that a certain stipulated amount was being paid as rent, whereas it later developed that this amount was a regular payment on a contract for deed. Be sure that all concerned are fully posted so that correct information can be given the assessors. The homestead law provides that up to $4,000 will have a lower assessed value where the owner lives on the property. On platted property this is 25 per cent and 40 per cent and on unplatted property it is 20 per cent and 33 1-3 per cent.

To show just how much correct classification means let us assume

LOCAL GOLFERS TO HAVE FINE COURSE FOR USE THIS YEAR

Further Improvements Being Made With Supplementary WPA Grant

Thief River Falls will have one of the finest nine-hole golf courses in Northern Minnesota on completion of improvements now under way, it was announced today by Dr. A. E. Jacobson, president of the park board, which now has the golf course under its jurisdiction.

The current program of betterments is being financed entirely by a supplemental WPA grant released this month. A crew of twelve men are now at work building traps and tees and conditioning the fairways for reseeding. Water pipes also will be installed on the fairways in front of each green, and two new fairways are being added to the layout.

For the position of caretaker and instructor the board has engaged Earl Horton of Erskine, for the past three years with the Win-E-Mac golf course near that village. With Mrs. Horton he will live in an addition to the club house, where refreshments will be available for those using the course. Melvin Jorde will again serve as assistant caretaker.

Dr. Jacobson said that season tickets will be available to players at $12, half the price that prevailed last year, while a greens fee of forty cents will be charged for playing 18 holes.

34 ASSIGNED TO ROAD GRAVELING WORK IN COUNTY

Project on Pembina Ridge Expected to Continue for a Week

Thirty-four county men last Thursday were put to work on a county-sponsored road graveling job on the Pembina ridge recently awarded by the state highway department to Oscar Schenkey, Middle River contractor. It was expected that the project would continue for a week or longer.

The men, who were assigned by the local office of the National Reemployment service, included 21 common laborers, eight truck drivers and one blade and one tractor operator.

Other projects in this district to which men were assigned by the Thief River Falls office, include a PWA school addition at Hallock, a grading job in Kittson county, and another in Marshall county being carried out by H. P. Lund & Sons.

Elmer Stanghelle, in charge of the local office, reports that all requests for the services of farm laborers have been filled to date, but that there is a shortage of housekeepers on farms in this section, many applications being unfilled.

Many Tracts Offered for Federal Project

Resettlement Office Here Gets Listing of Nearly 500 Tracts

Following announcement last week of plans for a rural resettlement project in the region tributary to Thief River Falls for the purpose of providing new farm homes for a maximum of 125 families, nearly 500 tracts had been listed for sale with the local office up to the first of the week, J. W. Taylor, project manager, announced.

Three men, transferred from the staff of the Federal Land bank, have already begun the work of making appraisals, and six-months options will be taken on the tracts which it is proposed to purchase, Mr. Taylor said, adding that it is expected the options will be taken up within a period of sixty to ninety days. The appraisers in the field include J. H. Blackburn, W. C. Murphy and E. A. Voigt, while H. Tellier, reviewing appraiser, will divide his time between the local project and a similar one at Litchfield.

If sufficient desirable tracts are not available in Pennington and Eastern Marshall county, the area covered by the project may be enlarged, Mr. Taylor indicated. Factors involved in determining the desirability of a tract, he said, include character of the soil and drainage, good roads, school facilities and location in a well developed community.

Girls 4-H Club Leader Gives Details of Thrift Project

"To be thrifty is the aim of every 4-H boy and girl". The girls have an opportunity to exercise their thriftiness at home by enrolling in the thrift project, says Miss Thelma Sohe, girls 4-H club leader.

The minimum requirements are:

First Year—Laundry bag, gift article, butcher's style apron, pair of kitchen curtains and luncheon cloth.

Second Year—Childs bloomer, childs rompers or dress, slip, tailored wash dress (white or dyed), towel with french hemming and luncheon set.

Third year: May make any articles.

All garments must be made of flour sacks, feed sacks, or gunny sacks, or some waste material.

The thrift, as in clothing projects, the whole exhibit must harmonize; carry out one theme or idea through the whole group of garments. One of the most striking thrift exhibit seen by Miss Sohe was a swagger suit of gunny sacking with a purse and hat to match.

A new idea in thrift is to use any old waste materials old rags made into pillow tops or rugs; a table covering of burlap with drawn, dyed strands of wool from an old sweater, and mittens sewed from old sweaters; patch jackets, blouses or bathrobes made from scrap pieces of cotton, wool or silk sewed onto flour sacks and feather stitched make good exhibits.

Very attractive articles can be made from flour sacks which have been bleached and dyed. To wash flour sacks, (1) They must be soaked thoroughly in cold water. (2) Loosen all ink by rubbing well with laundry soap. It is important that all ink has been loosened. This will save work and insure a perfectly clean sack. (3) Let the wet, soapy sack stand for two hours or longer. (4) Rinse in warm water. (5) Boil until white.

If the ink is not removed by this method, soak the sacks in kerosene over night. Then wash in luke warm soapsuds.

More members are invited to participate in the Thrift work. Those interested in making articles which cost little or no money should get in touch with Miss Thelma Sohe, County 4-H Club Leader, at the county agent's office.

1100 in County Enter U. S. Farm Program

800 Work Sheets Completed at Present Time, Says R. M. Douglass

Active work on the new Soil Conservation Program has been in progress somewhat over a week, and there are approximately 800 work sheets completed at this time, according to County Agent R. M. Douglass. The remaining ones, about 300 in number, will have been executed by the end of this week. It will take the county allotment committee some time to check all recommendation for soil depleting base to the state committee.

Mr. Douglass said, "Most farmers are anxious to know what their soil depleting bases are so that they can make plans and seed accordingly. Perhaps the best that can be done at this time is for a farmer to total his acreage of soil depleting crops from harvested 1935 acres and if that acreage is normal for a period of years, then reduce that acreage by at least 15%. To be sure of the 15% reduction perhaps a farmer should shift more than what he thinks is the required amount. It must be remembered that neither a crop of grain or hay can be harvested from the shifted acres.

"A good plan to follow if a farmer did not know exactly how much to shift would be to seed sweet clover with some of his oats or barley. If he finds later that he has not shifted enough acres to qualify him for his maximum payment, then he could clip the oats or barley before heading on acreage sufficient to make up the balance of his required 15% shift.

"There seems to be quite a little confusion about the flax payment. Some regulations have been changed since the first educational meetings were held. Perhaps a brief statement will clear up some of the base about the flax base. The payment will be 20c per bu. on the appraised yield for the number of acres seeded in 1936. It is possible to get a flax payment for all acreage grown on the farm this year regardless of whether any flax was produced on the farm last year.

"In order to get the flax payment there must be 20% of the flax acreage in soil conserving crops on the farm next fall. If there is sufficient acreage already in sweet clover or alfalfa, to be harvested for seed or hay, to equal 20% of the flax acreage then it will not be necessary to seed the required acreage to grass without a nurse crop. On the other hand if there are no soil conserving crops on the farm it will be necessary to shift the 20% of the flax acreage in addition to the 15% shifted on the other soil depleting crops."

Mr. Douglass announced that further informational meetings will be held at various points in the county in the near future. In the meantime, he said, committee members are prepared to supply further details to farmers in their respective communities.

Will Aid Materially in Financing Completion of Building

That sufficient funds will be available to complete the enclosed municipal skating rink as planned was indicated last Friday when Area WPA engineer Mearle Webb of Crookston informed Supt. Stanley Michalsky and members of the city council that the Works Progress administration had approved an additional grant of $5,500 for materials and an added sum for labor, reported by Mr. Michalsky at $7,000.

Of the grant for materials, $3,000 is designated to be used for the installation of a heating plant, while $2,500 is allocated for electrical equipment.

Laying of tile for the walls of the huge structure is now virtually complete, and men are at work this week putting in place the heavy rounded steel beams that will support the roof of the building.

AUGSBURG GROUP TO SING AT ZION CHURCH MAY 7TH

Quartet Also Will Present Three Other Concerts in County

The Augsburg quartet, student singers who spent the summer of 1935 in Europe, will visit Thief River Falls next Thursday, May 7. That evening they sing in the Zion Lutheran church at 8 o'clock. Members of the group will tell of their tour, bring greetings from leaders in Norway, and present a sacred concert. Their repertoire includes English and Norwegian classics and Negro Spirituals.

The quartet also will appear at Rindal Lutheran church near Rosewood next Tuesday evening; at the First Lutheran church in Goodridge next Wednesday evening; and at Norden Lutheran church six miles west of this city Friday evening, at 8. No admission fee will be charged, but offerings will be received.

In the Land of the Midnight Sun these young men spent most of the summer of 1935. There they traveled farther north than any previous singing group from America. In the Trondhjem cathedral, the national sanctuary where kings are crowned, they sang to an audience of 1200 people. Once they had 5000 listeners at a convention of all Norwegian Protestant churches. The International League of Norsemen invited the quartette to Norway.

Their European tour was completed by a hurried visit to Sweden, Denmark, Germany, France, and England. The last concerts abroad were in London.

In Wisconsin, Minnesota, and North Dakota these singers have their homes. The first tenor, Mr. Myrvik, lives at Porter, Minnesota; the second tenor, Mr. Helland, at Colgan, North Dakota; the baritone, Mr. Blake, at Minneapolis and the bass, Mr. Steen, at Superior, Wisconsin.

Augsburg College and Seminary, the school from which these young men come, was founded in 1869 as a training school for pastors. The men chiefly responsible for its existence were the two well known Norsemen, George Sverdrup and Sven Oftedal. Today Augsburg is both an Academic College and a Theological Seminary. It is one of the smaller schools of the Northwest where personal attention is given to the individual student.

CO. BOARD ENDS HEARINGS FOR AGED PENSIONS

Disposes Tuesday of Last of 388 Applications for Assistance

FIRST PAYMENTS TO GO OUT SHORTLY

Aitkin County Unable to Pay Its Share Into State Pension Fund

County Auditor A. M. Senstad announced this morning that the way had been cleared for paying old age pensions, and that the work of mailing out checks would begin Friday. He added that those who filed applications after April 1 will receive first checks covering only that portion of the month remaining after the application had been filed. Of a total of 392 requests for assistance filed by county residents, 318 were allowed in varying amounts, 17 were denied and the remainder are being held pending further investigation.

The Pennington county board, which has been conducting hearings on applications for old-age assistance during much of the past month, completed its work Tuesday when it heard the last of a total of 388 applications, a large majority of which were granted in varying amounts.

County Auditor A. M. Senstad announced that it is planned to send out early in May checks covering payments for the month of April unless advised to the contrary by the state board of control. The board plans to handle later applications for pensions at regular sessions in the future, it was stated.

The social security board announced Tuesday in Washington that it is not withdrawing federal funds from the State of Minnesota because of the reported failure of Aitkin county to pay its share into the state fund.

If one county in the state consistently refuses to pay its share, federal funds, of course, will be withdrawn in accordance with the law's requirements.

The board takes the position that Aitkin county, if it has failed to make payments, has been unable to do so because of prolonged adverse weather conditions. All information available in Washington, it was said, is to the effect that the Minnesota plan is being administered on a statewide basis, as required by the law. Applications for pensions and investigations of cases are being made on such a basis, it was said, and that constitutes conformity with the law.

Kenneth Haycraft, administrator of Minnesota's plan, informed the commission of the Aitkin county situation. He said there are "three possibilities" of providing the Aitkin county funds, and these are now being considered.

If one county fails to make its payments into the state fund and pensioners in that county are deprived of their payments because of that failure, the social security board, under the law, is required to withhold federal funds. The Minnesota board of control, it was explained, can meet the situation by providing the deficit county's payments out of state emergency or other funds.

It was said that Aitkin would be given ample time to meet all the requirements.

TAXPAYERS SHOULD BE INTERESTED

Governor Olson blames the increased cost of government in Minnesota to a "Republican-Controlled" legislature and increased tax delinquency. In commenting on the state's increased debt and taxes during his administration he says:

> "The most brazen and dishonest part of the Republican convention proceedings was the attempt to blame the Farmer-Labor administration for the increased state bonded indebtedness and tax levy. The Republican party has controlled the legislature of Minnesota, thru a majority representation, for decades. The legislature has the exclusive power of appropriating money and authorizing its expenditure. The Governor cannot spent a dollar without the express permission of the legislature. And so the increased issue of bonds and the increased expenditures have been authorized by the Republican majorities in the legislature.
> "I am not attaching blame to them because I think the expenditures were necessary, but I do insist upon an honest statement of legal responsibility. The use of the mill rate that is, comparing a low mill rate in previous years to a high rate in 1935—is a wilfully dishonest comparison.
> "In 1930, a levy of one mill brought a return of $2,880,000. During the years of the depression the return upon a levy of one mill fell as low as $1,200,000. The increase in the state tax levy on property was due to tax delinquency, decreased valuation of property and the decline of revenue received from other sources of taxation, such as gross earnings. It was not due to the increased expenditures of the Farmer-Labor administration.

While we hold no brief for the legislature, which certainly must share in the responsibility for Minnesota's present bad financial condition, the Governor's defense of his own record would be more convincing if he could show where he, at any time, has used his influence in the interests of economy. According to our recollection, and we have followed the record quite closely, the Governor has always lined up on the side of the tax spenders. On several occasions he has directed personal attacks on that small group in the legislature that has attempted to check the steadily increasing cost of state government.

That a part of the state's financial difficulties are due to increased delinquency and reduced income from other tax sources is true. But this fact emphasizes further the Governor's shortcomings in failing to insist on rigid economy in the administration of the state's business. Most local units of government have been up against this same difficulty and have met the situation by reducing costs. But while these local units have spent less, the state has spent more, and Governor Olson cannot dodge a major portion of the responsibility for this increase.

We have been told that next year's levy for state purposes will be more than twenty mills. A few years ago taxpayers were indignant when the levy for state purposes reached seven mills. It would seem, therefore, that the question of economy and efficiency in the administration of the state's affairs should be an issue in the coming election in which every taxpayer should be interested.

As yet the government has not imposed the processing taxes that will be necessary to pay the cost of the new soil conservation program. This is one unpleasant task that the administration probably would like to postpone until after election. The distribution of checks will be good campaign thunder in the areas that receive them. It will be more difficult for the politicians to maintain the Santa Claus role when they do the bill collecting.

Some idea of what is ahead of us in this country when we start paying our public debts may be obtained by considering the tax burden that is now carried by the people of Europe. According to present estimates, unmarried wage earners in England next year will pay a tax of more than 25% on all their income over $500. Married wage earners will pay on the same basis with an exemption of $1,000. Tax spenders are popular as long as they can postpone tax increases by borrowing money. But the day of reckoning cannot be postponed indefinitely. Our tax bill in this country is already greater than our food bill but in a few years we will look upon the present burden as comparatively small.

Our neighbors north of the international boundary are now going to build a sugar beet factory south of Winnipeg. The Canadians must be convinced that our present crazy program is going to be continued indefinitely and that as soon as they have sugar to sell we will oblige them by further tariff concessions. Perhaps their evident opinion that we lack natural sagacity is justified. But it would be nice to have private initiative encouraged in our own country to the extent that now and then we would hear of a factory being built south of the Canadian line.

Names of individuals and corporations that received more than ten thousand dollars a year for not growing this or that under the triple A crop reduction program are now going to be made public. We can understand why the administration was somewhat reluctant about giving out this information. In a political campaign a few facts of this kind provide effective ammunition for the opposition. A public that will accept good naturedly a system of relief that wastes two dollars for every dollar that gets to the needy will snort with rage at the thought of the government giving hundred thousand dollar hand-outs to those who are already rich. If the purpose of the AAA program really was to reduce acreage, with the idea that all farmers would benefit by such acreage reduction, then it certainly was proper to pay those who cooperated in the program in proportion to their sacrifice. But voters, alas, are not guided by reason and, after all, perhaps there is a measure of justice in forcing the administration to face some criticism as unreasonable as that with which it so liberally smears its opponents.

Additional federal grants for the skating rink project now seem to be assured and justify the hope that the rink can be completed without additional expense to the local community. Which will add materially to the attractiveness of the structure in the eyes of many of our good citizens.

Now that Clean Up Week has been officially proclaimed it should not be unreasonable to assume that Spring has finally arrived. The calendar is seldom right and even the robins are often wrong, but when Doc Mellby declares that it is time to rake up the yards and clean up the alleys, there is no further argument as far as we are concerned. So let's swing into the spirit of the season, return the neighbor's snow shovel and borrow his wheel barrow and rake and get things readied up around the house all spic and span.

Another adverse decision lowers still further Governor Olson's almost zero batting average in Supreme Court test cases. His criticism of the Court's decision in this last case is especially interesting in view of the fact that the decision was written by his own appointee, Julius Olson, who quoted the Governor himself to prove the Governor wrong.

Twenty years ago they arrested Anette Kellerman because she wore a bathing suit that came only half way to her knees. [illegible]

Picture the perfect motor car—then compare it with Pontiac!

PICTURE a car that would suit you perfectly and see how well Pontiac fills the bill. It's all you could ask in styling—the most beautiful thing on wheels. You can't do better for features—it has the finest money can buy. As for dependability—over 81 per cent of all Pontiacs ever built are still in use. And Pontiac's thrift is beyond question. It won the famous Yosemite Valley Economy Run*, under American Automobile Association supervision—averaging 23.9 miles per gallon (no oil added), to defeat all entrants in its class! What other low priced car offers as much? You know the answer—you can't do better than a Pontiac.

AUDITOR SENSTAD GIVES DETAILS OF 1936 ASSESSMENT

there is a piece of platted property having full and true valuation of $4,000 including lots and buildings. As a homestead this property would have an assessed valuation of $1,000, which is 25 per cent of the full value. For an example, with a rate of 100 mills the tax would be $100. This same property, as non-homestead would be as follows: 40 per cent of the full value would make $1,600 assessed value. With the same 100 mill rate the taxes would amount to $160. Thus, it is easily seen, that correct classification involves real money and should have the serious attention of every property owner.

The assessment is made as of May 1st, regardless of when the assessor calls, and, regardless of whether the property changes hands later during the year. It is just this one day that governs the classification and assessment and it holds for two years, 1936-1937.

The assessors are beginning their work on May 1st and will continue for two months. With thousands of descriptions of real estate, over two thousand in the city alone, for the assessors to properly classify, this becomes an important and serious piece of work and the coöperation of the people of the county is earnestly requested.

The Home Owners Loan corporation has sent out notices to local clients advising them to have their property properly classified and to secure affidavits from the county auditor. It will be unnecessary, however, to procure affidavit if property owners give the necessary information to the assessor when he calls.

Swarms of Geese Gather on Manitoba Praries

There must be 50,000,000 or more wild geese on the prairies west of Winnipeg this week. Should cold weather continue to check the northward migration of the birds, the area will present an unrivaled sight, for more geese are arriving from the south almost every night. Observers who have watched the geese over a number of years say there are many more geese in the district now than at any other time. A rough estimate of the geese shows that about 75 per cent are blue geese, 20 per cent are lesser snow geese and the balance are the big gray Canada goose.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

STATE CORPORATE EXCESS TAX LAW IS HELD INVALID

Supreme Court Decision Is Written by Justice Julius Olson

Minnesota's corporate excess tax law is invalid through implied repeal in subsequent statutes, the state supreme court ruled Friday, with Chief Justice John P. Devaney in the only dissenting opinion charging usurpation of legislative functions by his associates.

The decision affirmed a Hennepin county district court order by Judge A. W. Selover in a declaratory judgment test case involving the Bemis Bros. Bag company of St. Louis, as a foreign corporation, and S. H. Clausin & Company, Minneapolis wholesale jewelers, as a domestic corporation.

The two corporations brought the action against the Minnesota tax commission and the Hennepin county auditor and Minneapolis city assessor when the commission instructed the taxing officials to make levies for 1933 under the 57-year-old corporate excess law.

The Bemis Bro. Bag company claimed collection of such a tax would be unconstitutional because all other proper taxes on its property are being paid.

The majority supreme court opinion, written by Justice Julius J. Olson, emphasized that the half century old statute had been accepted as obsolete for many years, that no attempt to enforce it had been made until recently and that the legislature intended to replace it by passage of later laws taxing moneys and credits, income and mortgage registry in addition to other property of corporations.

The decision holds that if a statute is "manifestly inconsistent with a prior statute covering the same subject, it repeals it," in whole or to that extent without any repealing clause, "in the absence of an expressed intention to the contrary."

Conservation Group Authorizes Pageants at Itasca State Park

At its regular meeting last week the conservation commission authorized E. V. Willard, commissioner of conservation, to proceed with prepartions for the of historical pageants within Itasca and Jay Cooke state parks.

The action was taken when Earl Barker, president of the Northwest Historical Society, gave evidence of guaranteeing payment of any deficit up to $2,000 and a pledge to advance cash not to exceed $500 to defray preliminary expenses.

Previously the Conservation Commission had agreed to stage the pageants only if local sponsors would guarantee payment of deficits up to $2,000.

AMPLE SUPPLY OF FARM LABOR SAVE IN N. W. COUNTIES

National Re-employment Service Completes Survey in Minnesota

Results of a survey conducted by the National Reemployment Service and the United States Employment service to determine the amount of farm labor available in Minnesota shows no shortage exists, Ibeng Bjornaraa, re-employment director, this week reported to Victor Christgau, state W. P. A. administrator. The survey was made following reports of farm labor shortage presumably due to WPA and CCC employment.

In contrast, however, to the situation prevailing generally over the state, an apparent shortage in the supply of farm labor was reported in Pennington, Marshall, Roseau, Red Lake and Polk counties.

In his report on the situation, Mr. Bjornaraa stated that there has been a lively demand for farm hands in a large part of the state but that thus far orders have been filled without difficulty. He added that offers of $30-$35 a month plus board and room are readily filled although in the Minneapolis and St. Paul offices of the state employment service some difficulty has been experienced in filling orders at $20-$25 a month.

Mr. Christgau said that WPA employment has been reduced from 65,000 on March 1 to approximately 56,600 on May 1, the reduction being in line with instructions from Washington to reduce gradually WPA employment to 46,600 by June 30.

National Hospital Day to be Observed Throut Minnesota on May 12th

Hospitals all over the state of Minnesota will join in holding open house on National Hospital Day, May 12, it was announced today by Victor Anderson, executive manager of Abbott Hospital, Minneapolis, and president of the Minnesota Hospital Association.

"Hospital Day is celebrated each year in order to acquaint the public with the problems of the hospitals of today and how they are saving them," Mr. Anderson said. "Most people think of a hospital only as a place to go when desperately ill and they think that the hospitals must certainly be getting rich from the high rates.

"The truth is that no hospital in Minnesota is making money. The reasons are that it costs more per bed than they can charge to maintain a hospital. Necessity for purchasing so much new equipment each year and for furnishing necessities today that were unheard of comforts a generation ago, contributes to this terrific cost. Our problems are large, but they must be met for the sake of the public. On May 12, everybody in the state of Minnesota is cordially invited to visit a hospital in his or her community and see how a hospital is operated."

New Time Schedule of Wage Payments for WPA Workers Is Announced

To facilitate and speed up payment of wages to WA workers, a system of grouping pay dates has been authorized by Victor Christgau, state administrator, according to announcement made by C. W. Anderson, acting director for the seventh district of the Works Progress Administration.

The new precedure will mean that WPA workers will receive their checks on the seventh day following the close of each semi-monthly payroll period, instead of the tenth day. The finance department, of which Waldemar Thorson is supervisor, has divided the district into four areas, each with a separate pay date.

The areas and the pay days for the projects workers will be as follows:

Area 1—Beltrami and Clearwater counties, 5th and 20th of each month.

Area 2—Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Clay, Norman and Mahnomen, 8th and 23rd.

Area 3—Becker, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Kittson and Marshall, 12th and 27th.

Area— Ottertail, Wilkin and NYA, 16th and 1st.
